SEP III Sem English notes

01. The Overcoat – Summary (Easy 10-Mark Answer)

About the Author

Nikolai Gogol (1809–1852) was a Russian writer known for his satirical and humorous style. His works often criticize social injustice and bureaucracy in Russia.

Summary

The Overcoat is one of Nikolai Gogol's most famous short stories. It tells the tragic and touching story of Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk in St. Petersburg. Through his life, Gogol highlights the problems of poverty, social injustice, and the cruelty of the bureaucratic system.

Akaky Akakievich is a simple and innocent man who works as a copyist. He has no interest in anything except copying official documents. His life is very dull and lonely, and he is regularly mocked by his colleagues. He accepts all insults quietly without complaining, which shows his helplessness and gentle nature. He earns very little money and lives in extreme poverty.

The main event of the story begins when Akaky's old overcoat becomes completely worn out. The winter in St. Petersburg is harsh, and he desperately needs a warm coat. When the tailor Petrovich tells him that the coat cannot be repaired and he must get a new one, Akaky becomes worried because he cannot afford it. However, he decides to save money by cutting down his expenses. For months, he sacrifices small comforts such as food, candles, and tea. His determination shows how important the overcoat becomes in his life.

When the new overcoat is finally made, it brings Akaky great joy. His colleagues admire it and even throw a small celebration in his honour. For the first time, he feels noticed and respected. But this happiness does not last long. On the night of the celebration, two thieves steal his overcoat.

Akaky tries to seek help from the police and even approaches a high-ranking official, but no one helps him. The "Important Person" even scolds him harshly, which shocks Akaky deeply.

The loss of the overcoat breaks his spirit. He falls sick and dies soon after. Later, his ghost appears on the streets, taking overcoats from others, including the Important Person. This supernatural ending symbolizes society's guilt.

Gogol uses Akaky's tragic life to criticize the insensitivity of society and the corruption of officials. He shows that even a small act of kindness could save a life, while cruelty can destroy a person completely. The story reminds us of the importance of compassion and human dignity.

Themes

a) Poverty and Struggle, b) Social Injustice, c) Human Dignity, d) Bureaucracy and Power Abuse, e) Supernatural Element.

II. Character Sketch of Akaky Akakievich Bashmachkin

Akaky Akakievich is the central character of Nikolai Gogol's The Overcoat. He is a poor government clerk who works as a copyist. His life is simple and monotonous. He enjoys copying documents and finds peace in his work. Akaky has no friends, no family, and no social life, which shows his lonely existence.

He is extremely humble, shy, and gentle. He never argues with anyone, even when his colleague's insult or mock him. Instead of reacting, he quietly continues his work. This shows his patience and innocent nature. He is also honest and hardworking, but his sincerity is not appreciated in the office.

Akaky lives in poverty. His clothes are old, his room is bare, and he eats very little because he earns a very small salary. His old overcoat becomes a big problem in the cold winter. When he decides to buy a new one, it becomes the only excitement of his life. His dedication to saving every small coin for the overcoat shows his determination and sacrifice.

The new overcoat brings Akaky rare moments of joy and respect. For the first time, his colleagues notice him and treat him kindly. But this happiness is shortlived, as the overcoat is stolen, and Akaky receives no help from the officials. The loss leads to his emotional breakdown and death.

Akaky's character symbolizes the suffering of the poor and the cruelty of society. Through him, Gogol shows how an ordinary, harmless man can be destroyed by neglect and injustice.

III. Character Sketch of Petrovich (the tailor)

Petrovich is the tailor who stitche Akaky's new overcoat. He is an important minor character in the story. He is described as a skilled but moody tailor. He often drinks, which affects his behaviour, and sometimes he argues with his customers.

When Akaky brings his old overcoat for repair, Petrovich honestly explains that it cannot be fixed and a new one must be made. This shows that he is straightforward and practical. He charges a high amount for stitching the overcoat, which seems unfair, but it also reflects the economic condition of the time and the exploitation faced by the poor.

Despite his rough behaviour, Petrovich completes the overcoat with great care. The new overcoat becomes a symbol of hope and happiness in Akaky's life. Petrovich's role is small but meaningful because he indirectly brings the only joy that Akaky experiences.

IV. Themes in The Overcoat

Nikolai Gogol’s The Overcoat is not only a story about a poor clerk and his stolen coat; it is a powerful work rich in themes that criticise society, expose human suffering, and highlight the need for compassion. The story deals with several major themes such as poverty, social injustice, bureaucratic cruelty, human dignity, and the supernatural.

One of the strongest themes in the story is poverty. Akaky Akakievich lives a life of extreme hardship. His salary is so small that even buying a new overcoat becomes a life-changing struggle. Gogol shows how poverty traps people and forces them to sacrifice their basic needs. Akaky’s months of saving and suffering for a simple coat represent the harsh reality of the lower class.

Another important theme is social injustice and cruelty. Throughout the story, Akaky is ignored, insulted, and mistreated. His colleagues mock him for their entertainment, and no one supports him. Society sees him as insignificant because he is poor. Even when his overcoat is stolen, the authorities show no concern. This highlights how the poor are often denied justice and respect.

The story also criticises the bureaucratic system. The “Important Person” represents the arrogance of those in power. Instead of helping Akaky, he scolds him and uses his position to show superiority. Gogol mocks the Russian bureaucracy by showing how officials care more about their status than the people they are supposed to serve.

A key thematic idea in the story is human dignity. For Akaky, the overcoat is not just a piece of clothing; it is a symbol of hope, confidence, and respect. The way people treat him differently after he gets the new coat shows how society values appearance more than character. When the coat is taken away, Akaky loses all dignity and hope, which leads to his death.

Finally, the supernatural element at the end adds a symbolic theme. Akaky’s ghost stealing overcoats shows the return of justice in a dark, ironic way. It suggests that the cruelty and neglect of society do not disappear—they come back to haunt the guilty.

Through these themes, Gogol reveals the pain of ordinary people and teaches the importance of kindness, empathy, and humanity.

https://youtu.be/Wihxgz-h9-A?si=aXdNSHyX53nctXi2

02. Kirubunkal – Long Answer (10 Marks)

“Kirubunkal,” written by Dr. Ravikumar Neha, is a powerful story that combines reality, imagination, village gossip, and human psychology. The story exposes how rumours and false tales can destroy families and disturb the cultural harmony of a community. It also highlights how modern technology and changing values affect relationships.

The story revolves around Seena (Sreenivasa), a careless young man who is addicted to mobile phones and reels. He compares his dark-skinned wife with the fair and attractive girls he watches online, which shows the influence of unrealistic digital images on the minds of today’s youth. Seena’s parents, Eeri and Mudli, represent hardworking rural people who struggle to maintain dignity in society.

The turning point of the story is the mysterious death of Mudli, who is found dead near Chandranna’s farm. No one knows the truth, but villagers quickly invent their own versions of the story. Every person adds imagination and turns the incident into gossip. Some say Mudli insulted Chandranna’s family; some accuse him of an affair; others blame Chandranna for murder. These rumours show how society enjoys lies more than truth.

An interesting and unique feature of the story is that the tales themselves become characters. They complain that human beings no longer create meaningful stories based on experience, but only spread lies, dirty jokes, and sensational rumours. The tales decide to take revenge by creating even more confusing stories that make society unstable.

The Kirubunkal tree, an ancient and sacred tree, symbolizes the traditional culture of storytelling. It observes how human values are declining and warns that society is slowly losing kindness, unity, and truthfulness. Through these elements, “Kirubunkal” teaches that rumours can destroy lives, technology must be used responsibly, and traditional storytelling should be protected. The story encourages readers to think critically, to respect truth, and to preserve moral values in society.

Themes in the story: 1. Theme of Rumour, Gossip, and False Tales,

2. Dehumanisation in Modern Society, 3. Caste, Class, and Oppression,

4. Corruption of Traditional Culture, 5. Symbolism of Kirubunkal,

6. Breakdown of Moral and Social Values, 7. Psychological Decline of Seena.

Conclusion: Kirubunkal is not just a story about a village—It is a critique of the entire modern world, where: truth is replaced by lies, culture is replaced by cheap entertainment, technology controls human minds, caste and power destroy justice, and old storytelling traditions are dying. Through powerful symbols and raw language, the story warns that unless society changes, both humans and their culture will continue to collapse.

II. Short Notes on for 05/10 marks

1. Seena’s Obsession in Life

Seena grows up as a lonely and confused young man after the mysterious death of his father, Mudli. Raised by his mother Eeri, he develops an unhealthy attachment to his mobile phone. Instead of involving himself in real life, relationships, or responsibilities, Seena spends all his time watching reels, videos of beautiful girls, and pornographic content. This makes him dissatisfied with his dark-skinned wife Shalini and even with himself. His obsession with fair skin and beauty leads him to constantly wash his face, hoping to become fair. The phone becomes his escape from reality, and he stops caring about family, marriage, or village life. He behaves like a child even after marriage, sharing intimate details of his life openly. Seena’s obsession symbolises how technology and fantasy distance young people from reality, pushing them into illusion and irresponsibility.

2. Indian Tradition of Telling Tales

The story highlights the rich Indian tradition of storytelling, where tales—called “kathe” or “stories”—become part of the community’s living culture. In the village, tales are not just entertainment; they shape beliefs, identity, and collective memory. Elders like Hirikateyajji carried these tales from one generation to another, giving life to nature, people, and culture. Tales travelled across villages, changing form over time, mixing truth and imagination. They explained strange events, moral issues, and social relations. However, in Kirubunkal, the sacred tradition weakens. Modern influences, false rumours, and sensational stories replace meaningful tales. Instead of wisdom, tales start spreading fear, lust, division, and lies. Through talking tales and mythical elements, the story shows how India’s storytelling heritage once guided society but is now threatened by misinformation and loss of values.

3. Eeri’s Life After Mudli’s Death

After Mudli’s mysterious and violent death, Eeri’s life becomes filled with hardship and loneliness. As a widow, she must raise Seena single-handedly. She deeply loves her son because he is the only memory of her dead husband. Eeri works hard to fulfil all of Seena’s wishes, even buying him a mobile phone, hoping it will make him happy. She hopes for government compensation after Mudli’s death, but it never arrives, adding to her worries. Her life becomes centered entirely around caring for Seena, who gradually becomes irresponsible and mentally unstable. Later, she arranges Seena’s marriage to Shalini, hoping marriage will bring stability, but Seena continues his unhealthy habits. Eeri silently suffers as village tales accuse her of immoral relationships, damaging her dignity. Her life represents the struggles of widows in rural India, who face poverty, gossip, and emotional burden without any support.

4. Attack on Mudli

Mudli's death forms the central mystery of Kirubunkal. On the dark night of the new moon, when he goes searching for his missing son Seena, he hears strange cries and moves towards Kirabunkal. Later that night, he is attacked by a group of men—followers of Sahukar Chandranna. They beat him brutally, leaving him speechless and half-dead. The reason for the attack is unclear, but many contradictory tales spread across the village: some claim Mudli had an affair with Chandranna's wife, others say he misbehaved with Chandranna's daughter Vimli, and some say Chandranna was involved with Eeri. These tales create multiple possibilities, showing how truth gets buried under rumours. Mudli collapses near Chandranna's farm and dies. His death becomes the starting point for new tales, gossip, and fear in the village. The attack symbolises violence caused by caste politics, rumours, and power imbalance.

5. Importance of Hirikateyajji

Hirikateyajji is portrayed as the oldest and most respected elder among the "tales." She represents wisdom, tradition, and the ancient storytelling culture of the village. While the other tales begin to spread sensational, immoral, and harmful stories, Hirikateyajji recognises the danger these new tales pose to society. She speaks with authority and concern, reminding the tales of their original duty—to guide humans, bring harmony, and create meaningful stories. Her warnings express the fear that the village is losing its moral compass. She also approaches Kirabunkal, the sacred origin of tales, seeking solutions to restore the village's lost values. Through her character, the text conveys the message that elders and traditional knowledge are necessary to maintain balance in society. Hirikateyajji becomes a symbolic grandmother figure who tries to protect culture from being destroyed by modern distortions and irresponsible storytelling.

6. Importance of Sahukar Chandranna

Sahukar Chandranna is an influential and powerful figure in the village. His presence shapes many events in the story, especially the mysterious death of Mudli. Several tales revolve around him—some accuse him of having an affair with Eeri, others say Mudli was involved with his wife or daughter, and some tales even imply he killed Mudli to protect his family's honour. Although the real truth is never known, Chandranna's social status allows him to manipulate narratives and hide facts. He uses the village's fear during the sickness outbreak to claim Mudli died of disease, quickly burying him without proper rituals. This makes him a symbol of how people in power can control stories, spread misinformation, and influence public belief. Chandranna represents authority, fear, and the role of upper-class men in shaping the fate of weaker families like Eeri's. His character exposes the injustice in rural power structures.

7. The Tales of the Village

In Kirubunkal, tales are personified as living beings who move through the village, interact with each other, and influence human lives. Earlier, tales were meaningful, moral, and imaginative, giving life to the land and shaping cultural identity. They helped people understand their world. But over time, the tales change. They become sensational, vulgar, and harmful—focusing on rumours, sexual fantasies, and false accusations. They confuse truth and lies, causing fear, conflict, and misunderstanding among the villagers. The death of Mudli becomes a fertile ground for new tales to be born every day. These tales invade the lives of Mudli, Eeri, Chandranna, and Vimli, destroying their dignity. The text shows how stories can uplift society or corrupt it, depending on how they are used. The village becomes a factory of false storytelling, reflecting today's world of misinformation and viral content.

8. Morality and the Village Tales

The story highlights how village tales shape the community's morality. Earlier, tales carried wisdom, ethical lessons, and respect for nature and people. They preserved cultural values. However, in the modern context of the story, morality collapses. Tales no longer teach good behaviour; instead, they spread lies, lust, and violence. They distort reality to entertain people, satisfying hidden desires rather than guiding them. False narratives lead to moral chaos in the village— people judge Eeri, imagine sinful affairs, and gossip without concern for truth. Men fantasize about women mentioned in tales, and women fear for their safety and dignity. The tales show how morality weakens when a community loses empathy, responsibility, and truth. Through this shift, the author criticizes how modern society replaces genuine stories with corruption, fake news, and sensational gossip, leading to the decline of social values.

9. The Village Life in 'Kirubunkal'

Village life in Kirubunkal is portrayed as a mix of tradition, poverty, superstition, and gossip. The village depends heavily on stories and rumours to understand events, especially mysterious ones like Mudli's death. People's lives are deeply influenced by caste hierarchy, economic inequality, and social expectations. Technology, like mobile phones, has entered village life but distorted values—for example, Seena becomes addicted to reels and adult content. The community is quick to suspect and judge others, creating false stories about relationships and scandals. Villagers live in fear during sickness outbreaks, showing their vulnerability. Nature also suffers; Kirabunkal, the lifegiving tree, weakens due to human neglect. The village survives through oral tales, celebrations, and old customs, but it is slowly collapsing under modern pressures and the spread of harmful gossip. The story reveals both the charm and the dark side of rural Indian life.

10. Indian Ethos and Folktale

Kirubunkal reflects core Indian ethos through its deep connection with folktales, communal storytelling, nature, and moral lessons. Indian culture traditionally views storytelling as a sacred art that teaches values, preserves heritage, and strengthens community bonds. The personification of tales and Kirabunkal, the ancient tree, highlights the Indian belief that nature and stories hold spiritual power. Folktales often mix the real and the supernatural, just as the story blends everyday life with mythical elements. The text also reflects Indian ethos through themes like respect for elders, social hierarchy, belief in destiny, and the importance of preserving truth. However, the story also critiques the loss of this ethos in modern times. When tales turn immoral or misleading, society loses direction. Thus, Kirubunkal shows both the richness of Indian folktale tradition and the danger of forgetting its original purpose—guiding people toward wisdom and harmony.

III. Explain the significance of Kirubankal as the controlling entity of the village. (10 Marks)

In the story Kirubunkal, Kirubankal is not just a physical place or a tree; it is presented as the life-force and guardian of the entire village. It functions like a controlling spirit that watches over the people, their stories, and the balance of life. For generations, Kirubankal has given birth to tales, protected the village, and maintained harmony between nature and humans. The villagers believed that even the rain, wind, clouds, and sunlight entered the village only with the permission of Kirubankal. This shows that Kirubankal had a powerful symbolic authority, acting like a moral and natural regulator.

Kirubankal also represents tradition, memory, culture, and truth. Earlier, the tales that came from Kirubankal were pure, meaningful, and life-giving. They united the community and helped people understand right and wrong. However, with the arrival of modern changes—mobile phones, fake stories, sensationalism, and moral decline—Kirubankal becomes weak and powerless. This symbolizes the collapse of traditional wisdom.

When Hirikateyajji begs Kirubankal to save the village from false tales, Kirubankal speaks like a tired elder who has seen centuries of change. Kirubankal expresses sadness because people no longer respect nature, truth, or the elders. It complains that humans have become selfish, careless, and disconnected from the natural world.

Thus, Kirubankal is significant because it represents the soul of the village, the centre of its stories, the guardian of its moral values, and the symbol of a harmonious relationship between humans and nature. Its decline reflects the decay of the entire community.

IV. How does the narrative voice express deep concerns about village life in the story Kirubunkal? (10 Marks)

The narrative voice in Kirubunkal expresses powerful concerns about the moral, social, cultural, and environmental decay in the village. Through the dialogues of characters like Hirikateyajji, Kirubankal, and the personified tales, the story highlights how traditional life has been damaged by modern habits, false beliefs, and irresponsible behaviour.

One major concern expressed is the disappearance of meaningful stories. Earlier, tales gave life, unity, and wisdom to the village. But now, no one listens to stories, and only sensational, vulgar, and destructive tales spread. The narrative shows how false rumours about Eeri, Chandranna, Vimli, and Mudli destroy the dignity of individuals and create division among caste groups.

Another concern is the breakdown of human relationships, especially seen through Seena's addiction to mobile reels and pornography. The story criticizes how technology is destroying family bonds, human values, and self-respect. Seena forgets his responsibilities, mocks his wife, and behaves like a child, showing the emotional emptiness of modern life.

The narrative also criticizes violence, exploitation, caste hierarchies, and injustice. Mudli's mysterious death, the false accusations, and the beating he receives reveal the power of the upper classes and the helplessness of the poor.

A deep anxiety about environmental destruction is also expressed. Kirubankal, once strong and sacred, is now dying due to human greed, pollution, and neglect. This symbolizes the destruction of nature and the loss of cultural roots.

Finally, the narrative voice expresses fear about the future. It shows that if humans continue to be selfish, insensitive, and dishonest, both tales and human life will collapse. The village becomes a "hellhole" filled with rumours, sickness, and moral decay.

Thus, the narrative voice serves as a warning, showing how modernity, false stories, moral corruption, and disrespect for nature are destroying the traditional life of the village.

03. On the Way to Goregaon – Summary (10 Marks)

“On the Way to Goregaon” is an autobiographical incident from Dr. B. R. Ambedkar’s childhood. It describes the painful experience he and his brothers faced due to caste discrimination during a journey.

Ambedkar begins by introducing his family. His ancestors worked in the East India Company’s army, and his father was a Subhedar in the British Indian Army. His mother had passed away, so Ambedkar and his siblings were taken care of by their aunt in Satara. Although she was physically disabled, she lovingly looked after the children.

During their summer vacation, Ambedkar’s father, who worked in Koregaon, asked the children to visit him. They were very excited because they had never travelled by train before. Their aunt prepared food and made new clothes for them. A tonga took them to the railway station, and they boarded the train to Masur.

However, when they reached Masur, their difficulties began. No one came to receive them. The station master initially behaved kindly, thinking they were Brahmin children. But the moment Ambedkar revealed that they were Mahars (considered untouchables), the station master’s behaviour changed completely. He walked away and refused to help them.

The children tried to hire a bullock cart to go to Koregaon. But every cartman refused to carry them because untouchables were not allowed to sit in or touch upper-caste carts. Finally, one cartman agreed but on the condition that the boys themselves would drive the cart while he walked beside it. After some time, the cartman left to have food and later returned. He sat in the cart due to fear of the dark but still kept distance from the children. The boys were frightened and cried, suspecting he might harm them.

Late at night, they reached the toll-collector’s hut. Even there, they were not allowed to drink water because of caste rules. Hungry, thirsty, and tired, they had to wait until their father finally arrived and took them home.

This whole journey deeply affected young Ambedkar. He realised how cruel and inhuman the practice of untouchability was. The experience shaped his determination to fight against caste discrimination and work for equality and justice throughout his life.

II. Short Notes

1. Ambedkar's Father Ambedkar's father was a disciplined, responsible, and principled man who served in the Army of the East India Company. He rose to the respectable rank of Subhedar, which shows his dedication and leadership qualities. After retirement, he worked as a cashier at Koregaon, supervising the government's famine-relief work. Although he could not visit his children often due to his duties, he maintained strong communication with them. He carefully planned their journey to Koregaon and instructed them about the travel details, showing his care and concern as a parent. His values of honesty, hard work, and discipline had a deep influence on young Ambedkar. Even though he was physically absent during the incident, his presence is strongly felt through the children's efforts to reach him. Ambedkar remembered his father as a person who balanced duty and affection, and his disciplined background shaped Ambedkar's own personality and later commitment to social reform.

2. Ambedkar's Aunt

Ambedkar's aunt played a significant role in his childhood, especially after the death of his mother. She was extremely loving and gentle, but physically weak. She was a dwarf and had trouble walking, which made daily tasks very difficult for her. Despite her limitations, she took care of Ambedkar and his brothers with great affection. Since she could not cook properly, the children had to manage their own meals and often prepared simple dishes like pulav. Before their journey, she lovingly arranged food for them with the help of neighbours. Her emotional reaction when the children left for Koregaon shows her deep attachment to them. Although she could not offer physical help, her presence gave the children emotional support and comfort. Ambedkar remembered her kindness throughout his life. Her character represents the silent, caring women in families who support children with love, even when they cannot contribute physically. She added warmth and humanity to Ambedkar's early life.

3. The Station Master at Masur The station master at Masur is an important character who reflects the caste attitudes of society. When Ambedkar and his brothers arrived at the station, the station master treated them kindly, assuming they were Brahmins because of their clean clothes and polite behaviour. However, when Ambedkar innocently revealed that they were Mahars (untouchables), the station master's expression changed immediately. He withdrew from them and hesitated to help further, showing the deep-rooted social prejudice of the time. Yet, when he noticed that the children were helpless and stranded, he felt sympathy and tried to arrange a bullock cart for them. However, even his authority could not convince the cartmen because none of them wanted to carry untouchable children. Finally, he came up with a solution where the children would drive the cart themselves. His mixed behaviour—kindness followed by discrimination—clearly shows how even well-placed people were victims of caste-based thinking. He represents society's inability to rise above untouchability.

4. The Cart Driver

The cart driver symbolizes both the cruelty and helplessness created by caste rules. At first, he refused to take Ambedkar and his brothers because carrying untouchables would "pollute" him. He only agreed when he learned that the children themselves would drive the cart, allowing him to walk beside it. This shows how deeply caste restrictions controlled everyday life. During the journey, however, his behaviour changed. When darkness surrounded them, he jumped into the cart out of fear, forgetting his earlier concerns about pollution. This frightened the children, who suspected that he might harm them for their gold ornaments. Still, he continued guiding them and finally brought them to the tollcollector's hut at midnight. The cart driver also advised Ambedkar to lie about his caste to get water, which shows that he understood the harshness of social rules but still followed them. His divided behaviour reflects the contradictions of caste society—fear of untouchability mixed with human concern.

5. Water Issues and Ambedkar

Water plays a symbolic and practical role in Ambedkar's journey. Throughout their travel, Ambedkar and his brothers struggled to get clean drinking water simply because they were untouchables. At the riverbed, the only available water was filthy, mixed with mud and cattle waste, and unfit for drinking. Later, at the toll-collector's hut, Ambedkar tried to get water by pretending to be a Muslim, speaking in Urdu to sound convincing. But even then, the toll collector refused to help, showing how deeply prejudice controlled basic human needs. The children were forced to sleep hungry, despite having plenty of food, because they could not drink water. This helplessness made a strong impact on young Ambedkar's mind. He realised that untouchability was not just social humiliation—it affected basic survival. The denial of water became a powerful symbol of social oppression, and this painful memory stayed with Ambedkar throughout his life, inspiring him to fight against caste injustice.

6. Ambedkar and His Brothers

Ambedkar and his brothers began their journey with excitement. It was their first train journey, and they wore new clothes, carried food, and even bought lemonade at the station. However, their joy soon turned into fear and suffering. At Masur station, no one came to receive them, and after learning their caste, the station master and cartmen refused to help. The children had to drive the cart themselves, travelled through darkness, and faced loneliness and hunger. Their fear increased when the cart driver suddenly sat beside them in the dark. They even suspected that he might harm them for their ornaments. At the toll hut, they were denied water again because of untouchability. Despite all these hardships, the children remained united and courageous. The incident taught them the harsh reality of caste discrimination at a young age. This painful journey shaped Ambedkar's understanding of social injustice and influenced his future fight for equality.

7. Social Injustice and Ambedkar – 05/10 Marks

The essay clearly exposes the cruelty of social injustice faced by Ambedkar and other untouchables. Even as a nine-year-old boy, Ambedkar faced humiliation at every step—at the railway station, on the road, and even when asking for water. The station master hesitated to help him, cart drivers refused to carry him, and the toll collector denied him water. The journey became a painful lesson about the caste system's inhumanity. Ambedkar realised that untouchability was not limited to school rules or daily restrictions—it followed people everywhere, even during emergencies. This incident left an indelible mark on his mind. It awakened in him the desire to challenge social discrimination. He understood that untouchability denied dignity, safety, and basic human needs. This early experience contributed greatly to shaping his life's mission to fight for equality, justice, and the rights of the oppressed. The essay shows how personal suffering became the seed of future social revolution.

8. Ambedkar's Train Journey – 05/10 Marks

Ambedkar's first train journey began with great joy and excitement. He and his brothers wore new clothes, carried delicious food prepared by neighbours, and even enjoyed lemonade at the station. They eagerly boarded the train and looked forward to meeting their father. However, the real hardships began when they reached Masur. No one arrived to receive them, and after revealing their caste, the station master and cart drivers turned away from them. The children had to drive the cart themselves, travelled alone at night, and faced hunger and fear. The journey turned into a painful experience of caste discrimination. Despite the excitement of the train ride, the incident taught Ambedkar a lifelong lesson: untouchability followed people everywhere, even during joyful moments. The journey became a turning point in his life, awakening his awareness of social injustice. What started as a happy experience ended as a powerful reminder of the cruelty of caste-based discrimination.

III. What lessons did Ambedkar learn from his experiences at Goregaon? Explain. (10 marks – 250 to 300 words)

Dr. B. R. Ambedkar's journey to Goregaon as a young boy became one of the most important lessons of his life. The humiliating experiences he faced due to caste discrimination opened his eyes to the harsh realities of society.

First, Ambedkar realised how deeply the idea of untouchability was rooted in the minds of people. At Masur station, the station master spoke kindly to him at first, thinking he was from an upper caste. But the moment Ambedkar mentioned that they were Mahars, the station master's attitude changed. This taught Ambedkar that caste could immediately decide how a person was treated in society.

Second, he learned that untouchability denied even basic human needs. The cartmen refused to take him and his brothers in their carts. They were not allowed to sit, touch, or even pay for the service. Later, at the toll-collector's hut, they were not given even a drop of water. From this, Ambedkar understood that the caste system controlled every small aspect of life—food, water, travel, and social contact.

Third, he realised how people blindly believed in the idea of "ritual purity." The upper castes behaved as if touching an untouchable would pollute them. Ambedkar saw that this belief made people cruel, heartless, and unjust. He understood that such practices were not religious truths but social evils created by ignorance.

Finally, this painful journey taught Ambedkar the value of dignity and equality. Even though he was a child, he was treated as inferior. This experience made him determined to fight against caste discrimination. It sowed the seeds of his future mission—to create a society where all human beings are treated with respect, regardless of caste.

In conclusion, Ambedkar learned that caste discrimination was deeply unfair and that it destroyed human values. His experience at Goregaon strengthened his resolve to dedicate his life to justice, equality, and the upliftment of the oppressed.

In this essay, Ambedkar highlights: The cruel effects of caste system The fear of social boycott that controls people The inhuman attitude shown towards untouchables His own determination to fight for equality.

The experience strengthened Ambedkar's belief that society must change and that all humans deserve dignity, equality, and justice. Thus, "On the Way to Goregaon" becomes a powerful message against caste discrimination and a call for social reform.

Important Points for Exams Autobiographical incident from Dr. B. R. Ambedkar's life Shows the harsh reality of caste discrimination Ambedkar and friends hire a bullock cart Cart driver becomes fearful when he learns they are 'untouchables' He jumps out and refuses to sit with them Ambedkar and friends forced to drive the cart themselves The dangerous crossing of the Kondgaon river The cart turns upside down in the water Shows humiliation, danger, and social injustice Caste system treated people as inferior Experience strengthens Ambedkar's fight for equality Essay's message: Human dignity and social reform are necessary

The Overcoat

THE OVERCOAT -NIKOLAI GOGOL

Answer the following :10m

Justify the Title of the Story “The Overcoat”

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol (1809–1852) was one of the greatest writers in Russian literature. He is famous for his realistic and satirical stories that describe the lives of ordinary people. His writings expose the problems of society, poverty, corruption, and injustice with a touch of humour and deep emotion. His famous works include Dead Souls, The Government Inspector, and The Overcoat. Gogol’s stories influenced many later writers.

Introduction to the Story – The Overcoat

The Overcoat is one of Gogol’s most famous short stories. It tells the story of Akaky Akakievich Bashmachkin, a poor government clerk who spends his life copying documents. He lives a lonely and simple life. His old overcoat becomes worn out, so he saves money for a new one. The new overcoat brings him happiness and respect, but it is stolen shortly after he buys it. The loss of the coat leads to his illness and death. Through this story, Gogol shows the hardships of poor people and the cruelty of society.

Justification of the Title

The title “The Overcoat” is very suitable because the overcoat is the central object around which the whole story revolves. At the beginning of the story, Akaky’s old coat is torn and cannot protect him from the severe winter. His tailor tells him that it cannot be repaired. This becomes the turning point in Akaky’s life. He decides to save every possible coin to buy a new overcoat. The overcoat becomes a symbol of hope, happiness, and dignity. Akaky sacrifices his comfort by eating less, walking carefully, and spending very little money. His dream is not wealth or luxury but simply owning a warm coat. When he finally gets the new overcoat, his life changes. His colleagues praise him and invite him to a party. For the first time, he feels respected and accepted. The overcoat gives him confidence and happiness. However, this happiness is short-lived. The overcoat is stolen by thieves while Akaky is returning home. The loss of the coat destroys his hopes and dreams. The authorities refuse to help him, and an important official treats him harshly. Akaky becomes ill and dies. After his death, his ghost is said to wander the streets, stealing overcoats from others. Even after death, the overcoat remains the centre of the story. The overcoat also has a symbolic meaning. It represents: Human dignity and self-respect. The dreams of poor people. Society’s respect based on appearance. The struggle for survival. The cruelty and injustice faced by ordinary people. Every important event in the story begins or ends with the overcoat. Without it, the story would not exist. It changes Akaky’s life, causes his suffering, and continues to influence the events even after his death.

Conclusion

The title “The Overcoat” is fully justified because the overcoat is not merely a piece of clothing. It is the heart of the story and a symbol of hope, identity, and human dignity. Gogol uses the overcoat to reveal the loneliness, poverty, and injustice experienced by ordinary people. Therefore, the title perfectly reflects the meaning and message of the story.

What Do You Think Is the Theme of the Story “The Overcoat”?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was one of the greatest masters of Russian literature. His stories focus on the lives of common people and criticize social injustice, corruption, and human selfishness. Through realistic characters and satire, Gogol highlights the problems of society. The Overcoat is regarded as one of his greatest literary achievements.

Introduction to the Story – The Overcoat

The Overcoat is a touching story about Akaky Akakievich Bashmachkin, a poor government clerk who leads a lonely life. He dreams of owning a new overcoat to protect himself from the cold. After many sacrifices, he buys one, but it is stolen. The loss of the coat leads to his illness and death. The story shows the suffering of poor people and the lack of kindness in society. Themes of the Story The main theme of The Overcoat is poverty and social injustice. Akaky is poor and works honestly, but he is ignored and insulted by everyone. His low salary does not allow him to live comfortably. His struggle to buy a simple overcoat shows how difficult life is for poor people. Another important theme is human dignity and respect. People do not value Akaky because he is poor and quiet. When he gets the new overcoat, everyone suddenly notices and respects him. This shows that society often judges people by their appearance rather than their character. The story also explores the theme of loneliness. Akaky has no close friends or family. His work is the only thing that gives him comfort. His lonely life makes his suffering even more painful. Dreams and hope form another major theme. Akaky’s dream of buying an overcoat gives meaning to his life. It motivates him to work hard and save money. Even a small dream can bring happiness to an ordinary person. The story also criticizes bureaucracy and corruption. When Akaky seeks help after the theft, government officials ignore him. Instead of showing sympathy, they insult him. Gogol criticizes a system that lacks humanity and justice. Another theme is the lack of compassion. The people around Akaky fail to understand his pain. They laugh at him, neglect him, and refuse to help him. Gogol reminds readers that kindness and sympathy are essential qualities. The supernatural ending introduces the theme of justice. After death, Akaky’s ghost steals overcoats from others, including an important official. This suggests that justice may come in unexpected ways when society fails to protect the weak. Finally, the story teaches the importance of human values. Money, position, and appearance should never be more important than kindness, honesty, and respect for others.

Conclusion

The main theme of The Overcoat is the suffering of ordinary people in an unfair society. Through Akaky's life, Gogol highlights poverty, loneliness, injustice, bureaucracy, and the need for compassion. The story teaches that every person deserves dignity and respect, regardless of wealth or social status. Its powerful themes make The Overcoat a timeless and meaningful work of literature.

Briefly Explain the Social Situation of Gogol's Time in Russia

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol (1809–1852) was one of the greatest writers in Russian literature. He wrote about the lives of ordinary people and criticized the social and political problems of Russia. Through his stories, Gogol exposed poverty, corruption, injustice, and the suffering of common people. His famous works include The Overcoat, Dead Souls, and The Government Inspector. His writings influenced many later Russian writers.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat is one of Gogol's most famous short stories. It tells the story of Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk who dreams of buying a new overcoat. The story not only describes his personal suffering but also presents the social conditions of Russia during the early nineteenth century. Gogol uses Akaky's life to show the hardships faced by ordinary people.

The Social Situation of Gogol's Time

During Gogol's lifetime, Russia had a strict social system. Society was divided into different classes. The rich and powerful people enjoyed a comfortable life, while the poor struggled for survival. Government officials had authority, and common people were often treated unfairly. One of the major problems was poverty. Many people worked hard but earned very little. Akaky is a good example of this. Although he works honestly as a government clerk, his salary is so low that he cannot even afford a new overcoat without years of saving. Another important feature of Russian society was the bureaucratic system. Government offices had many levels of authority. Junior clerks had little respect, while senior officers enjoyed power and privileges. People were judged by their rank rather than by their character. The society was also marked by social inequality. Wealthy people lived comfortably, while poor people lacked basic necessities. The rich ignored the problems of the poor. This difference between the rich and the poor created injustice and suffering. Corruption and misuse of power were common. Many officials were proud and arrogant. Instead of helping the poor, they cared only about maintaining their status. When Akaky seeks help after losing his overcoat, the important official insults him instead of helping him. Another social problem was the lack of human compassion. People laughed at the weak and ignored their suffering. Akaky becomes the target of jokes because of his simple nature. Only after he gets a new overcoat do his colleagues show him respect. The harsh Russian winter also affected poor people. Without warm clothing, survival became difficult. The overcoat in the story becomes a symbol of protection and human dignity. Gogol also criticizes a society where material possessions determine a person’s value. Akaky receives respect only after buying a new overcoat. This shows that people valued appearance more than goodness.

Conclusion

Gogol presents the social conditions of nineteenth-century Russia realistically. Through Akaky’s life, he shows poverty, inequality, bureaucracy, corruption, and lack of kindness. The Overcoat is not only the story of one poor clerk but also a criticism of an unjust society. Its message remains relevant even today because it teaches the importance of humanity, equality, and compassion.

How Does The Overcoat Bring Out the Poverty of Akaki?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was a famous Russian writer who described the struggles of ordinary people. His stories reveal the social problems of his time, especially poverty and injustice. He believed literature should expose the truth about society.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat tells the story of Akaky Akakievich, a poor clerk who lives a lonely and simple life. His greatest wish is to own a warm overcoat. Through his life and struggles, Gogol presents the reality of poverty and the difficulties faced by common people.

Poverty of Akaki

Akaky’s poverty is shown from the beginning of the story. He earns a very small salary and spends almost all of it on basic needs. He cannot afford good food, comfortable housing, or warm clothing. His old overcoat becomes so worn out that it can no longer protect him from the freezing winter. The tailor tells him that it is impossible to repair it. Buying a new coat becomes a huge financial burden. To save money, Akaky makes many sacrifices. He eats less food, avoids drinking tea, walks carefully to save his shoes, and does not spend money on unnecessary things. Every small coin is carefully saved for the overcoat. His room is small and poorly furnished. His simple lifestyle clearly reflects his financial condition. He has no luxury and no comfort. Akaky never complains about his poverty. He remains honest and hardworking despite all his difficulties. His patience and simplicity make readers feel sympathy for him. The overcoat becomes his greatest dream because it is not just clothing but protection from the cold. For a rich person, buying a coat may be easy, but for Akaky it requires months of sacrifice. Even after buying the coat, his happiness lasts only for a short time because thieves steal it. Losing the coat means losing all his savings, hopes, and happiness. The authorities fail to help him recover the overcoat. This shows how poor people are ignored by society and government officials. Gogol uses Akaky’s poverty to criticize a society where hardworking people suffer while the rich enjoy comfort and respect.

Conclusion

Through Akaky's life, Gogol realistically portrays poverty and human suffering. Akaky's sacrifices, simple lifestyle, and tragic loss make readers understand the pain of poverty. The Overcoat teaches us to respect every person, regardless of wealth or social status.

How Does Gogol Expose the Weaknesses of the Russian Bureaucracy of the Early Nineteenth Century?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol is well known for criticizing Russian society through satire and realism. He exposed corruption, pride, and injustice in government offices. His stories encourage readers to think about social reform.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat is not only a story about a poor clerk but also a powerful criticism of the Russian government system. Gogol uses Akaky's experiences to expose the faults of bureaucracy.

Weaknesses of the Russian Bureaucracy

The government offices are shown as places where rank is more important than humanity. People are respected according to their position, not because of their character. Akaky works honestly for many years, yet nobody appreciates his service. His colleagues make fun of him instead of encouraging him. When Akaky loses his overcoat, he goes to an important official expecting justice. Instead of helping him, the official scolds and humiliates him. This shows the arrogance of people in power. The bureaucracy is shown as slow and insensitive. Officials follow rules without caring about human suffering. They lack kindness and compassion. The important official is proud of his authority. He wants others to fear him rather than respect him. His behaviour reflects the misuse of power. Gogol also criticizes the system of promotions and titles. Higher-ranking officers expect respect even when they do not deserve it. Ordinary people like Akaky have no voice in society. Their problems are ignored because they have no influence or power. The death of Akaky after being insulted by the important official shows the tragic consequences of an uncaring government. Through satire, Gogol reveals that bureaucracy without humanity becomes cruel and unjust.

Conclusion

Gogol presents the Russian bureaucracy as proud, corrupt, and insensitive. Through Akaky's suffering, he shows how government officials fail to protect ordinary citizens. The story teaches that power should be used with kindness, responsibility, and justice.

Trace the Circumstances Leading to Akaki Meeting the Important Person (Royal Personage)

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was a master storyteller who combined realism with satire. His works highlight the struggles of ordinary people and criticize social injustice. The Overcoat remains one of his finest works.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The story follows the life of Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk. His greatest happiness comes from buying a new overcoat, but this joy soon turns into tragedy when the coat is stolen. This incident finally leads him to seek help from an important government official.

Circumstances Leading to the Meeting

After months of saving money, Akaky finally buys a new overcoat. His colleagues congratulate him and invite him to a celebration. For the first time in his life, he feels respected and happy. While returning home late at night from the party, Akaky is attacked by thieves. They beat him and steal his new overcoat. The next morning, Akaky reports the theft to the police, but they show little interest in helping him. Some people advise him to approach an important official who has the authority to help recover the coat. Believing this advice, Akaky goes to meet the official. The important official is proud of his high rank. Instead of listening to Akaky's problem, he becomes angry because Akaky did not follow the proper official procedure. He shouts at Akaky and humiliates him. The poor clerk becomes frightened and leaves the office deeply upset. The insult affects Akaky both mentally and physically. Soon afterwards, he falls seriously ill with fever. Because of his illness and disappointment, Akaky dies a few days later. His tragic end shows how a lack of compassion and abuse of authority can destroy an innocent person's life.

Conclusion

Akaky meets the important official only because he hopes to recover his stolen overcoat. Instead of receiving justice, he is insulted and rejected. Gogol uses this incident to criticize the arrogance of powerful officials and the failure of the bureaucratic system. The episode becomes the turning point that leads to Akaky's tragic death.

Comment on the Differences Between the Old Overcoat and the New Overcoat

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol (1809–1852) was one of the greatest writers of Russian literature. He wrote realistic stories about the lives of ordinary people and criticized social inequality, poverty, and bureaucracy. His famous work The Overcoat remains one of the finest short stories in world literature.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat tells the story of Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk whose greatest dream is to own a warm overcoat. The old and the new overcoats are not just pieces of clothing; they symbolize Akaky's life before and after his dream comes true.

Differences Between the Old and the New Overcoat

The old overcoat is worn out, torn, faded, and full of patches. It is so damaged that it cannot protect Akaky from the severe winter. His tailor, Petrovich, tells him that repairing it is useless because the cloth has become too weak. The new overcoat, on the other hand, is beautifully stitched with strong cloth and a warm collar. It protects Akaky from the cold and makes him feel comfortable and confident. The old overcoat represents poverty, loneliness, suffering, and neglect. People laugh at Akaky because of his shabby appearance. He is ignored by his colleagues and treated without respect. The new overcoat represents hope, happiness, self-respect, and a new beginning. After wearing it, Akaky receives compliments from his colleagues. They congratulate him and even arrange a party in his honour. For the first time, he experiences joy and social acceptance. The old overcoat reminds readers of Akaky's miserable life, while the new overcoat gives him a sense of pride and dignity. However, the happiness brought by the new overcoat lasts only for a short time. It is stolen by thieves on the very first night after the celebration. This tragic event destroys Akaky's hopes and leads to his illness and death. Thus, the two overcoats symbolize two different stages of Akaky's life—one filled with hardship and the other with brief happiness.

Conclusion

The old and new overcoats are powerful symbols in the story. The old coat reflects poverty and suffering, while the new coat represents hope and dignity. Through this contrast, Gogol shows how even a small possession can completely change a poor person's life.

Who Stole Akaky's Overcoat and For What Reason?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was famous for exposing the problems of Russian society through realistic stories. In The Overcoat, he highlights poverty, injustice, and the lack of compassion among people.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The story follows Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk who works hard to buy a new overcoat. Sadly, his happiness ends when the overcoat is stolen.

Who Stole the Overcoat and Why?

After buying the new overcoat, Akaky is invited to a party by his colleagues. He happily attends the celebration and returns home late at night. While walking through a lonely street, he is suddenly stopped by two unknown thieves. They threaten him, push him to the ground, and steal his new overcoat. The thieves steal the coat because it is valuable and newly made. In those days, a warm overcoat was expensive and could easily be sold for money or used during the cold winter. Their only motive is greed. After the robbery, Akaky cries for help, but nobody comes to save him. A nearby policeman arrives too late and is unable to catch the thieves. The next day, Akaky reports the theft, but the police do not make serious efforts to recover the coat. This shows the carelessness and inefficiency of the authorities. The loss of the overcoat deeply affects Akaky because it represents all his savings, sacrifices, and dreams. Without it, he loses hope and becomes seriously ill. The theft is the turning point of the story. It leads to Akaky's meeting with the important official, his illness, his death, and finally the appearance of his ghost.

Conclusion

The overcoat is stolen by two unknown thieves for money and personal gain. Their selfish act destroys Akaky's happiness and changes the course of his life. Gogol uses this incident to show the insecurity, injustice, and suffering faced by poor people.

Briefly Explain the Grotesque and Strange Qualities of Akaky's Character

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was a master of realism mixed with satire and the grotesque. His characters often appear unusual, but they represent deeper truths about human life and society.

Introduction to The Overcoat

Akaky Akakievich is one of the most unforgettable characters in literature. Though he seems strange and humorous at first, Gogol gradually reveals his innocence, loneliness, and humanity.

Grotesque and Strange Qualities of Akaky

Akaky lives a very unusual life. He has no interest in entertainment, wealth, or social status. His only happiness is copying official documents. He rarely speaks to anyone except when necessary. He is shy, quiet, and avoids arguments. His simple nature makes him appear strange to others. Akaky is completely devoted to his work. Even after office hours, he enjoys copying documents at home. This unusual habit makes him different from ordinary people. His appearance is also odd. He wears old clothes, walks quietly, and pays little attention to his personal appearance. His colleagues laugh at him because he never reacts with anger. Instead, he silently tolerates insults and continues his work peacefully. The greatest change in his life comes when he dreams of owning a new overcoat. His excitement over such a simple thing may seem unusual, but it reflects the hardships of a poor man's life. After his death, Akaky's ghost wanders through the streets stealing overcoats. This supernatural transformation adds another grotesque element to his character. Although Akaky appears strange, he is kind, honest, hardworking, and innocent. Readers sympathize with him because he never harms anyone.

Conclusion

Akaky's strange habits and simple lifestyle make him a grotesque character, but his honesty and innocence make him lovable. Gogol uses his unusual personality to criticize a society that laughs at the weak instead of helping them.

Explain How Akaky Began to Trouble People Even After His Death

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol combined realism with supernatural elements in his stories. In The Overcoat, he uses a ghost story to deliver a powerful message about justice and human dignity.

Introduction to The Overcoat

After losing his new overcoat and being insulted by an important official, Akaky becomes ill and dies. However, the story does not end with his death.

Akaky After His Death

Soon after Akaky's death, strange rumours spread throughout the city. People claim that a ghost is wandering through the streets at night. The ghost resembles Akaky. It stops people and snatches their overcoats, regardless of their social position. Many citizens become frightened because the ghost appears unexpectedly and disappears just as quickly. One night, the ghost meets the important official who had insulted Akaky when he asked for help. The ghost forcibly takes away the official's expensive overcoat. This incident frightens the official and makes him realize his mistake. After this experience, the official becomes kinder and more respectful towards other people. Soon afterwards, the ghost disappears, suggesting that Akaky's spirit has finally found peace after receiving justice. The supernatural ending symbolizes the victory of justice over cruelty. Since society failed to protect Akaky during his lifetime, justice comes through his ghost after death.

Conclusion

Even after his death, Akaky continues to influence society through his ghost. By stealing overcoats, he reminds people of the suffering of the poor and the importance of kindness. Gogol uses the supernatural ending to show that injustice can never escape its consequences.

Trace the Circumstances Leading to Akaki Ordering a New Overcoat

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol (1809–1852) was a great Russian writer who wrote about the struggles of ordinary people. His stories criticize poverty, social inequality, and the harsh bureaucratic system. The Overcoat is one of his greatest works.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat tells the story of Akaky Akakievich, a poor government clerk whose simple dream is to own a warm overcoat. His journey from saving money to buying the coat forms the central plot of the story.

Circumstances Leading to the New Overcoat

Akaky works as a government clerk and earns only a small salary. His old overcoat has become old, torn, and full of patches. It no longer protects him from the severe Russian winter. One day, he takes the old coat to the tailor, Petrovich, hoping it can be repaired. After carefully examining it, Petrovich says the cloth is too weak and that repairing it is impossible. He advises Akaky to buy a completely new overcoat. At first, Akaky is shocked because a new coat is very expensive. He does not have enough money. However, after thinking carefully, he decides to save every possible coin. He begins to live a life of strict economy. He eats less food, avoids unnecessary expenses, walks carefully to save his shoes, and even avoids using candles whenever possible. Gradually, he saves enough money. He also receives a small bonus from his office, which helps him complete the amount needed. Finally, Akaky and Petrovich purchase good-quality cloth and prepare a beautiful overcoat. When the coat is completed, Akaky feels happier than ever before. The decision to order the new overcoat marks a turning point in his life. It fills him with hope, confidence, and excitement.

Conclusion

Akaky orders a new overcoat because his old one cannot be repaired. His determination, sacrifice, and patience help him achieve his dream. Gogol uses this event to show how even a small dream can become the greatest happiness for a poor person.

What Were Akaki’s First-Day Experiences Wearing the New Overcoat in the Office?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol is known for portraying the lives of ordinary people with sympathy and realism. His stories reveal both the joys and sorrows of human life.

Introduction to The Overcoat

After months of sacrifice, Akaky finally buys his dream overcoat. The first day he wears it becomes one of the happiest days of his life.

Akaky’s First-Day Experiences

When Akaky reaches the office wearing his new overcoat, his colleagues immediately notice the change. They gather around him, admire the coat, and congratulate him warmly. For the first time, Akaky receives attention and respect from everyone. People who had ignored him now speak kindly to him. His colleagues decide to celebrate the occasion. One of the officers invites everyone, including Akaky, to a party in the evening. Akaky feels proud and happy. The new overcoat gives him confidence and makes him feel like a respected member of society. At the party, he enjoys the company of others, something he had never experienced before. It is a completely new experience in his otherwise lonely life. Late at night, he leaves the party and begins walking home. Unfortunately, while passing through a lonely street, he is attacked by two thieves who steal his precious overcoat. Thus, the happiest day of Akaky's life ends in great tragedy.

Conclusion

The first day with the new overcoat brings Akaky respect, happiness, and acceptance. However, the joy lasts only for a short time because the overcoat is stolen. Gogol shows how quickly happiness can disappear in the life of a poor man.

Briefly Explain the Use of the Supernatural in The Overcoat

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol often combined realism with fantasy and supernatural elements. This unique style made his stories both interesting and meaningful.

Introduction to The Overcoat

Most of The Overcoat is realistic, but the ending introduces a supernatural element. Gogol uses this technique to strengthen the message of justice and compassion.

Use of the Supernatural

After Akaky dies because of illness and sorrow, strange stories spread throughout the city. People say that his ghost appears at night. The ghost roams the streets, stopping people and stealing their overcoats. It frightens citizens and creates fear throughout the city. The most important incident occurs when the ghost meets the important official who had insulted Akaky. The ghost snatches the official's expensive overcoat and disappears. This event changes the official. He becomes kinder and more considerate towards others. The ghost symbolizes justice. During his lifetime, Akaky received no help or sympathy. After death, his spirit achieves the justice that society denied him. The supernatural ending also adds mystery, suspense, and emotional impact to the story.

Conclusion

The supernatural element in The Overcoat is not merely for entertainment. It symbolizes justice, revenge, and moral awakening. Gogol uses the ghost to remind readers that cruelty and injustice always have consequences.

How Does Akaki Convince the Tailor of the Need to Stitch a New Overcoat?

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol was a great writer who portrayed the hardships of ordinary people. His characters are simple but deeply human.

Introduction to The Overcoat

One of the most important scenes in The Overcoat is Akaky's visit to the tailor Petrovich. This meeting changes the course of his life.

Akaky and the Tailor

When Akaky notices that his old overcoat has become worn out, he visits the tailor Petrovich, hoping that it can be repaired. Petrovich carefully examines the coat and declares that it is beyond repair. The cloth is too weak, and any attempt to mend it would be useless. Akaky repeatedly requests the tailor to repair the old coat because he cannot afford a new one. He even offers a small amount of money, hoping Petrovich will agree. However, Petrovich firmly refuses. He explains that repairing the old coat would only waste money because it would soon tear again. Gradually, Akaky realizes that buying a new overcoat is the only practical solution. Petrovich helps him choose the cloth and plans the stitching carefully. Although Akaky is worried about the cost, he finally accepts the tailor's advice and begins saving money. The tailor's honesty and skill encourage Akaky to order a new overcoat instead of wasting money on repairs.

Conclusion

Akaky first tries to repair his old coat, but Petrovich convinces him that a new one is necessary. This decision becomes the turning point in the story and leads to both Akaky's greatest happiness and his greatest tragedy.

Briefly Explain the Class Struggle in The Overcoat

Introduction to the Author – Nikolai Gogol

Nikolai Gogol is famous for exposing social inequality through his writings. He believed literature should speak for ordinary people and criticize injustice.

Introduction to The Overcoat

The Overcoat is not only the story of one poor clerk but also a powerful picture of class differences in nineteenth-century Russia.

Class Struggle in The Overcoat

The story clearly shows the gap between the rich and the poor. Akaky belongs to the lower class. He earns a small salary and struggles to meet even his basic needs. In contrast, senior government officials enjoy wealth, comfort, and respect. Society values them because of their rank and position. Akaky is often mocked by his colleagues because he is poor and timid. His opinions are ignored, and nobody treats him with dignity. After buying the new overcoat, people suddenly respect him. This shows that society judges people by their appearance and possessions rather than by their character. The important official represents the upper class. He misuses his authority and humiliates Akaky instead of helping him. This incident highlights the injustice faced by poor people. The theft of the overcoat also reflects the insecurity of the lower class. Akaky loses everything because he has no power or influence. Even after Akaky's death, the ghost taking the important official's overcoat symbolizes a reversal of social power. It suggests that justice can challenge class inequality. Through these incidents, Gogol criticizes a society divided by wealth, status, and power.

Conclusion

The class struggle in The Overcoat is shown through the contrast between the rich and the poor. Gogol exposes social inequality, misuse of authority, and the lack of respect for ordinary people. He teaches that every human being deserves dignity, kindness, and equal treatment regardless of social class.

SHORT NOTES : 5 marks each

Akaki’s Office

Introduction

Akaky Akakievich works as a low-ranking government clerk in a government office in St. Petersburg. His office is the place where he spends most of his life. Gogol uses the office to show the dull and mechanical life of ordinary clerks in nineteenth-century Russia.

Akaki’s Office

The office is simple and ordinary. Akaky’s main duty is copying official documents. He performs this work with great care and accuracy. Unlike other employees, he never complains about his job. Most of Akaky’s colleagues do not respect him. They make fun of his old clothes, his quiet nature, and his simple lifestyle. They tease him and often treat him as if he is unimportant. However, Akaky never argues with them. He remains patient and continues his work. For Akaky, the office is not just a workplace; it is his whole world. He enjoys copying documents so much that he even copies papers at home. He finds happiness in his work and never dreams of promotion or power. After Akaky gets his new overcoat, the atmosphere in the office changes. His colleagues congratulate him and admire the overcoat. They even arrange a party to celebrate his new coat. This is the only time Akaky receives respect and attention from others. The office also represents the rigid bureaucratic system of Russia, where people are judged by their rank rather than by their character.

Conclusion

Akaky’s office reflects the monotonous life of government clerks. It also shows how society ignores honest and hardworking people while giving importance only to status and appearance.

Petrovich, the Tailor

Introduction

Petrovich is the tailor who stitches Akaky’s new overcoat. Though he is a minor character, he plays an important role because he changes the course of Akaky’s life.

Petrovich

Petrovich is an experienced tailor. He is skilled in his profession and takes pride in his work. He is sometimes stubborn and insists on doing things properly. When Akaky brings his old overcoat for repair, Petrovich carefully examines it. He tells Akaky that the coat is beyond repair and advises him to buy a new one. At first, Akaky is disappointed because he cannot afford a new coat. But Petrovich does not change his opinion. He honestly believes that stitching a new coat is the only solution. Petrovich helps Akaky choose good cloth and stitches the overcoat with great care. The finished overcoat is beautiful and becomes the source of Akaky’s greatest happiness. Although Petrovich charges money for his work, he is not dishonest. He values quality and wants to make a strong and durable overcoat. Petrovich represents hardworking craftsmen who earn their living through skill and dedication.

Conclusion

Petrovich is an honest and talented tailor. His decision to stitch a new overcoat changes Akaky's life completely. Without Petrovich, the main events of the story would not have taken place.

Narrative Technique in The Overcoat

Introduction

Nikolai Gogol uses a unique narrative style in The Overcoat. His storytelling combines realism, humour, satire, irony, and the supernatural.

Narrative Technique

The story is written in the third-person narration. The narrator knows everything about the characters and describes their thoughts and feelings. Gogol uses realistic descriptions to present the life of Akaky and the social conditions of Russia. The details make the story believable. He also uses satire to criticize government offices, bureaucracy, and the pride of officials. Through humour, he exposes serious social problems. Another important technique is irony. Akaky finally achieves his dream of owning a new overcoat, but he loses it on the very same day. His greatest happiness becomes the cause of his greatest sorrow. The story ends with a supernatural element. Akaky's ghost wandering through the streets creates mystery and symbolizes justice. Gogol also uses symbolism. The overcoat itself represents hope, dignity, protection, and human self-respect. His language is simple but expressive. He mixes humour with sadness, making readers both smile and sympathize with Akaky.

Conclusion

Gogol's narrative technique makes The Overcoat a memorable story. By combining realism, satire, irony, symbolism, and the supernatural, he creates a powerful criticism of society while telling a touching human story.

Akaki at the Party

Introduction

The office party is one of the happiest moments in Akaky's life. It shows the brief period of joy that he experiences after buying his new overcoat.

Akaki at the Party

After seeing Akaky's new overcoat, his colleagues congratulate him warmly. One of them invites everyone to a party to celebrate the occasion. Akaky is shy and not used to attending social gatherings. At first, he hesitates, but later he decides to go. At the party, he enjoys good food, conversation, and the company of his colleagues. For the first time in his life, he feels accepted and respected. The new overcoat gives him confidence. People who had once ignored him now speak kindly to him. However, the party lasts until late at night. While returning home through lonely streets, Akaky is attacked by thieves who steal his new overcoat. Thus, the party becomes the turning point in the story. It begins with happiness but ends in tragedy.

Conclusion

Akaky's experience at the party shows his brief moment of joy and social acceptance. Unfortunately, this happiness is short-lived, as the theft of the overcoat changes his life forever.

(e) St. Petersburg's Cold

Introduction

In The Overcoat, the cold winter of St. Petersburg is not just part of the setting. It plays an important role in the story. Gogol uses the severe cold to show the hardships faced by poor people like Akaky.

St. Petersburg's Cold

St. Petersburg is famous for its long and freezing winters. The cold wind is so strong that people find it difficult to walk on the streets. Gogol describes the weather in detail to make readers understand the suffering of ordinary people. Akaky is a poor government clerk who has only an old and torn overcoat. His coat cannot protect him from the freezing cold. Every day, while walking to the office, he suffers from the cold wind. The severe winter forces Akaky to think about buying a new overcoat. His old coat has become too thin and worn out. Without a warm coat, he cannot continue his daily life comfortably. The cold also symbolizes the hardness and cruelty of society. Just as the winter is harsh, the people around Akaky are also cold-hearted. His colleagues laugh at him, and government officials refuse to help him. After his new overcoat is stolen, Akaky once again has to face the freezing weather. Without proper protection, he falls seriously ill with fever, which eventually leads to his death. Thus, the cold is not only a natural condition but also a symbol of poverty, loneliness, and human suffering.

Conclusion

The cold of St. Petersburg is an important symbol in the story. It creates the need for the overcoat and reflects the harsh realities of life. Gogol uses the winter to emphasize the difficulties faced by poor people and the lack of compassion in society.

(f) The Person of Consequence (The Important Official)

Introduction

The Person of Consequence, also called the Important Person, is one of the major characters in The Overcoat. Though he appears only for a short time, his behaviour greatly influences the tragic ending of the story.

The Person of Consequence

The Important Person is a high-ranking government official. He is proud of his position and expects everyone to treat him with great respect. He believes that his authority makes him superior to others. When Akaky's new overcoat is stolen, he goes to this official hoping for help. Instead of listening to Akaky's problem, the official becomes angry because Akaky has not followed the proper official procedure. He shouts at Akaky, insults him, and frightens him. The poor clerk leaves the office deeply hurt and disappointed. The official's behaviour represents the arrogance and pride of the Russian bureaucracy. He cares more about his authority than about helping a helpless man. After Akaky dies, his ghost appears and steals the Important Person's overcoat. This incident frightens the official and changes his attitude. He becomes kinder and more sympathetic towards others. Thus, Gogol shows that even powerful people can learn the value of kindness.

Conclusion

The Person of Consequence represents the proud and insensitive bureaucracy of nineteenth-century Russia. Through this character, Gogol criticizes the misuse of power and teaches that authority should always be accompanied by compassion.

(g) Reception of Akaky's New Overcoat

Introduction

The arrival of Akaky's new overcoat is one of the happiest moments in The Overcoat. It completely changes the way people treat him.

Reception of the New Overcoat

After months of saving money, Akaky finally receives his new overcoat from Petrovich. He proudly wears it to the office. As soon as he enters the office, his colleagues notice the beautiful overcoat. They gather around him, admire its quality, and congratulate him warmly. For the first time in his life, Akaky becomes the centre of attention. People who had previously ignored him now speak politely and show him respect. His colleagues decide that such a wonderful occasion should be celebrated. One of the officers invites everyone to a party in honour of Akaky's new overcoat. Akaky feels happy, proud, and confident. The overcoat gives him a new identity and a sense of belonging. However, this joyful reception is short-lived. While returning home from the party, thieves steal the overcoat. The same object that brought him happiness soon becomes the cause of his sorrow. Gogol uses this incident to show that society often judges people by their appearance and possessions rather than by their true character.

Conclusion

The reception of Akaky's new overcoat shows how quickly people's attitudes can change. The overcoat earns him respect and friendship, but this respect disappears with the loss of the coat. Gogol criticizes a society that values appearance more than humanity.

(h) Loss of Akaki’s New Overcoat

Introduction

The loss of Akaki's new overcoat is the most important event in The Overcoat. It changes his life from happiness to sorrow and leads to the tragic ending of the story.

Loss of Akaki's New Overcoat

After many months of saving money, Akaki finally buys a new overcoat. It is the happiest moment of his life. His colleagues admire the coat and invite him to a party to celebrate. Akaki attends the party and enjoys the company of his colleagues. It is the first time he feels respected and accepted by society.

Late at night, while returning home through a lonely street, two thieves suddenly stop him. They threaten him, throw him to the ground, and steal his new overcoat. Akaki cries for help, but no one comes to save him. The next day, he goes to the police to report the theft, but they do not show much interest. Later, he seeks help from the Important Person, hoping to recover his overcoat. Instead of helping him, the official insults and humiliates him. The loss of the overcoat deeply affects Akaki. He becomes sad, helpless, and hopeless. Soon he falls seriously ill with fever and dies. The loss of the overcoat symbolizes the loss of hope, dignity, happiness, and security. It also shows how cruel society can be towards poor and helpless people.

Conclusion

The theft of Akaki's overcoat is the turning point of the story. It destroys all his dreams and leads to his death. Through this incident, Gogol criticizes the injustice and lack of compassion in society.

The Philosophy Behind The Overcoat

Introduction

The Overcoat is not just a story about a poor clerk and his coat. It contains a deep philosophy about life, society, human dignity, and compassion. Gogol uses Akaki's life to teach valuable lessons.

The Philosophy Behind the Story

One of the main ideas of the story is that every human being deserves respect. Akaki is poor and ordinary, but he is honest, hardworking, and harmless. Society ignores him because of his low position, showing that people often judge others by their wealth and status instead of their character. The overcoat symbolizes hope and self-respect. For Akaki, it is more than clothing. It gives him confidence, happiness, and acceptance in society. The story also teaches that small dreams can bring great happiness. Akaki's dream is simple—to own a warm overcoat. This dream gives purpose and meaning to his life. Gogol also criticizes bureaucracy and misuse of power. The Important Person fails to help Akaki because he is proud of his position. The story reminds us that people in authority should serve others with kindness. Another important message is the need for compassion. If Akaki had received sympathy and help, his tragic death might have been avoided. The supernatural ending suggests that justice finally triumphs. Although Akaki suffers during his lifetime, his ghost forces the Important Person to realize his mistake.

Conclusion

The philosophy of The Overcoat teaches us to value humanity, kindness, equality, and justice. Gogol reminds readers that true greatness lies not in wealth or power but in compassion and respect for others.

Akaki’s Likes and Dislikes

Introduction

Akaki Akakievich is the central character of The Overcoat. He is a simple, honest, and hardworking man with very few desires. His likes and dislikes reveal his gentle personality.

Akaki’s Likes

Akaki loves copying official documents. He performs his work with great care and accuracy. Copying gives him satisfaction and peace of mind. He likes a quiet and simple life. He does not enjoy luxury, entertainment, or unnecessary spending. He is happy with whatever he has. Akaki also likes discipline and regularity. He follows the same daily routine without complaint. After deciding to buy a new overcoat, he becomes deeply interested in everything related to it. He enjoys saving money, discussing the cloth with Petrovich, and imagining how the new coat will look. He values honesty, hard work, and simplicity more than wealth or social status.

Akaki’s Dislikes

Akaki dislikes unnecessary arguments and conflicts. Whenever his colleagues tease him, he does not fight or take revenge. He dislikes wasteful spending because his income is very small. He avoids buying unnecessary things and lives carefully. He dislikes the harsh winter because his old overcoat cannot protect him from the cold. He also dislikes being disturbed while doing his work. Copying documents is his greatest pleasure, and he prefers a peaceful environment. Although he is often insulted, he never develops hatred toward others. His dislikes are simple and natural, showing his innocent nature.

Conclusion

Akaki’s likes and dislikes reflect his humble and gentle personality. He finds happiness in honest work and a peaceful life. Gogol uses his character to show that true contentment comes from simplicity, not from wealth or power.

Kirubunkal

KIRUBUNKAL – RAVIKUMAR NEHA

Answer the following questions: 10m

What is a folktale? How far is Kirubunkal a folktale?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha is a well-known contemporary Kannada writer. His writings beautifully combine folklore, myths, history, and modern life. He presents ordinary village life in an interesting way and gives importance to the oral storytelling tradition of Karnataka. Kirubunkal is a modern Kannada novella based on the life and beliefs of rural people. The story combines traditional folktales with modern narration. Through the characters and stories, the author shows how folklore continues to influence people's lives and culture.

What is a Folktale?

A folktale is a traditional story passed from one generation to another by word of mouth. These stories belong to the common people and reflect their customs, beliefs, values, and imagination. Folktales usually include kings, queens, animals, spirits, magical events, heroes, and wise old people. They entertain people and also teach moral lessons. Folktales do not usually have one known author because they are created and preserved by the community. Every generation may add or change some parts of the story. Kirubunkal as a Folktale Kirubunkal has many qualities of a folktale. First, the story is based on oral storytelling. Characters narrate stories that they have heard from their elders. This shows how stories travel from one generation to another. Secondly, the novella contains myths, legends, and village beliefs. These stories are connected with local traditions and cultural practices. The people believe in old customs and supernatural powers. Another important feature is the presence of Hirikateyajji, who represents the traditional storyteller. She preserves the old tales and shares them with the younger generation. Through her, the ancient culture remains alive. The language of the novella is also simple and close to everyday speech. The storytelling style resembles the way elders narrate stories in villages. The characters respect nature, traditions, and community life, which are common themes in folktales.

Modern Elements

Although Kirubunkal has many features of a folktale, it is also a modern novella. Ravikumar Neha uses modern narration, realistic characters, and psychological depth. The story discusses modern issues such as changing lifestyles, identity, and the influence of urban culture. The author does not simply repeat old stories but interprets them in a modern way.

Conclusion

Thus, Kirubunkal is largely a folk tale in spirit because it preserves oral traditions, village culture, myths, and legends. At the same time, it is a modern literary work that connects traditional folklore with present-day life. Ravikumar Neha successfully keeps the rich heritage of folklore alive through this novella.

Show how Ravikumar Neha combines the elements of two traditions in his story Kirubunkal.

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha is an important Kannada writer who skillfully blends traditional folklore with modern literature. His novella Kirubunkal reflects both the rich cultural heritage of villages and the changing world of modern society. Two Traditions in Kirubunkal The two traditions in the novella are: The traditional folk culture The modern way of thinking The author combines these two traditions throughout the story.

Folk Tradition

The traditional side is seen through oral storytelling, myths, village customs, beliefs, and legends. Characters like Hirikateyajji preserve ancient stories and pass them to younger generations. These stories show the wisdom and values of village life. The people respect elders, nature, and cultural traditions. Festivals, rituals, and local beliefs are important parts of their lives.

Modern Tradition

The modern side is represented by educated people who question old beliefs. Characters like Seena want to appear modern and fashionable. They are influenced by city life, modern education, and new ideas. Modern thinking brings curiosity, scientific ideas, and changing lifestyles.

Combination of Both Traditions

Ravikumar Neha never presents one tradition as completely right or wrong. Instead, he brings both together. The folk stories become meaningful even in modern society because they preserve cultural identity. Modern thinking helps people understand life differently without rejecting the past completely. The author uses modern literary techniques while telling traditional stories. This makes the novella unique and attractive to modern readers. The storytelling itself becomes a bridge between the past and the present. Importance This combination teaches readers that society grows by respecting both tradition and progress. Old stories help people understand their roots, while modern ideas help them face the future.

Conclusion

Kirubunkal successfully combines folk tradition with modern literature. Ravikumar Neha shows that both traditions are necessary for a balanced society. The novella celebrates cultural heritage while accepting social change.

What is Seena’s obsession in life? What are his methods to appear modern and fashionable?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal explores the conflict between traditional village life and modern culture. One of the important characters is Seena, who represents young people influenced by modern fashion and urban lifestyle.

Seena’s Obsession

Seena is deeply obsessed with becoming modern and fashionable. He wants others to admire him. He believes that dressing well and following modern trends will increase his social status. He is more interested in his outward appearance than in preserving traditional values. Seena wishes to be different from ordinary village people. He dreams of living like educated city people. Methods to Appear Modern Seena follows many methods to look fashionable. He wears modern clothes instead of traditional dress. He carefully styles his hair and pays great attention to his appearance. He uses modern accessories to impress others. He copies the behavior, language, and habits of city people. He tries to speak stylishly and behave confidently in front of others. He often ignores old customs because he thinks they are outdated. His actions are mainly aimed at gaining attention and respect from society.

Character Analysis

Although Seena appears modern from outside, he still belongs to the traditional village community. His desire for fashion reflects the influence of globalization and changing social values. The author uses Seena to show how many young people struggle between tradition and modernity. Seena’s obsession also suggests that external appearance alone cannot bring true happiness or identity. Real development comes through knowledge, good character, and respect for one’s cultural roots.

Conclusion

Seena represents modern youth who are attracted to fashion and urban culture. His obsession with appearance creates a contrast with the traditional values presented in the novella. Ravikumar Neha uses his character to show the changing face of society and the need to balance modernity with cultural identity.

How do tales travel? What is the tale of Hirikateyajji?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal celebrates the rich oral tradition of Karnataka. The novella shows how stories connect generations and preserve culture. One of the most memorable characters is Hirikateyajji, the elderly storyteller.

How Do Tales Travel?

Tales travel mainly through oral tradition. Grandparents tell stories to children. Parents share stories with their families. Storytellers narrate tales during village gatherings and festivals. Travellers carry stories from one place to another. As stories move from one generation to another, small changes are added, but the main message remains the same. In this way, folktales survive for hundreds of years. The author shows that stories are not just entertainment. They preserve history, culture, values, and collective memory.

The Tale of Hirikateyajji

Hirikateyajji is an old woman who knows many ancient stories. She becomes the guardian of traditional knowledge. Her stories are filled with imagination, village history, beliefs, heroes, and moral lessons. She tells stories naturally, just as elders have done for centuries. Through her storytelling, children and young people learn about their ancestors and cultural traditions. Hirikateyajji symbolizes the living memory of the village. Even though modern life is changing rapidly, her stories continue to inspire people. She reminds everyone that culture survives only when stories are remembered and shared.

Importance of Hirikateyajji

Hirikateyajji represents the voice of tradition. She connects the past with the present. Her storytelling protects the cultural heritage of the community. The author respects her wisdom and shows that oral literature is as valuable as written literature.

Conclusion

Tales travel through oral storytelling from one generation to another. Hirikateyajji is the symbol of this living tradition. Through her character, Ravikumar Neha highlights the importance of preserving folklore, cultural memory, and the wisdom of the elders. Kirubunkal reminds readers that stories are the true treasure of every society.

What makes Hirikateyajji come to the conclusion, “The fort of tales must grow”?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha is a famous contemporary Kannada writer. His works focus on village life, folklore, oral traditions, and the changing values of modern society. He combines imagination with reality and presents the richness of Karnataka’s cultural heritage. Kirubunkal is a novella that celebrates the importance of storytelling. It shows how folktales preserve the history, culture, and identity of a community. Through the character of Hirikateyajji, the author highlights the value of oral tradition. Hirikateyajji is the oldest storyteller in the village. She has spent her life listening to and narrating stories. She believes that stories are the greatest wealth of a community. As she grows old, she notices that the younger generation is becoming more interested in modern life than in traditional tales. They spend less time listening to elders and more time following new ways of living. This worries Hirikateyajji. She realizes that if stories are forgotten, people will also forget their culture, traditions, and ancestors. Therefore, she says, “The fort of tales must grow.” The “fort of tales” is a symbol of the rich collection of stories that protect the identity of the village. Just as a fort protects people from enemies, stories protect society from losing its culture and values. Hirikateyajji encourages everyone to collect, remember, and share stories. Every new story strengthens this symbolic fort. She believes that storytelling should continue from one generation to another. Her statement also suggests that stories bring people together. They teach moral values, entertain listeners, and preserve the wisdom of the past. Ravikumar Neha uses this idea to remind readers that modern development should not destroy traditional culture.

Conclusion

Hirikateyajji concludes that “The fort of tales must grow” because stories preserve the identity, culture, and memory of the community. Through her, the author emphasizes the importance of protecting folklore for future generations.

How is the Puranapunya tale different from the other tales of the village? Account for its aloofness.

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha is a modern Kannada writer who skillfully blends folklore with modern storytelling. His novella Kirubunkal presents various tales that reflect the beliefs and traditions of village life. The Puranapunya tale is different from the other village tales because it is more serious, sacred, and connected with religion. Most village stories are simple folk tales filled with imagination, entertainment, village experiences, and local beliefs. They are told freely by villagers during gatherings. The Puranapunya tale, however, comes from ancient religious traditions and sacred legends. It carries spiritual meaning and teaches moral values. Unlike ordinary tales, it is treated with great respect. People listen to it with devotion rather than for entertainment. Its aloofness comes from its sacred nature. It stands apart from other stories because it deals with divine characters, religious beliefs, and spiritual wisdom. The villagers do not change or alter this tale as much as they change ordinary folktales. It remains more fixed and traditional. Ravikumar Neha uses this contrast to show that every society has different kinds of stories. Some entertain people, while others guide them spiritually. The Puranapunya tale reminds readers that folklore includes both religious and secular traditions.

Conclusion

The Puranapunya tale is unique because of its sacred and religious nature. Its aloofness reflects its spiritual importance. Through this tale, Ravikumar Neha shows the diversity of storytelling traditions in village culture.

Introduce the family of Eeri and Mudli of the village and comment upon their attitudes.

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha's Kirubunkal portrays village society through realistic characters. The families in the novella represent different attitudes toward life, culture, and social change. The families of Eeri and Mudli are important members of the village community. These families are closely connected with village traditions and daily life. They participate in festivals, community activities, and storytelling sessions. However, each family has its own attitude toward life. Some members respect the old customs, elders, and traditional beliefs. They believe that the wisdom of ancestors should be preserved. Others are attracted to modern education, fashion, and changing lifestyles. They question old customs and want social progress. This difference creates a contrast between tradition and modernity. The Eeri and Mudli families also show the importance of cooperation in village life. During celebrations and difficult times, they support one another. Their attitudes reflect the larger social changes taking place in rural India. Ravikumar Neha does not criticize either side completely. Instead, he shows that both tradition and modern thinking have their own value. The families symbolize ordinary people who struggle to balance cultural heritage with modern development.

Conclusion

The families of Eeri and Mudli represent different attitudes toward tradition and modernity. Through them, Ravikumar Neha presents the changing nature of village society and the importance of preserving cultural values while accepting progress.

Explain the significance of Kirubunkal as the controlling entity of the village.

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha's Kirubunkal is a symbolic novella that explores the relationship between folklore, community life, and cultural identity. Kirubunkal is not just the title of the novella. It is also a powerful symbol that controls and guides the life of the village. Kirubunkal represents the collective memory, traditions, and beliefs of the people. The villagers make many of their decisions based on stories, customs, and traditional values connected with Kirubunkal. It acts as a moral guide that teaches people honesty, kindness, courage, and respect. Kirubunkal also unites the villagers. It gives them a common identity and strengthens their emotional connection with one another. The stories related to Kirubunkal influence people's behaviour and shape their understanding of the world. Even when modern ideas enter the village, Kirubunkal continues to preserve cultural continuity. The author presents Kirubunkal as an invisible force that controls not through fear but through shared traditions and values. It becomes the heart of the village's cultural life.

Conclusion

Kirubunkal is the controlling entity because it represents the traditions, beliefs, and collective identity of the village. Ravikumar Neha uses this symbol to show that culture is the strongest force that guides society.

What is the narrator’s yardstick in differentiating good tale from bad tale?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal gives great importance to storytelling. The narrator carefully explains what makes a story valuable and meaningful. The narrator believes that a good tale is one that touches the hearts of people and remains alive in their memory. A good tale preserves culture and teaches important values. It entertains people while also giving wisdom and moral guidance. Good stories strengthen relationships within the community and help people understand life. Such stories are told repeatedly because every generation finds meaning in them. On the other hand, a bad tale is one that has no emotional depth or moral value. A bad story is quickly forgotten because it neither inspires nor educates people. The narrator believes that stories should connect the past with the present. A tale becomes meaningful when it reflects human experiences, hopes, fears, and dreams. The narrator values stories that preserve truth, imagination, and cultural identity. Thus, the quality of a tale is judged not by its length but by its impact on people’s lives.

Conclusion

The narrator differentiates good and bad tales by their ability to preserve culture, teach values, and inspire people. According to Ravikumar Neha, a good story continues to live in the hearts of the community.

How does the narrative voice express deep concerns about village life in the story Kirubunkal?

Introduction to the Author and the Novella

Ravikumar Neha is a noted Kannada writer whose novella Kirubunkal beautifully presents the traditions, beliefs, and changing life of rural Karnataka. Through a thoughtful narrator, he discusses the problems and hopes of village society. The narrator speaks with love and concern for village life. He admires the beauty of traditional culture, storytelling, festivals, and community relationships. However, he also notices that many old customs are slowly disappearing. The younger generation is becoming more interested in modern life and less interested in listening to traditional stories. The narrator worries that if folklore disappears, people will lose their cultural identity. He also expresses concern about changing social values. Modernization brings progress, but it also weakens family relationships and community unity. The narrator respects elders like Hirikateyajji because they preserve the wisdom of the past. He believes that stories are not simply entertainment but a living record of people’s experiences. The narrative voice is emotional but balanced. It appreciates development while encouraging people to protect their traditions. Throughout the novella, the narrator asks readers to value village culture before it is lost forever.

Conclusion

The narrative voice in Kirubunkal expresses deep concern for the future of village life, folklore, and cultural identity. Ravikumar Neha reminds readers that progress is meaningful only when it respects the wisdom and traditions of the past.

SHORT NOTES : 5 marks

Seena’s Obsession in Life

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha is a contemporary Kannada writer known for blending folklore with modern themes. His novella Kirubunkal portrays village life, storytelling, and the conflict between tradition and modernity.

Short Note

Seena is one of the important characters in Kirubunkal. His greatest obsession is to become modern and fashionable. He believes that wearing stylish clothes, following city culture, and behaving like educated urban people will earn him respect. He pays great attention to his appearance and tries to impress others. He copies modern habits and sometimes ignores the simple traditions of the village. His desire to look modern shows the influence of changing times on village youth. However, the author suggests that outward appearance alone does not make a person truly modern. Good character, wisdom, and respect for culture are equally important. Through Seena, Ravikumar Neha presents the conflict between traditional values and modern lifestyles.

Conclusion

Seena’s obsession represents the attraction of modern life among young villagers. His character reminds readers that true progress should include both modern thinking and cultural values.

Indian Tradition of Telling Tales

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal celebrates India’s rich oral storytelling tradition. The novella highlights the importance of preserving folk culture.

Short Note

India has a long tradition of storytelling. From ancient times, grandparents, saints, and village elders have narrated stories to children and communities. These stories include myths, legends, folktales, and moral tales. Stories were told during family gatherings, festivals, and village meetings. They entertained people while teaching moral values, history, and culture. In Kirubunkal, storytelling becomes a way of preserving the wisdom of earlier generations. Characters like Hirikateyajji continue this ancient tradition by passing stories to younger people.

Conclusion

The Indian storytelling tradition keeps culture alive. Ravikumar Neha shows that tales are valuable treasures passed from one generation to another.

Eeri’s Life after Mudli’s Death

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal realistically presents village life and human emotions through ordinary characters.

Short Note

After Mudli’s death, Eeri experiences deep sorrow and loneliness. Losing a close family member changes his life completely. He struggles to continue his daily activities while carrying emotional pain. The support of the village community helps him face his difficult situation. Eeri’s life reflects the strength and patience of rural people. Though he suffers greatly, he continues to live with dignity. The author uses Eeri’s character to show the emotional struggles that ordinary villagers experience.

Conclusion

Eeri’s life after Mudli’s death teaches the importance of courage, patience, and community support during times of loss.

Attack on Mudli

Introduction

Kirubunkal by Ravikumar Neha combines realistic village life with powerful storytelling.

Short Note

The attack on Mudli is one of the important incidents in the novella. It creates fear and sadness in the village community. The incident shows that even peaceful villages experience conflict and violence. It affects not only Mudli but also his family and neighbours. The attack changes the lives of many characters and reveals the emotional suffering caused by violence. Through this event, the author highlights the importance of peace, unity, and mutual respect in society.

Conclusion

The attack on Mudli becomes a turning point in the story and reminds readers about the value of harmony in village life.

Importance of Hirikateyajji

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha presents Hirikateyajji as one of the most memorable characters in Kirubunkal.

Short Note

Hirikateyajji is the elderly storyteller of the village. She preserves old stories and shares them with the younger generation. She believes that stories protect the culture and identity of the community. Through her tales, children learn moral values, traditions, and history. She symbolizes wisdom, experience, and the rich oral tradition of India. Her famous belief that “The fort of tales must grow” shows her desire to preserve folklore forever.

Conclusion

Hirikateyajji represents the living tradition of storytelling and becomes the guardian of the village's cultural heritage.

Importance of Sahukar Chandranna

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha's Kirubunkal includes several characters who represent different aspects of village society.

Short Note

Sahukar Chandranna is an influential person in the village. As a wealthy man, he plays an important role in the economic and social life of the community. People often approach him for financial help and advice. His position gives him respect as well as responsibility. Through Chandranna, the author shows how wealth can influence village life and relationships. His character also reflects the traditional role of village moneylenders in rural society.

Conclusion

Sahukar Chandranna represents social influence, responsibility, and the economic structure of village life.

The Tales of the Village

Introduction

Storytelling is the central theme of Ravikumar Neha's Kirubunkal.

Short Note

The village is full of interesting stories passed from one generation to another. These tales include myths, legends, heroic stories, and moral lessons. They preserve the customs and beliefs of the people. Every storyteller adds new ideas while keeping the main message alive. The tales entertain people and strengthen community relationships. They also teach honesty, kindness, courage, and respect for elders.

Conclusion

The village tales are the cultural wealth of the community and form the heart of Kirubunkal.

Morality and the Village Tales

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha shows that folk stories are not only entertaining but also educational. Short Note Most village tales teach important moral lessons. They encourage honesty, kindness, courage, respect for elders, and helping others. People learn good behaviour by listening to these stories from childhood. The moral values found in folktales help maintain peace and unity within the community. The author believes that storytelling is one of the best ways to pass ethical values to future generations.

Conclusion

The village tales of Kirubunkal preserve morality and guide people toward a better life.

The Village Life in Kirubunkal

Introduction

Kirubunkal is a beautiful portrayal of rural Karnataka written by Ravikumar Neha. Short Note The novella presents village life in a realistic and colourful manner. People live together with strong community relationships. Festivals, traditions, agriculture, and storytelling are important parts of daily life. The villagers respect elders and preserve old customs. At the same time, the author shows that modernization is changing village society. Young people are influenced by education and city culture. Despite these changes, the village continues to value its traditions and collective identity.

Conclusion

The village life in Kirubunkal reflects both the beauty of tradition and the challenges of modern change.

Indian Ethos and Folktale

Introduction

Ravikumar Neha’s Kirubunkal reflects the rich cultural heritage of India through its folk traditions.

Short Note

Indian ethos means the values, beliefs, and cultural traditions of Indian society. Folktales express these values through simple stories. They teach respect for elders, family unity, truth, compassion, and faith. In Kirubunkal, storytelling preserves Indian culture and connects people with their roots. The tales also encourage harmony between humans, nature, and society. The author shows that folklore is an important part of India’s cultural identity.

Conclusion

Through Kirubunkal, Ravikumar Neha proves that Indian folktales are not only stories but also carriers of Indian culture, values, and traditions.

Kirubunkal summary

Kirubunkal

1. Opening quarrel Eeri (the mother) scolds Seena for being lazy, useless, and lost in his own world. She's frustrated with her poverty and his behavior.
2. Seena's obsession with reels Seena wastes time watching reels of pretty girls and couples on his phone. He compares them with his own dark-skinned wife Shalini, whom he finds unattractive. He regrets marrying her and wishes he had married one of the "modern girls" he sees online.
3. Seena's insecurity about his looks Seena himself is also dark and unattractive. He tries different soaps (Lux, Santoor, Pears, Dove) to lighten his skin but fails. He curses his dark complexion.
4. Family background Seena is the only son of Eeri (a fair, attractive woman) and Mudli (a very virile man). Mudli mocked religious people, saying children are born simply through sex, not rituals. Mudli was famous for his handsomeness and lusty nature. One dark new-moon night, Mudli mysteriously died after following strange noises at Kirabunkal (a place outside the village).
5. Village tales In the past, the village was full of folk tales told and retold by generations. But now, with TV and mobile phones, people have no time for stories. The old tales feel neglected and near death.
6. Meeting of the tales All tales (animal tales, human tales, Puranic tales, etc.) gather under the village peepal tree (Jagtikatte). Hirikateyajji, the grandmother tale, warns that tales are dying because no one listens. They decide to adapt: instead of moral stories, they will create sensational tales (sex, gossip, scandals) to survive.
7. Seena and Vimli Seena starts a secret romance with Vimli (Chandranna's daughter). Chandranna catches them, beats Seena brutally, and drags his daughter away. Seena collapses near Kirabunkal. Mudli finds him half-dead and takes him home. When asked what happened, Seena mutters "Kirabunkal." That same night, Chandranna and his men attack Mudli and beat him to death.
8. Mudli's mysterious death Officially, people say he died of disease during an epidemic. He is buried quickly, with no chance to reveal the truth. Eeri receives no government compensation. She focuses on raising Seena lovingly, giving him a mobile phone, which he misuses (porn, reels, wet dreams).
9. The spreading of tales After Mudli's death, gossip tales multiply. Villagers invent different scandalous versions of why Mudli died: Affair with Chandranna's wife. Affair with Chandranna's daughter Vimli. Affair between Chandranna and Eeri. These tales fuel the men's sexual fantasies and women's anger/concern.
10. Hirikateyajji complains She laments that tales have become corrupted. Once, tales gave wisdom and unity. Now they only spread filth, lies, and lust. She begs Kirabunkal (the ancient place/tree/spirit) to intervene.

11. Kirabunkal speaks Kirabunkal says it is exhausted after centuries of watching human selfishness and destruction. The world is dying—air, water, and earth have lost life. People think only of themselves. Unless humans unite, the world will collapse.

12. Conclusion Kirabunkal once protected the village, but now it is weak and decaying. Tales no longer bring truth, but false, sensational gossip. Seena remains obsessed with his phone, Shalini is neglected, and Eeri is helpless. The whole village is drowning in lies, lust, and meaningless tales. What was once a land of living, breathing stories has become a breeding ground for falsehoods. In short: The story mixes village gossip, sexuality, caste/class tensions, and technology's impact. Seena represents the new generation—lazy, addicted to reels/porn, detached from reality. Mudli represents lust, strength, and a violent end. Eeri represents a struggling, abandoned woman. Tales are a metaphor for culture and truth, now corrupted into lies and gossip. Kirabunkal is the spirit of the land, lamenting human selfishness and decay.

On the Way to Goregaon

3. ON THE WAY TO GOREGAON

SUMMARY OF THE LESSON

Family Background

1. The narrator's family was originally from Dapoli, Ratnagiri (Bombay Presidency).

2. His forefathers had left their traditional occupation and served in the East India Company's Army.

3. His father also served in the army and retired as a Subhedar.

4. After retirement, the family moved to Satara around 1901.

Situation at Satara

5. The narrator's mother had passed away.

6. His father worked as a cashier at Koregaon (Satara District) on a famine relief project.

7. The children (narrator, his brother, and nephews) lived with their handicapped aunt, who could not cook or manage the house.

8. The children cooked for themselves—mostly pulav (rice with meat), as they could not make bread.

The Journey Begins

9. During summer vacation, the father invited them to Koregaon.

10. The children were excited to travel by train for the first time.

11. They bought new clothes, caps, shoes, and dhoties for the trip.

12. They hired a tonga (horse-cart) to go 10 miles to the railway station.

13. They were given pocket money and enjoyed lemonade at the station.

14. They boarded the train and got down at Masur station in the evening.

At Masur Station:

15. Nobody came to receive them, though their father had promised to send someone.

16. The station-master was kind at first and assumed they were Brahmin children.

17. When the narrator revealed they were Mahars (untouchables), his attitude changed suddenly.

18. No bullock-cart driver agreed to take them because they were untouchables, even when offered double fare.

19. Finally, one cartman agreed on the condition that the children themselves would drive the cart, while he walked beside it.

On the Way to Koregaon

20. They stopped at a dry river to eat food brought from home but could not drink the dirty water.

21. The cartman delayed returning from his meal, making them anxious.

22. After some time, the cartman himself sat in the cart, forgetting his earlier fear of “pollution.”

23. Darkness fell, and the children became frightened.

24. They suspected the cartman of tricking them for their gold ornaments.

25. They cried and begged him to take them safely.

26. At midnight, they reached a toll-collector’s hut at the foot of a hill.

The Night Struggle

27. Hungry and thirsty, they asked for water.

28. On the cartman’s advice, they pretended to be Muslims, but the toll-collector still refused to give water.

29. They had food but could not eat without water.

30. They slept hungry in the cart, keeping watch in turns out of fear.

Reaching Koregaon

31. Next morning, they continued and reached Koregaon by 11 a.m.

32. Their father was surprised, saying he had never received their letter.

33. It was later found that his servant had hidden the letter.

Realization about Untouchability

34. At school, the narrator already faced discrimination: Could not sit with other children. Had to bring his own gunny cloth to sit on. Could not touch the school tap; needed the peon to open it. (“No peon, no water”).

35. At home: Sisters washed clothes because washermen refused. Sisters cut hair because barbers refused.

36. The journey incident, however, gave the narrator his first big shock about untouchability.

37. It made him think deeply about the cruelty and injustice of caste discrimination. This event left a lifelong impression on him at the age of nine.

Answer the following questions:

How does boy Ambedkar introduce all the members of his father's family?

Ambedkar begins by introducing his family in a simple but respectful manner. He tells us that his family originally came from Dapoli Taluka in Ratnagiri District of the Bombay Presidency. His forefathers, instead of continuing their traditional caste occupations, joined the army of the East India Company. His father followed this family tradition and rose to become a Subhedar, an officer in the army. After retirement, Ambedkar's father settled with his family. Ambedkar's family was not wealthy, but they had a sense of dignity because of their father's service. He had several brothers and sisters. After the death of his mother, the younger children needed to be taken care of, and Ambedkar's aunt looked after them with affection and a sense of duty. Thus, Ambedkar introduces his family not only by naming their origin and occupation but also by showing their struggles, love, and unity. Through this introduction, we get a clear picture of the hardships and responsibilities faced by the family, especially after the loss of the mother.

What made Ambedkar's aunt look after the young siblings of the family?

After the death of Ambedkar's mother, the household was left in a difficult situation. The children were still very young and could not take care of themselves. Ambedkar's father, though a disciplined and caring man, could not look after them all the time because of his duties. At this point, Ambedkar's aunt stepped in as a motherly figure. Out of compassion, affection, and a sense of responsibility, she took the charge of raising the young children. She made sure they had food, shelter, and guidance in their early years. Her sacrifice and care gave the children a sense of belonging and security. It also shows how women in Indian families often take up the responsibility of nurturing children during times of crisis. Ambedkar always remembered her affection and duty towards them.

Trace the circumstances leading to Ambedkar's train journey to Goregaon.

The train journey to Goregaon happened under special circumstances. Ambedkar and his brothers were studying in Satara after the death of their mother. Their father, who had retired from the army, was staying at Goregaon in another part of the Bombay Presidency. During the school holidays, Ambedkar's father wanted his children to come and stay with him at Goregaon. Since the children were very young and had never travelled alone before, arrangements were made for them to go by train to Masur station, from where their father was supposed to meet them and take them to Goregaon. However, when they reached Masur, their father had not arrived. This unexpected situation became the beginning of a very painful and unforgettable experience for young Ambedkar and his siblings.

Briefly narrate young Ambedkar’s experiences at Masur railway station.

When Ambedkar and his brothers reached Masur railway station, they were excited at first. But soon they realized their father had not come to receive them. They were small children and had no money to arrange a cart for themselves. They waited for a long time, but nobody from their family arrived. Ambedkar tried to get help from people at the station. However, the moment people came to know that the children were Mahar by caste, their attitudes changed completely. They refused to offer water or shelter, fearing they would lose their caste purity if they touched the children. The stationmaster too treated them with contempt. The young Ambedkar felt deep pain and humiliation at such treatment. Hunger, thirst, and loneliness troubled the children as they sat on the platform the whole day, rejected by society only because of their caste. This became one of the earliest and sharpest memories of social injustice in his life.

Briefly narrate young Ambedkar’s journey to Goregaon by cart from Masur.

After waiting long hours at Masur, the children were in despair. Finally, one Muslim cartman, who was kinder than the others, agreed to take them to Goregaon. But even here, caste played a cruel role. The cartman told the children that since they were Mahars, he could not allow them to sit inside the cart. Instead, they had to sit on sacks spread on the floor of the cart, almost like goods. Though it was humiliating, the children had no choice but to accept it. The cart took them through dusty roads, and the young Ambedkar realized how even a simple journey could turn into an ordeal for the so-called “untouchables.” The experience left a strong impression on his mind. It was not just the distance they travelled but also the distance society created through caste discrimination that became unforgettable.

How does young Ambedkar experience caste discrimination at Masur railway station?

At Masur station, caste discrimination was very clear. When Ambedkar approached people for help, they first showed sympathy but withdrew as soon as they heard his caste. No one offered water, food, or a place to rest. They were treated as untouchables, as if their presence polluted others. Even the stationmaster, who could have helped, refused to treat them with kindness. The children had to sit on the platform the whole day like abandoned passengers. Their thirst and hunger increased, but nobody dared to give them even a drop of water. This cruel treatment showed Ambedkar, at a young age, the harsh realities of caste system—how it stripped people of humanity and compassion. He realized that untouchability was not just about social status but also about deep humiliation and denial of basic human needs.

Explain briefly how Ambedkar experienced ritual purity and caste hierarchy in his journey to Goregaon.

Ambedkar's journey to Goregaon exposed him directly to the ideas of ritual purity and caste hierarchy. At Masur station, people refused to touch him or give him water because they believed it would make them impure. Their sense of caste purity was so strong that the suffering of children did not move them. Later, even the cartman, though kinder than the others, forced the children to sit separately in his cart. This was another reminder that in society's eyes they were "polluting." The cartman was afraid that if they sat with him, he too would be considered impure by others. Thus, throughout the journey, Ambedkar learned how caste rules governed social behavior in India. Even the simplest human actions—like drinking water, sitting in a cart, or asking for help—were controlled by the hierarchy of caste.

What lessons did Ambedkar learn from his experiences at Goregaon? Explain.

The painful journey to Goregaon became a turning point in young Ambedkar's life. He learned that society was deeply unjust and that the caste system denied dignity and humanity to millions of people. The humiliation at Masur station and the cart journey taught him that the problem was not just personal but social. From these bitter experiences, Ambedkar developed a strong sense of determination. He realized that education and courage were the only ways to fight against discrimination. These childhood lessons shaped his future mission to bring equality, justice, and self-respect to the oppressed communities of India. Later in life, as a great leader, thinker, and the chief architect of the Indian Constitution, Ambedkar often recalled this journey. It gave him the fire to fight against untouchability and to build a society based on liberty, equality, and fraternity

Write Short Notes on:

Ambedkar's father Ambedkar's father was a disciplined and dutiful man who served in the army of the East India Company and rose to the rank of Subhedar. He valued education and wanted his children to study well. After retirement, he lived at Goregaon. Though he was strict, he cared deeply for his family and their future. His position as a retired officer gave the family some dignity, but it could not protect them from the harsh caste system. Ambedkar's aunt After the death of Ambedkar's mother, his aunt took care of the young children. She played the role of a mother by feeding them, guiding them, and showing affection. Her sacrifice and love kept the family together during difficult times. She represents the silent strength of women in Indian families who take responsibility in times of crisis. The station master at Masur At Masur railway station, the station master had the chance to help Ambedkar and his brothers, but he showed caste prejudice. When he learned that the children were from the Mahar caste, he treated them with contempt and refused to offer water or shelter. His behavior 1. Ambedkar's father Ambedkar's father was a disciplined and dutiful man who served in the army of the East India Company and rose to the rank of Subhedar. He valued education and wanted his children to study well.

After retirement, he lived at Goregaon. Though he was strict, he cared deeply for his family and their future. His position as a retired officer gave the family some dignity, but it could not protect them from the harsh caste system. The cart driver in the essay Finally, a Muslim cart driver agreed to take Ambedkar and his brothers from Masur to Goregaon. Though he was kinder than others, he too was afraid of caste rules. He made the children sit separately on sacks in the cart, as he feared that his cart would be considered impure if they sat with him. His actions show both compassion and the deep hold of caste beliefs. Water issues and Ambedkar One of the most painful memories for young Ambedkar was being denied water at Masur station. The children were thirsty, but nobody was willing to give them even a drop of water because of untouchability. This denial of such a basic human need showed Ambedkar how caste rules destroyed compassion. This experience stayed in his mind forever and shaped his fight against social injustice later in life. Ambedkar and his brothers Ambedkar and his brothers were young, innocent, and dependent on others during the journey. They were excited about travelling but soon faced hunger, thirst, and rejection because of their caste. The brothers supported each other, but the painful experiences at Masur taught them harsh lessons about society. Their bond and shared suffering gave Ambedkar the strength to later fight for equality. Social injustice and Ambedkar The journey to Goregaon exposed Ambedkar to social injustice in its harshest form. He realized that caste discrimination was not just unfair but deeply humiliating. Even as a child, he felt the cruelty of being denied water, kindness, and respect. These incidents planted in him the determination to fight untouchability and later inspired him to work for justice, equality, and dignity for all. Ambedkar’s train journey Ambedkar’s train journey to Goregaon was both memorable and painful. While the train ride itself was exciting for the children, the real struggle began after they got down at Masur station. They faced rejection, thirst, and humiliation because of their caste. Even though they finally reached Goregaon by cart, the journey left deep scars on young Ambedkar’s mind. It became a turning point in his life, teaching him about the cruelty of caste discrimination. The cruelty of social discrimination, where even young children were denied basic kindness.

Harvest II workbook

Unit II: Workbook

III SEMESTER B.COM. / B.B.A.

INTRODUCTION

Communication is the process of exchanging information, ideas, thoughts, or feelings between persons. It involves both sending and receiving messages. The purpose of communication is to achieve understanding on both the sides of the sender and the receiver. Though there are many types of communication, the written communication is of utmost importance. It is done through letters and emails. Business communication is the process of exchanging information between buyers and sellers to achieve business goals. When direct interaction is not possible between a buyer and a seller, letters and emails are used for interaction. By means of business letters and mails, business activity is conducted. Effective business communication is crucial for clarity, collaboration, decision-making, building business relations, and promoting business. An enquiry is made, quotation is received, order is placed, goods are received, and payments are made. Thus, all these business activities related to the act of buying and selling are done by means of business letters and emails. Inland and foreign trade are also conducted through letters and emails. Hence, it is necessary for every educated individual to have the basic knowledge of business communication.

The Principles of Writing Business Letters:

The principles of writing business letters are somewhat different from the principles of writing general letters. Business letters are used primarily to communicate with external stakeholders such as consumers, customers, intermediaries, government, bankers, etc. Business letters are much more formal than general letters. Let us look briefly at some of these principles:

- Structure: The format (arrangement), the layout (design), and the overall look of the letter should be pleasing and appealing to the reader. Attention should be paid to the quality of paper used. All the rules of typing should be observed. The margins should be appropriate, including one inch on each side and one and a half inches on the left.
- Content: Utmost importance should be given to the content of the business letters. It is the most important of all the principles which brings in the expected result. The content should be clear, brief, and to the point. There should be no room for ambiguity and different meanings. It should be precise and definite.
- Clarity and Brevity: Business letters should be clearly worded. It is better to avoid the use of jargon, technical terms, and slang words. Concrete words should be used so that there is no ambiguity. Example: Instead of saying ‘I received your communication recently,’ it is better to be more precise and say, ‘I received your letter yesterday.’ The letter should include a single main idea and paragraphs should be used to elaborate it with sub-ideas and supporting points. Business letters should be brief and to the point, avoiding unnecessary details and round about expressions. They should give maximum information to the reader, using minimum words.

- Formal Courtesy: It is very important to retain the goodwill of customers, other people concerned with business, and the general public. A discourteous letter can make you lose business. Therefore, business letters should be extremely polite at all times and mindful of the words 'please,' 'thank you,' and 'sorry.' The customer should never be made to feel unimportant or unworthy. Every customer, small or large, must be respected and treated courteously. You must respond politely even to a rude letter from a customer in order to retain the business relation.

If the business company has been at fault, it is important to apologise to the customer for the mistake and for the inconvenience caused. The overall tone should be positive. For example, instead of saying 'We cannot grant your request,' state it in a more tactful way, explaining the reasons for not being able to grant the request. You can write, 'As the warranty period has expired, we are unable to grant your request of servicing the product without any charges.'

- You Consideration: It means that you should look at the communication from the reader's point of view and appeal to the reader's interests. It is very important to stress the you attitude rather than the me attitude. This is similar to the language of advertisements, which talk about the benefits of the product to the end user. For example, instead of saying 'We will be open 24 hours,' say 'You can avail round-the-clock service.'

The Structural Parts of Business Letters:

The structure and format of business letters is as important as the content. Most business letters contain the following structural parts at the right places:

- Letter Head: The heading of a business letter usually contains the name and postal address of the business firm, along with its Email address, Web-site address, Telephone number, Fax, etc. The Heading appears on top of the page. Usually, business organisations use printed letter heads which include the name, logo, and address of the company. Some business houses get their letter heads designed by commercial artists.

- Reference: This usually indicates the letter number, the department/section of the company from which the letter is being sent, and the year. This helps in future reference and it is given on the left-hand corner after the heading. Usually, it is specific to the writer of the letter. We can write reference number as: 224/SD/2025. Sometimes, the reference number of the letter to which you reply is also given. Some business houses give these numbers in line with the date as: Our Ref. No.: Your Ref. No.: Date:

- Date: This must be located in the upper left-hand corner after the Reference number. Clearly mention the number of the day, the name of the month, and the year in full. No abbreviations should be preferred.

- To Address: This includes the name and full address of the person or the firm to whom the letter has to be sent. This is written on the left-hand side below the date.
- Attention: The Attention line is usually written above the salutation, in the centre of the letter, but sometimes, it may be included below the salutation, in order to ensure prompt action. For example, ‘Attention: D K Sharma, Sales Manager.’
- Initial Greeting/Salutation: This is used to greet the reader before beginning the subject of the letter in order to avoid abrupt beginning and to create a congenial mood in the reader. When addressing a firm, Messrs should be used before the name of the firm. Since business letters are formal, the appropriate salutation when addressing an individual is ‘Dear Mr/Ms,’ followed by the last name, rather than the first name, which is informal. If the gender of the reader is not known, it is better to use a neutral salutation such as ‘Dear Customer’ or ‘Dear Investor.’
- Subject: It is a brief one-line statement that indicates the matter to which the letter relates. It attracts the attention of the receiver immediately and helps him understand quickly what the letter is about. Subject line can be placed after the salutation and before the body of the letter.
- Body: This includes an explanation of the main idea(s) of the letter. It is better to introduce the main message, explain it in detail, and conclude it.
- Closing Greeting: This is the ending of the letter and should be polite and friendly. It is like a polite leave taking. A standard closing for a business letter is ‘Yours faithfully,’ followed by the sender’s signature, name, and designation. ‘Yours sincerely’ is sometimes used to show some intimacy between the writer and the reader.
- Signature: The person who writes the letter should sign it at the end. It shows that the writer is aware of and is completely responsible for everything written in it. Some people use facsimile signatures. But it is always better to sign the signature as it gives a personal touch to the formal business letters.
- Enclosure: Sometimes, a business letter may include one or two enclosure/s such as a pamphlet and/or a brochure. This should be indicated at the end of the letter by listing the name/s of the enclosure/s. Special note: There are no hard and fast rules in letter-writing. There may be minor variations with regard to the writing of different structural parts and the use of punctuation marks. Now, open punctuation (no punctuation) is the common practice in writing the From and the To address. Specially, the line-end punctuations are not used in the addresses. Complimentary close at the end may be written either on the left side or the right side. However, it is usually written on the left side nowadays.

1. LETTERS OF ENQUIRY

Business letters of enquiry are a fundamental part of business communication. In fact, all the business activities begin with enquiries. Any trader, businessman, buyer, or seller may write a letter of enquiry to another. A letter of enquiry must contain the purpose of enquiry like seeking the details of prices, quality, type, discount in price, mode of payment, warranty, guarantee, transportation, tax, time required for supply, etc. It can be written on any topic related to business.

Model Letter of Enquiry 1:

Web: www.sgstores.in E-mail: sgstores@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 223542 Mobile: 74480 73606 FLY HIGH TIMES Dealers in Wrist Watches and Smart Bands No. 232, Krishna Complex, Cantonment Road BENGALURU – 560 005 Ref. No: FHTB/265/2025

10 June 2025

TITAN WATCH COMPANY 523, Chandni Road Industrial Area, Andheri MUMBAI – 410 001

Dear Sir,

We are very impressed with your new wrist watches and smart bands advertised in The Times of India. There is a big demand for them in our area. We would be very happy if you could send your latest catalogue within two weeks of receiving this enquiry.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(RAJU R.R.) Partner

Model Letter of Enquiry 2:

Web: www.chetanbooks.com E-mail: chetanbooks@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 29482 Mobile: 77222 70722 CHETAN BOOKS P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand DAVANAGERE – 577 002 Ref. No: CBD/218/2025

12 July 2025

SUBHASH PUBLICATIONS No. 234, Avenue Road BENGALURU – 560 002

Dear Sir,

Sub: Enquiry about your publications.

We are interested in buying books published by you. We want to know the following details of your books:

1. The list of books available in your stock,

2. Binding type,

3. Price list according to the type of binding,

4. Year of publication,

5. The university syllabus for which the book is published,

6. Any discount/rebate available,

7. Mode of payment,

8. Time required for the supply of books,

9. Transportation charges/complimentary copies, etc.,

Please send your catalogue. We expect your catalogue with all the information mentioned above. Only after the receipt of the catalogue we will think of placing a purchase order.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(GURUCHETAN A.M.) Proprietor.

Model Letter of Enquiry 3:

Web: www.sgstores.in E-mail: sgstores@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 223542 Mobile: 74480 73606 SAM GENERAL STORES No. 232, Krishna Complex, Cantonment Road BENGALURU – 560 005 Ref. No: SGSB/124/2025

10 June 2025

AJMAL PERFUMES LTD. No. 434, Himalaya Buildings, Bandra MUMBAI – 400 023

Dear Sirs, Sub: Enquiry about the perfumes produced by your firm.

With reference to the subject cited above, we want the following details of your perfume items:

1. Description of the type of items,

2. Price list of the items,

3. Terms and conditions of warranty and guarantee,

4. Mode of payment,

5. Discounts, if any,

6. Supply of items,

7. Time required for delivery

8. Certificate of medication, expiry date, etc.

We would like all the details mentioned above as soon as possible. Only after the receipt of your reply to this enquiry will we decide whether or not to place a purchase order.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(SAM SINHA) Proprietor.

Model Letter of Enquiry 4:

Web: www. phfoods.com E-mail: phfoods@yahoo.com Telephone: 08192 2436442 Mobile: 98642 35155

POGARDAST HEALTHY FOODS No. 248, Temple Road HARIHAR – 577 601

Ref. No. 674/PHF/2025

20 July 2025

NATIONAL PACKAGING SOLUTIONS No. 534, Industrial Area, Peenya BENGALURU – 560 053

Dear Sir,

Sub: Enquiry about eco-friendly packaging solutions.

We are the leading producers of packaged organic food items in the state. As part of our commitment to environmental responsibility and meeting the increasing demand for sustainable practices, we are actively seeking innovative and high-quality eco-friendly packaging solutions. We are particularly interested in exploring options that are biodegradable.

To help us understand how your packaging products might align with our requirements, we would appreciate it if you could provide us with the following information:

1. A catalogue or brochure detailing your range of eco-friendly packaging products.

2. Information on the materials used, their certifications, and their environmental impact.

3. Details regarding minimum order quantities and pricing structures.

4. Any information on customisation options of printing, sizing, etc., that may be available.

5. Lead times for production and delivery.

6. References or case studies of businesses you have successfully partnered with in the sustainable packaging sector.

We firmly believe that strong partnerships with suppliers who share our values are crucial. We look forward to reviewing your offerings and discussing how your eco-friendly packaging solutions can support our sustainability goals.

Thank you for your time and consideration. We would appreciate your prompt and quick response.

Yours faithfully,

(KIRANKUMAR H.N.) Proprietor.

Exercises:

1 You are the proprietor of a textile shop. You want to open a separate section for kids. Draft a letter of enquiry for readymade garments for kids. 2 You are the owner of a cosmetics shop. Write a letter of enquiry for the purchase of different items of cosmetics.

3 As the proprietor of a book shop, you want to have a good stock of textbooks and other general books before the reopening of schools and colleges. Draft an enquiry. 4 As a fresh graduate, draft a letter of enquiry about the job openings.

2. QUOTATIONS

Quotations are generally the replies to requests/enquiries for the same. A quotation is a statement quoting the price of goods and services. Quotations usually contain a list of products, their specifications and descriptions of their type, size, quality, quantity, price, warranty/guarantee, tax, terms of trade, delivery, mode of payment, transportation costs, etc. The price quoted in the statement can be the price declared by the producing company or the price decided by the retailer including the other expenses in the procurement of goods. While the company price is the same everywhere (except service charges), the retailer price can be different from place to place and from shop to shop. A buyer should be charged only the price quoted. Variation in the price is against the norms. If something other than what is quoted is charged, the buyer feels uncomfortable and will most likely not place a repeat order.

Note: While sending quotations, the following points are to be kept in mind:

1. A clear description of the products must be given;

2. Wherever necessary/possible, samples should be sent;

3. Prices and terms must be specified;

4. Discount, if any, must be mentioned;

5. Terms for delivery must be stated, e.g., carriage paid/carriage forward;

6. Lead time should also be mentioned;

7. Limiting period can be specified if essential, e.g., subject to acceptance within 10 days.

Model Quotation 1:

Web: www.ananyafb.com E-mail: ananyafb@yahoo.com Telephone: 080 2355364 Mobile: 98889 34888

ANANYA FURNITURES No. 246, Industrial Area, Peenya BENGALURU - 560065

Ref. No. 242/AFB/2025

15 July 2025

HOMBALLI TRADERS M.G. Road, B Block, Vidyanagar DAVANAGERE - 577 002

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Sending quotation for Office furniture.

Ref: Your letter inviting quotation dated 12 July 2025.

Thank for your letter for quotation. We are very happy to know your interest in our office furniture. We are pleased to provide you with the following quotation for the supply of various items of office furniture, tailored to meet the needs of your new office.

QUOTATION

Sl. No. Item Description Specifications Unit Price 1 Executive Desk L-Shape, Mahogany Finish with Pedestal Rs. 15000/- 2 Ergonomic Office Chair High Back Mesh, Lumbar support, adjustable Rs. 9000/- 3 Meeting Table Round, 6-Seater, Laminate Top Rs. 12000/- 4 Filing Cabinet 4-drawer, Steel with lock Rs. 6000/- 5 Visitor Chair Armless, Stackable, Fabric upholstery Rs. 3000/- 6 Bookshelf/Storage Unit Open Shelving, Wood finish Rs. 8000/-

Other details:

1. This quotation is valid for 30 days from the date of issue.

2. 50 % advance payment upon order confirmation and the remaining upon delivery.

3. Delivery will be completed within a week from the date of order confirmation.

4. The prices include the installation charges.

5. All the items of furniture have a standard warranty of 2 years against manufacture defects.

6. All the applicable taxes are extra as per the government norms.

7. Transportation extra.

8. A discount of 10 percent allowed on orders exceeding Rs. 200000.

We hope that our quotation satisfies you. Our prices are competitive. Please refer the brochure enclosed to see the picture models in multi-coloured glassy printing. Please sign and return a copy of this quotation to signify your acceptance of the terms and conditions specified therein.

We look forward to serve you.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(ACHCHARI AKINI) Sales Manager.

Model Quotation 2:

Web: www. bdvtpaper.com E-mail: bdvtpaper@yahoo.com Telephone: 08282 275834 Mobile: 9442356344

BHADRAVATHI PAPER MILLS Paper Town BHADRAVATHI – 577 302

Our Ref. No.: BPM/262/2025 Your Ref. No.: UP/432/2025 25 June 2025

CHETAN PUBLISHERS 27, Sajjan Rao Road MYSORE – 577 208

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Sending quotation for paper. We are very glad to receive your letter inviting quotation for the supply of paper. The following are our lowest rates for the paper you require: QUOTATION

Sl. No.

Particulars

Quantity Price (Rs)

1 White paper, thick, 60 GSM 1 ton 30,000=00

2 White paper, thin, 50 GSM 1 ton 28,000=00

3 White Map litho paper

1 ton 34,000=00

4 White Map litho art paper, thin 1 ton 32,000=00 Terms and Conditions:

1. Packing and transportation charges extra.

2. Rates valid for only one month from the date of this quotation.

3. GST extra as per government rules.

4. 5% discount against cash payment in 10 days.

5. Delivery of goods within 7 days after the receipt of the order.

We hope that you will find our rates and terms favourable and place your valued order with us.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, for BHADRAVATHI PAPER MILLS

(BADRINATH B.) Sales Manager.

Model Quotation 3:

Web: www.titanwc.in E-mail: twc@gmail.com Telephone: 022 783235 Mobile: 85580 88002 TITAN WATCH COMPANY 523, Chandni Road Industrial Area, Andheri MUMBAI – 410 001

Our Ref. No: TWC/323/2025 Your Ref. No: FHTB/265/2025 14 June 2025

FLY HIGH TIMES Dealers in Wrist Watches and Smart Bands No. 232, Krishna Complex, Cantonment Road BENGALURU – 560 005

Dear Sir, Thank you for your enquiry regarding our range of wrist watches and smart bands. We appreciate your interest in our products.

We are pleased to provide you with the following quotation based on your expressed needs. Our products are designed with a focus on quality, technology, durability, design, style, and trends. We believe they will be an excellent addition to your offerings. QUOTATION Sl. No. Product Category Model/Series Unit Price Minimum Order Quantity 1 Wrist Watches Model 1: Janata meant for gentlemen. Model 2: Vanita meant for ladies Model 3: Ninad for both Rs. 1500 Rs. 1500 Rs. 1600 50 50 50 2 Smart Bands Model 1: Kanta meant for young boys Model 2: Kanti meant for young girls Model 3: Vinutan for both Rs. 1000 Rs. 1000 Rs. 1200 80 90 100

Bulk Order Discounts:

1. Orders over 100 units – 5 %
2. Orders over 500 units – 10 %
3. Orders exceeding 1000 units – 20 %

Payment Terms:

1. 50 % advance payment upon confirmation of your order
2. Remaining 50 % due upon dispatch
3. Payment mode: Bank Transfer (NEFT/RTGS), Cheque.

Delivery:

1. Estimated delivery time: 10 business days from the confirmation of order and receipt of advance payment
2. Transportation charges extra according to the volume of the order and the distance of the destination.

Warranty:

All our products come with a two-year limited warranty against manufacturing defects.

We are confident that our products will meet your expectations for quality and performance. If you have any questions or require further customization, please feel free to contact us. We look forward to the possibility of a successful business association.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(RANJAN MALHOTRA) Proprietor

Model Quotation 4:

NATIONAL PACKAGING SOLUTIONS No. 534, Industrial Area, Peenya BENGALURU – 560 053

Our Ref. No. 525/NPS/2025 Your Ref. No. 674/PHF/2025 23 July 2025

POGARDAST HEALTHY FOODS No. 248, Temple Road HARIHAR – 577 601

Dear Sir,

Sub: Quotation for eco-friendly packaging solutions in response to your enquiry.

Thank you for your enquiry regarding eco-friendly packaging solutions. We understand your commitment to sustainability and are pleased to offer a range of innovative and environmentally responsible packaging options designed to meet your specific needs. We specialise in providing high-quality, sustainable packaging that not only protects your products but also aligns with your brand’s values and appeals to eco-conscious consumers. Our solutions are crafted from biodegradable materials and are designed to minimise environmental impact throughout their lifecycle.

Below is a quotation outlining our proposed eco-friendly packaging solutions. Please note that this is a preliminary quotation, and we would be happy to provide a more detailed and customised proposal after a further discussion of your specific requirements, product dimensions, and desired quantities.

QUOTATION Sl. No. Material Key Features Estimated Price 1 100% Post-consumer Recycled (PCR) Kraft Paper Biodegradable, Recyclable, customisable printing, strong and durable Rs. 15 - 50 per unit 2 Plant-based Biopolymer 100 % home compostable, industrial compostable, rear-resistant, waterresistant, self-sealing adhesive strip Rs. 10 - 30 per unit 3 Starch-based Dissolves in water, compostable, light-weight, shock absorption Rs. 150-300 per kg

4 FSC certified Recycled paperboard Recyclable, customizable graphics, provides product protection and branding Rs. 05 - 25 per unit 5 Recycled Cardboard/Paper Pulp Biodegradable, recyclable, custommodelled for product fit, excellent cushioning Rs. 20 - 60 per unit

Note:

1. All the prices are indicative and subject to change based on final specifications, quantity, and customisation.
2. Minimum order quantity may apply for certain products.
3. Customization options include printing, die-cutting, and special finishes.
4. Lead time for custom orders will be provided upon confirmation of design and quantity.
5. Shipping costs are not included in the above prices and will be quoted separately based on destination and order size.
6. Applicable taxes (GST) will be added to the final invoice.

We are confident that our eco-friendly packaging solutions can help your business achieve its sustainability goals and enhance your brand name. We would appreciate the opportunity to discuss your specific requirements in more detail and provide samples of our materials.

Please feel free to contact us for any further clarification.

Thank you for considering our firm as your eco-friendly packaging partner. We look forward to the possibility of working with you.

Yours faithfully,

(VIKRANT VINNI) Proprietor.

Exercises:

1. You have received a reply to your enquiry with a request for quotation for stationery articles. Now send the quotation.
2. You have received a letter for quotation for the books available with you. Draft the quotation and send it.

3. As a proprietor of a furniture shop, send a quotation for the same.

4. Draft a quotation for different plastic items for sale.

3. ORDERS

Placement of orders for goods and their execution are very significant business activities. When orders are correctly placed and they are handled effectively, it will result in achieving not only success but also good will. It is therefore important that order letters and responses to orders are written with great care. Despite the fact that many business organisations have started using electronic and printed order forms, order letters are still used in businesses.

Order letters follow the general format of business correspondence and give a clear description of the items ordered, their quantities, catalogue numbers, and prices. They should also specify the address and date of delivery, the mode of transport, the terms of payment (according to earlier discussions), and whether the final price includes delivery charges or not.

Note: Orders must be promptly acknowledged and confirmed. A letter to the buyer acknowledging, confirming, or accepting the order puts the buyer at ease about the order placed and improves customer relations. The seller can also inform the buyer about items from the order that are out of stock, changes in prices, date of delivery, etc., if the order is received after the scheduled date. Such letters are necessary in order to create a feeling of goodwill and trust.

Points to remember:

- Thank the customer for the business and show your appreciation.
- Confirm all the details about the products ordered, the mode of transportation, payment, and date of delivery.
- Use reference numbers like product codes and order numbers.

Model Letter of Order 1:

Web: www.vbcentre.in E-mail: vbcentre@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 224364 Mobile: 9444983338

VANI BOOK CENTRE No. 23, D.J. Road JAGALULR – 577 528 No: 106/VBCJ/2025

15 May 2014

JNANA PUBLICATIONS No. 925, Nehru Road BENGALURU – 560 012

Dear Sir,

Sub: Placing an order for books. We appreciate sending your quotation at the earliest. We would like to place an order for the following books:

Sl. No. Title and Author

Binding type Price (Rs) Quantity

1. Principles of Marketing by Philip Kotler Ord. Copy 500 25 Copies 2. Financial Management by Stephen P. Robins

“ 550 25 “ 3. Business Communication by K.D. Basava

“ 400 25 “ 4. Organisational Behaviour by M. Pandya

“ 300 25 “ 5. Human Resource Management by K.B. Manjunath H.B. Copy 650 30 “ 6. History of English Literature by R.K. Tilak Ord. Copy 300 30 “ 7. Modern English Grammar by N. Ramakrishna “ 200 30 “ 8. Complete Works of Shakespeare Ed. by Bhagwan “ 800 05 “

9. Text Book of Phonetics by V. Sasikumar

“ 200 10 “

10. Modern Linguistics by T. Sriraman

“ 400 10 “

All the books ordered are your publications and our order is based on your quotation of 10 May 2025. Please send the books immediately. The cheque will be issued only after the receipt of the books according to our order.

We anticipate a prompt delivery and look forward to receiving the books. Should you have any questions or require further clarification, please feel free to contact us.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

(BADRINATH KATTI) Proprietor.

Model Letter of Order 2:

Telephone: 0825 26834553 E-mail: spstores@gmail.com Fax: 0825 256834554 Mobile: 098856 23423

PAVAN PROVISION STORES No. 58, Municipal Complex B.D. Road DAVANAGERE – 577 002

No.: 235/PPSD/2025

28 August 2025

BHUVI GRAIN MERCHANTS No. 25, Market Road DHARWAD – 580 008

Dear Sir,

Sub: Placing a purchase order.

Thank you very much for promptly sending your quotation. We would like to place an order for the following items of food grains:

Sl. No. Item

Quantity

1. Jowar Bijapur

15 quintals

2. Jowar Hybrid 15 “

3. Small Green Corn 05 “

4. Ragi

10 “

5. Horse Pea

05 “

6. Pigeon pea

05 “

7. Groundnut Seed 02 “

8. Sunflower Seed 02 “

9. Wheat

10 “

10.

Sona Masoori Rice 10 “

11.

Toor Dal

02 “

12.

Urad Dal

01 “

13.

Moong Dal

02 “

Kindly confirm the receipt of this order. Please supply the good within a week. Please ensure the quality of all the food grains meets the quoted standards. As per our agreed-upon terms, payment will be made within 10 days of the delivery. We look forward to receiving this order promptly.

Thank you for your continued excellent service.

Yours sincerely,

(PAVANPUTRA P.)

Model Letter of Order 3:

Web: www.rangbhirang.com E-mail: rangbhirang@gmail.com Telephone: 08194 24532 Mobile: 94484 64454

RANGBHIRANG PAINTS No.402, Ashoka Road CHITRADURGA – 577 501

Order No. 65/CSAWM/2014

16 August 2025

ASIAN PAINTS PVT. LTD. 687, Shalimar Road PUNE - 411 029

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Order for paints.

Thank you very much for your quotation. We would like to place an order for the following Asian paints as per your quotation:

Sl. No. Item Description Colour Catalogue No. Quantity

1. Exterior paint Grey 540 100 tins of 20 litre each

2. Exterior paint Light Blue 442 100 tins of 20 litre each

3. Exterior paint Terracotta 242 100 tins of 20 litre each

4. Enamel paint Gloss Black 135 100 tins of 10 litre each

5. Interior Emulsion White 256 100 tins of 20 litre each

6. Interior Emulsion Cream 258 100 tins of 20 litre each

Please arrange to deliver the goods carriage paid at the above address by 25 August 2025. If the goods do not tally with our specifications, we reserve our right to reject them. We will send the cheque for the amount of the bill after we receive the goods.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

for RANGBHIRANG PAINTS (RICHY RAJAN) Purchases Manager.

Model Letter of Order 4:

E-mail: roshnienter@yahoo.com Telephone: 08192 234343 Mobile: 98004 49694

ROSHNI ENTERPRISES Dealers in Cosmetics and Beauty Aids Municipal Complex, P.B. Road HARIHAR – 577 601 Ref. No.: REH/52/2025

14 June 2025

M/S. JILANI AND BROTHERS Dealers in Maquillages Avenue Road BANGALORE – 560 001

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Order for Cosmetic items. Thank you for your quotation dated 5 June 2025. Please accept this letter as a formal purchase order for the following cosmetic items on the terms and conditions quoted by you:

Sl. No. Product Name Shade/Variant Unit Price Quantity

(if applicable) (Rs)

1 Hydrating Face Serum All skin types 850.00 50

2 Matte Finish Foundation Ivory, Beige, Tan 1200.00 30 each shade

3 Volumizing Mascara Black 600.00 70

4 Long-lasting Lipstick Ruby Red, Coral Pink 750.00 40 each shade

5 Eye shadow Palette Neutral Tones 1500.00 25

6 Gentle Cleansing Milk Normal to Dry Skin 550.00 50

Please ensure the order is delivered to our shop within a week. Kindly notify us at least 24 hours prior to delivery. All the items should be securely packaged to prevent any damage. We reserve the right to reject the goods if they do not tally with our specifications and if delivered late. Please include a detailed invoice with the shipment, clearly stating our purchase order number for reference. As our agreement, the payment will be made within a week after the delivery.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(ROSHNI ROJA) Proprietor

Exercise:

1. As a proprietor of a book store, place an order for the required books.

2. Place an order for different items of readymade garments for your textile shop.

3. Draft an order for required goods for your General Stores.

4. You are the owner of a dry fruit shop. Place an order for the required dry fruits.

4. COMPLAINTS AND REPLIES TO THEM

Sometimes after an order has been accepted, it is possible that the customer is not completely satisfied with the transaction. On delivery, the buyer may be unhappy with the quality of the goods, damaged goods delivered, unwanted goods, excess goods, wrong goods, different goods, incorrect bill, excess prices charged, or with the delay in delivery. In such cases, the customer can let the supplier/service provider know about his/her discontentment as it is the consumer's right to receive satisfactory goods/service. When making a complaint, it is important to be polite, to avoid aggression or anger, and give the seller a chance to rectify the problem. After all, it is human to err. It is important that a business organisation handles complaints promptly and with tact. The way in which the complaint is attended to will decide whether the buyer will do business with the seller again or not. The goodwill of any business organisation depends on the satisfaction of the customer. Acceptance of error; honest, right, and immediate action to correct it; and politeness are very important.

Points to remember:

- Complaints should be clear and detailed, pointing out exactly what has gone wrong in the transaction and how it has caused you inconvenience.
- If terms agreed upon mutually have not been kept, mention these and refer to prior correspondence.
- Give the complaint letter a reference number for future reference in case the need for followup arises.
- Do not be angry or abusive as this might cause anger and resentment. Your complaint is likely to be redressed more effectively if the tone of the letter is polite but firm.
- Provide necessary information such as order number, product code, delivery date, payment details, quality of the product and its condition on receipt. This will give the seller an opportunity to understand the problem better and solve it immediately and properly.
- If you are the seller, handle the complaint promptly and politely to retain your good will.

Model Letter (of Complaint about the delay in delivery) 1:

E-mail: sprinters@gmail.com

Web: www.sprinters.com Telephone: 08192 234543 Mobile: 94484 38837

SRUJAN PRINTERS No. 453, Shivamogga Road HARIHAR – 577 601

No.: 242/SPH/2025

25 July 2014

BHADRAVATI PAPER MILLS D. V. G. Road, Industrial Area BHADRAVATI – 560 002

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Complaint about the delay in delivery of the goods ordered.

I am writing to express my strong dissatisfaction regarding the large delay in the execution of our order (No. 235/SPH/2025) placed on 10 May 2025. This order included important raw materials of paper for our printing works. According to our confirmed agreement, the expected delivery date for this order was 20 May 2025. As of today (25 May 2025), the goods have still not been received. This delay of over 05 days is completely unacceptable and has caused considerable disruption to our printing works. Specifically, this delay has resulted in a halt in our production leading to missed deadlines with our own clients. It has also caused us financial losses due to the idle labour and machinery. Moreover, it has caused a big damage to our reputation with customers expecting timely delivery from us. We understand that unforeseen circumstances can sometimes arise, but we have not received any communication or explanation regarding this substantial delay. Our attempts to reach your delivery department have not yielded a satisfactory update. We expect an explanation for this delay and details on how you plan to mitigate the impact on our business. If we do not receive the ordered goods by 30 May 2025, we will be forced to consider alternative sourcing and may seek compensation for the losses incurred. We look forward to your prompt response and a swift resolution to this critical issue. Thank you. Yours sincerely,

For SRUJAN PRINTERS (GURUPRASAD J.A.) Purchases Manager.

Model Letter (of Reply to the above) 2:

E-mail: bpmills@gmail.com

Web: www.bpmills.com Telephone: 08182 289543 Mobile: 74484 78837 BHADRAVATI PAPER MILLS D. V. G. Road, Industrial Area BHADRAVATI – 560 002

Our Ref. No.: 202/BPM/2025 Your Ref. No.: 242/SPH/2025 28 May 2025

SRUJAN PRINTERS No. 453, Shivamogga Road HARIHAR – 577 601

Dear Sir,

Sub: Reply to your complaint.

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding your order (No. 235/SPH/2025) to our attention. We sincerely apologize for the significant and unacceptable delay in the delivery of the goods ordered which was due on 20 May 2025.

We understand the critical impact this delay has had on your operations, particularly the disruption to your printing works and the potential financial losses you have highlighted. Please be assured that we have taken your feedback very seriously. There was a rush of bulk orders to be executed. At the same time, a sudden strike by labourers in our production wing resulted in the suspension of work for a week. This caused the delay in delivery to you. We deeply regret that this information was not communicated to you on time in a proper manner.

However, we are pleased to inform that the issue has now been resolved and the production of printing paper has resumed. Your consignment of paper has been dispatched today by Express Courier Service and you will receive it tomorrow.

To mitigate the impact of this delay, we would like to offer an extra discount of 5 % on the quoted price and allow the same extra discount on your next order also. We value your business greatly and are committed to maintaining our strong business relationship. We assure you we have taken measures to prevent similar occurrences in the future.

Thank you for your patience and understanding. We are confident that the goods will reach you tomorrow and that you will be satisfied with the quality of our products once received.

Yours sincerely,

For BHADRAVATI PAPER MILLS (MAHABALESH M. N.) Sales Manager.

Model Letter (of Complaint about the delay the damaged goods) 3:

Web: www.sgparadise.in

Email: sgparadise@gmail.com

Telephone: 08193 373636 Mobile: 94476 54476

SUNSHINE GLASS PARADISE Kalpataru Complex, Bengaluru Road HIRIYUR – 577 598 Ref. No.: 246/SGPH/2025 28 June 2025 BENGALURU GLASSWARES K.H. Road, Shantinagar BENGALURU – 560 008

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Complaint about the damaged goods delivered. We thank you for your prompt supply of glass mirrors, vases, and trays as per our order (No.: 240/SGPH/2025 dated 20 June 2025). We, however, regret to inform you that 25 Belgium mirrors, 15 vases and 30 trays have been found in a damaged condition and are unfit for sale. On a careful examination of the damaged things, we feel that the damage is due to careless packing. This has caused a big disturbance to our business as we have not been able to cater to the needs of our customers and resulted in a damage to our goodwill.

As mentioned in our order, we seek the replacement of the damaged glassware at your cost before 8 July 2025. The damaged goods shall be sent to you, if you wish, at your cost.

Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

for SUNSHINE GLASS PARADISE

(ARUNA AVALAKKI) Partner.

Model Letter (of Reply to the above) 4:

Web: www.bglasswares.in

Email: bglasswares@gmail.com Telephone: 080 22984355

Mobile: 78478 44123

BENGALURU GLASSWARES K.H. Road, Shantinagar BENGALURU – 560 008

Ref. No.: 312/BGB/2025 Your Ref. No.: 246/SGPH/2025 1 July 2025

SUNSHINE GLASS PARADISE Kalpataru Complex, Bengaluru Road HIRIYUR – 577 598

Dear Sir,

Thank you for your letter of 28 June 2025 and for bringing the matter to our attention. We are extremely sorry to note that some of the glass items were damaged in transit. Your complaint has been attended to on the day of the receipt of the complaint letter. You need not worry at all. You will be happy to know that we have dispatched the replacements today. You will receive them tomorrow only. You need not send the damaged goods back and please dispose them off as you feel fit.

We are sorry for the inconvenience caused to you. We shall see that such things never repeat again. Please inform us of your satisfaction with the replacements.

Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

(BINDAS BHUPATI B B) Proprietor.

Model Letter (of Complaint about the supply of goods of different quality) 5:

Web: www.saigb.in

E-mail: saigb@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 238450

Mobile: 9884038181 SAI GARDEN DABA Near Shamanur, Bypass Road DAVANAGERE – 577 005

Ref. No.: 81/SGB/2025

20 June 2025

NILKAMAL FURNITURES No. 342, Nehru Road MUMBAI – 400 022

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Complaint about the supply of goods of inferior quality

Ref: Our order No. 124/OMGH/2025 dated 10 June 2025

We thank you for your prompt supply of 100 Nilkamal garden chairs. Upon inspection, we have come to know that the chairs sent by you are not of the same quality that we had approved of while placing the order with you. This has caused us much inconvenience.

We had clearly mentioned in our order that we would reject the goods if they did not tally with our specifications. Now, we wish you to replace the chairs, at your cost, with the ones we had specified in our order.

We value our business relationship and appreciate your prompt action.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(SAI RAMRAHIM S.) Partner.

Model Letter (of Reply to the above) 6:

Web: www.nilfur.in

E-mail: nilfur@gmail.com Telephone: 022 5482484

Mobile: 7817824567 NILKAMAL FURNITURES No. 342, Nehru Road MUMBAI – 400 022

Our Ref. No:

Your Ref. No.: 81/SGB/2025 25 June 2025

SAI GARDEN DABA Near Shamanur, Bypass Road DAVANAGERE – 577 005

Dear Sirs, We thank you for your letter of 20 June 2025 and bringing your concerns to our attention. We sincerely apologize for the inconvenience and frustration caused by the goods of inferior quality supplied to you. We have conducted a thorough investigation into the matter. The report that we received today shows that an error has taken place in filling up your order. The chairs, which were sent to you, were meant for a different customer. But, through oversight, it was sent to you.

We regret the mistake that has caused you both embarrassment and inconvenience. We have already sent the replacement by passenger train. We request you to return the chairs to us at our cost.

We value your business and are committed to ensuring your satisfaction. We appreciate your patience and understanding. We again apologize for the inconvenience caused to you and we assure you that additional precaution will be taken in future to avoid such mistakes.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, for NILKAMAL FURNITURES

(MALLIK ROBERT K.) Sales Manager.

Model Letter (of Complaint about the discrepancies in the execution of the order) 7:

Web: www.sanjeevini.in

E-mail: sanjeevini@gmail.com Telephone: 08182 246244 Mobile: 94493 84483

SANJEEVINI MEDICALS No. 369, Main Bazaar Road CHALLAKERE – 577 522

Ref. No.: 218/SMC/2025

10 June 2025

MOON PHARMACEUTICALS No. 402, II Cross, M.G. Road BENGALURU – 560 002

Dear Sir/Madam,

Sub: Complaint about the improper execution of our order. Ref.: Your Bill No.: 2568/MPB/2025 dated 6 June 2025.

Thank you for the supply of the goods ordered on time. But I am sorry to note that our order has not been executed properly. There are many discrepancies in the way of the execution of our order. They are listed as follows:

1. Box No. 3 05 bottles of Mucain Syrup damaged.

2. Box No. 4 90 Strips of Dolo 650 Tablets are found against 100 in the bill.

3. Box No. 5 40 Injections of different companies supplied against the order for those of Cadilla company.

4. Box No. 6 50 Vaselene bottles supplied in place of Vaseline bottles.

5. Alercet (Tablets) 10 Strips not supplied.

6. Nirdosh Cigarette 20 packs are sent against 30 in the bill.

Please attend to the complaint immediately. The payment will be made only after the complaint is attended to accurately and honestly. The unwanted items are sent back to you at your cost. Please attend to us immediately.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

(AMARAKSHARI M.G.) Proprietor.

Model Letter (of Reply to the above Complaint) 8:

Web: www.moonpharma.in

E-mail: moonpharma@gmail.com Telephone: 080 25646244 Mobile: 94563 67483

MOON PHARMACEUTICALS No. 402, II Cross, M.G. Road

BENGALURU – 560 002

Our Ref. No.: 246/MPB/2025 Your Ref. No.: 218/SMC/202 14 June 2025

SANJEEVINI MEDICALS No. 369, Main Bazaar Road CHALLAKERE – 577 522

Dear Madam,

Sub: Response to your complaint about supply of medicine. Ref: Your letter No.: 218/SMC/2025 dated 10 June 2025.

Thank you for bringing your concerns regarding the recent delivery under the purchase order (218/SMC/2025 dated 10 June 2025) to our attention. We sincerely apologize for the inconvenience caused by the improper execution of your order. This does not meet our usual standards and we have taken this issue seriously. We feel that it is our duty to serve you in the right way. You will be happy to know that we have set everything right immediately.

The injections of the Cadilla company are out of stock. The company has stopped sending injections all of a sudden. The injections of the Allheal company have the same effect and result. That's why we sent them. If you do not want to keep them, please send them back.

The other items of short supply, wrong supply, and replacement are dispatched today through National Transport Service. You will receive them tomorrow. Please inform us of your satisfaction after you receive the consignment. We value your business and are committed to ensuring your satisfaction. We appreciate your patience and understanding. We are sorry for the inconvenience once again. We shall see that such things do not happen in future.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

(MOON SEN S.M.) Proprietor.

Exercises:

1. Write a letter of complaint about the delay in the delivery of goods ordered. Add a warning that the order will be cancelled if the goods are not delivered within a week.
2. Write a letter of complaint to the supplier, complaining about the damaged goods delivered to you and ask for replacement.
3. As the proprietor of Vinuta Traders, Palace Road, Harihar-1, write a letter of complaint to Nutan Enterprises, Jayanagar, Bangalore-10, about the incorrect goods delivered.
4. Write a complaint letter as the Librarian of a college to the Sapna Book House, Akka Mahadevi Road, Davanagere, complaining about the short supply of books to your library.

5. CIRCULARS

A circular or circular letter can be defined as a letter meant to convey information (which is of common interest and importance) about a business firm to all of its customers, friends, partners, and others concerned with it. Circulars could be written for communicating the following:

1. Announcement of a reduction/discount/clearance sale.

2. Introduction of new products to market.

3. Shifting of business to new premises.

4. Establishment/opening of a new business/branch/shop.

5. Renovation/expansion of a business shop.

6. Amalgamation of business, purchase of a new business, transfer of business, taking up of agency, conversion of firm, etc.

7. The change of address, personnel, powers of members; death of a partner, retirement of a partner, admission of a new partner, granting of the power of attorney, etc. Note:

• Circulars must have a personal touch and a friendly tone.

• The language should be attractive and polite.

• They should be clear and complete with all the details.

• The beginning should arouse interest, the message should sustain it and the conclusion should motivate immediate and positive response.

Model Circular 1 (Announcement of a Discount Sale):

Web: www.bsctextiles.in

E-mail: bsctextiles@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 244566

Mobile: 9448008449

BALEHALLI TEXTILES No. 56, P.B. Road DAVANAGERE – 577 002

1 August 2025

Dear Patron,

We have some HOT NEWS especially for you! On the eve of all festivals, prices of all textiles, silks, sarees, and dresses tend to go up, but NOT AT OUR SHOP. We are thrilled to announce a special ‘Grand Discount Sale’ of our stocks of wonderful variety.

Prices marked DOWN to 50% or more. Get ready to enjoy incredible savings on a wide range of items, effective immediately.

You have a DOUBLE ADVANTAGE! Grand Discount and Free Coupon!!

For every purchase worth Rs. 5000, you will get a Free Coupon. In the ‘Lucky Draw’ on 31 August, you may win goods worth Rs. 1000.

We welcome you between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. without mid-day closure.

Don’t miss out on these fantastic deals! The discount sale will run till 30 August. We invite you to visit our shop soon to take advantage of the savings. Hurry up!

Thank you very much.

Yours sincerely,

(BALEHALLIMATH N. M.)

Proprietor.

Model Circular 2 (Introduction of new products to the market):

Web: www.malnaad.com E-mail: malnaad@gmail.com Telephone: 08182 434215

Mobile: 9448199442

MALNAAD FOOTWEARS No. 328, Near Gopi Circle, Nehru Road SHIVAMOGGA – 577 201

20 March 2025

Dear Sir/Madam,

Are you worried about the approaching rainy season which troubles you while walking on the streets in continuous downpour?

You need not be bothered when we are with you with our MALNAAD FOOTWEARS! We will empower you to face the problem of slippery streets and lousy leeches during the rains.

Of course, the continuous downpour in this part of the country during the monsoons for four long months is in no way problematic when you are suitably shoed. Shoes made of inferior quality rubber and old technology are not suitable for wearing in rains. Such shoes can create pinching discomfort and may cause serious trouble.

You will be immensely pleased to learn that we have introduced the RAINY RAJA and BAARISH BEAUTY shoes to meet the requirements of people during the monsoons. They are made of strong but soft rubber and the sole is designed to give comfort and luxury. While Rainy Raja is meant for genuine gentlemen, Baarish Beauty is for lovely ladies.

These shoes are available in various sizes and colours. The prices range from Rs. 300 to Rs.600. The illustrated catalogue will show you the different models of our new shoes. They are available at all the leading shops.

Remember that only WE care always for YOU only.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

(ACHCHARI H. N.) Proprietor.

Encl.: Catalogue

Model Circular 3 (Shifting of business to new premises):

Web: smartmb.co.in

E-mail: smartmb@yahoo.com Telephone: 08192 2343234

Mobile: 9823466778

MAHA SMART BAZAARS 258, Trishul Complex, Hadadi Road DAVANAGERE - 577 002

30 April, 2025

Dear Patron,

We are excited to announce that we HAVE SHIFTED from our old address mentioned above to the following address:

No. 528, Brihada Buildings Near Gulabi Circle, Pushpavalli Road DAVANAGERE – 577 004

We are pleased to inform you that, in the last ten years, we have grown with your patronage and cooperation so much that our old premises were too small for us to serve you efficiently. This necessitated our shifting to a spacious building. The new premises are centrally situated. They are very spacious. They are easily accessible by road and rail. You have easy parking facilities. This shift marks a significant milestone for our business, reflecting our continued growth and commitment to provide you with even better service. Our phone numbers, email address, and website will remain the same.

Our store has many sections to provide for the new lines of goods we have added to satisfy YOU. With more space and more sections, we are in a better position to serve you and satisfy you more effectively to the best satisfaction of you.

We thank you for your patronage and co-operation in the past and hope that you will continue to extend the same in future also. We shall continue to do our utmost to ensure that you are completely satisfied the way in which you have always been for so many years.

You are most welcome to our shop at the new premises. Make MAHA SMART BAZAARS a pleasant shopping center of yours.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely, For MAHA SMART BAZAARS

(SHIVANETRA S.P.) Partner.

Model Circular 4 (Opening of a new branch):

Web: www.gsdomeliances.in E-mail: gsd2000@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 242628

Mobile: 99444 33423

GRIHASHOBHA DOMELIANCES 246, Srujan Complex, Near Bus Stand, DAVANAGERE – 577 001

10 June 2025

Dear Patron,

We are thrilled to announce the grand opening of this new branch located at the above address. We have come to your city. Just within ten years of establishment, GRIHASHOBHA DOMELIANCES have become famous for all kinds of domestic appliances all over the country. Having won the appreciation of our customers in Bengaluru, Mysuru, Shivamogga, Dharwad, and Haveri, we have now opened our branch in your city, at the address given above. Our show room is located at a convenient place with all facilities. It is at the centre of the town with parking facilities and easy transport.

GRIHASHOBHA DOMELIANCES is the largest stockist of all types of electrical gadgets and appliances for YOUR HOME. It will be a great pleasure to assist you in your purchase and maintenance of any domestic electrical equipment. You can have anything and everything from a toaster to refrigerator. You will also get specialized service from us.

The branch will be in the charge of Ms. Vismaya. She is a resident of Davanagere, and she has been our sales representative for that region for the last five years. We are quite sure that her close connections with the customers of the locality and her special ability and experience in marketing will be of great value to us to provide the best services to our customers. Our representative will be glad to call on you at any time for demonstration, assistance in selection, advice on electrical fittings, and any kind of discussion on any of our products.

You are most welcome to our show room at the above address. You will be glad you visited it.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, for GRIHASHOBHA DOMELIANCES

(VISHVAVANDYA S.P.) Partner.

Model Circular 5 (An announcement of amalgamation of two concerns into one):

Web: www.applesung.com

E-mail: applesung@gmail.com Telephone: 080 29267462 Mobile: 94493 21123 APPLESUNG MOBILES N0. 354, Suvarna Complex M.G. Road, BENGALURU – 560 010

20 January 2025

Dear Sir/Madam, We are very happy to state that our two firms—Apple Mobiles and Samsung Mobiles—have amalgamated under the title APPLESUNG MOBILES. The amalgamation came into existence from 1 January 2025. The office of the amalgamated firms has already been shifted to the above address. All communications may please be addressed to it only. We firmly believe that this amalgamation will enable us to effect many changes in the form and function of the mobiles that have been very famous all over the world. We are sure that these changes will give added satisfaction to our customers. It is true that the composition of the business has changed. But we assure you that as far as the interests of the customers are concerned, the change is only in the name. The traditions of cordial relationship and courteous service of both the firms will be maintained and will continue with added strength of the amalgamation. We take this opportunity to express our thanks to you for your past cooperation and wish that you will continue to extend the same in the future as well. We shall continue to do our best to ensure that you are completely satisfied with the way in which we serve you in future. Yours sincerely, for APPLESUNG MOBILES

(Shrinivas Sebastian) Partner.

Exercises:

1. Draft a circular announcing a grand reduction sale with an attractive prize scheme.

2. Write a circular announcing the opening of a new branch of your firm in Bengaluru.

3. Draft a circular announcing the shifting of business to a spacious building in the same city.

4. As the manager of your firm, you intend to clear off your existing old stocks lying in the godown. Write a suitable and attractive circular to your customers to purchase them at reduced prices in a grand reduction sale.

5. You manufacture various cosmetic items. Draft a circular letter to your customers inviting them to visit your stall in the Exhibition to be held in the first week of the next month.

6. Write a circular informing your customers about the introduction of a new product into the market. Explain the merits of the new product in attractive words to popularise it.

7. Draft circular letter to inform the readers of the death of a partner and the admission of a new partner in his/her place.

8. Write a circular letter to inform your customers about the resignation of your sales representative and the appointment of a new representative.

6. COMMERCIAL TERMS

1. Agenda: A list of items of business to be considered at a meeting.

2. Arbitrage: Buying securities in one stock exchange and selling them in another in order to make profit out of the difference in the two markets.

3. Bear: A speculator on the stock exchange, who sells shares when prices are expected to fall in order to make a profit by buying them back again at a lower price later.

4. Bill of exchange: It is a written, unconditional order signed by one party (the drawer) directing another party (the drawee) to pay a specific sum of money to a third party (the payee) or to the bearer of the instrument, either on demand or at a fixed or determinable future time

5. Bill of lading: A document issued by the ship owner or his agent acknowledging receipt of goods taken on board and the terms under which they have to be carried.

6. Blockchain: It is used in crypto currency. A blockchain is essentially a continuously growing list of records called ‘blocks,’ which are linked and secured using cryptography. Each block contains a set of verified transactions. Once a transaction is recorded on the blockchain, it is virtually impossible to alter.

7. Blue chips: Equity shares of companies that are considered to be safe and sure to make a profit.

8. Bucket shop: The office of a broker who buys or sells on behalf of someone else on commission.

9. Bull: A speculator on the stock exchange, who buys shares when prices are expected to rise in order to make a profit by selling them back again at a higher price later.

10. Bullion: Gold or silver in the form of mass or bars.

11. Catalogue: An information booklet or brochure published by the seller which includes pictorial description of the goods available along with prices, make, qualities, and terms of trade.

12. COD: Abbreviation of cash on delivery; the price mentioned in the invoice is payable by the buyer as soon as the goods are delivered.

13. Credit Score: It is a numerical representation of an individual’s creditworthiness.

In simpler terms, it is a number that tells lenders (like banks, credit card companies, etc.) how likely you are to repay barrowed money on time.

14. CIBIL (Credit Information Bureau (India) Limited) Score: It is another name for Credit Score. It is a three-digit number (ranging from 300 to 900) that reflects a person’s creditworthiness. It summarises a person’s credit history, including past loan repayments, credit card usage, and other borrowing activities. A higher CIBIL score indicates a lower risk for lenders, making it easier to get loans and credit cards with better terms.

15. Credit or Status enquiry: An enquiry made by the seller about the buyer who has placed a credit order with him. The seller writes to the referees seeking information about the buyers' financial and business status, which would be kept confidential.

16. Crypto Currency: It is a digital or virtual currency that uses cryptography for security. Unlike traditional currencies (like USD, INR), it is decentralised, meaning it is not issued or controlled by a central authority like a government or bank. Crypto currencies exist purely as digital entries in an online database. There are no physical coins or bills. Crypto refers to the advanced encryption techniques used to secure transactions and control the creation of new units. This makes them highly secure and difficult to counterfeit.

17. Demat Account: It (Short for 'Dematerialised Account') is an electronic account that holds your financial securities like shares, bonds, mutual funds, government securities, and Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) in a digital format. Just as a bank account holds your money, a Demat account holds your securities electronically.

18. Demurrage: The daily charge made for retention of a ship, a vessel, or a cargo at a port, terminal, or other location because of the delay in loading or unloading beyond the agreed upon free time.

19. Dispatch note: Intimation of delivery of goods to the buyer, including invoice and parcel waybill.

20. Dividend: Share of profits given to the shareholders.

21. Dunning letters: Dunning letters (collection letters) or notices are formal payment reminders written to customers, who fail to make due payment within the stipulated time, making demands for the payment of the due debt.

22. Firm offer: An offer made by a seller whereby he/she promises to execute an order for specified goods at specified prices within a specified period.

23. FOB: Abbreviation of free on board, sometimes of freight on board; a price quotation which includes the cost of loading the goods onto the ship, but does not include the freight. In this, it is the seller's risk and responsibility till the goods are loaded onto the ship.

24. FOR: Abbreviation of free on rail; a price quotation which includes the cost of transportation of goods to the railway station and loading them into the railway wagon, but it does not include the freight. In this, it is the seller's risk and responsibility till the goods are loaded onto the railway wagon.

25. Futures: Futures or futures contracts are standardised legal agreements to buy or sell a specific asset at a predetermined price on a specified future date. Futures are goods or shares bought or sold at an agreed price for delivery at a specified future date.

26. Hammering: The process of declaring a member of the stock exchange a defaulter.

27. Hedging: It is a risk management strategy used to reduce or offset potential financial losses from an investment. It is a way of protecting oneself against loss by investing in opposing ways. The practice of covering the risks in transactions in cash market by contra transactions in the futures market. Thus, it is protecting one's investment against loss by making balancing or compensating contracts or transactions.

28. Hundi: A negotiable instrument of the nature of a bill of exchange. It is a traditional financial instrument that originated in Medieval India and has been used for centuries, primarily in trade and credit transactions. Reserve Bank of India defines hundi as 'an unconditional order in writing made by a person directing another to pay a certain sum of money to a person named in the order.'

29. Invoice: An account or bill (sent by a seller to the buyer) of goods sent or services provided with particulars of quantity, quality, and the total amount for payment at a later time. It may also include the buyer's order number, the mode of dispatch, and the terms of payment.

30. Liquid assets: Assets that can be easily, quickly, and securely converted into cash without a significant loss in their market value. For example, stocks, shares, bonds, mutual funds, exchange traded funds, etc.

31. Quotation: An offer to sell goods or services at fixed prices, under specific terms and conditions, fixed number of goods/services, and before a fixed period of time.

32. Repo Rate: (short for Repurchase Agreement Rate) is the interest rate at which a country's central bank (like the Reserve Bank of India) lends money to commercial banks. Commercial banks sell their government securities (treasury bills or bonds) to the central bank, with an agreement to buy them back later at a slightly higher price. The difference between the selling price and the repurchase price is essentially the interest paid by the commercial bank, and this interest is the repo rate.

33. Scrip: A provisional certificate of money subscribed to a bank or company, entitling the holder to a formal certificate and dividends. It also refers to an issue of additional share to shareholder, in proportion to the shares already held, or instead of a dividend.

34. Sensex: It is a portmanteau (combination) of 'sensitive' and 'index.' It is the benchmark stock market index of India. It stands for Stock Exchange Sensitive Index and is primarily associated with the Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE). It is widely considered a barometer of the Indian stock market, and, by extension, the overall health of the Indian economy.

35. Slump: A period of abnormally low economic activity with falling prices, sales, profits, market value, and generally low business.

36. Stag: A speculator (investor) who applies for a new issue of shares not with the intention of taking them up, but in anticipation of a rise in their value, which would enable him to sell at a profit before he has to complete his purchase.

37. Tariff: Tax or duty imposed on certain goods of import.

38. Warranty: A written promise issued by a manufacturing company to a buyer to repair or replace a product, if necessary, within a specified period.

39. Wash sales: A fictitious transaction in which a speculator sells a share and then buys it at a higher price through another broker to create an artificial opinion about its price in the market.

Question Paper Pattern

HARVEST II

III Sem BCom/BBA (SEP 2025-26) (Internal Assessment for 20 Marks + Examination for 80 Marks) Basic English

Time: 3 Hours

Max. Mark: 80

Part I: Novella:

1. Short Notes: Answer any four out of six:

04 X 05 = 20

2. Descriptive: Answer any three out five:

03 X 10 = 30

Part II: Writing Skills:

Questions on all the six chapters (no choice) 06 X 05 = 30

Unit II: Workbook

IV SEMESTER B.COM. / B.B.A.

1. LETTERS OF JOB APPLICATIONS WITH RESUME (CV)

After completing your studies, when you decide to take up a job that suits your qualifications and skills, the first thing that you will be required to do is to write an application for a job. But getting a job that suits you takes more than just sending out a few applications. First of all, you need to know your own qualifications and skills and your expectation from the job. Then, on the basis of this, you can identify the employers who may be in search of a person with the qualifications and skills that you possess for the kind of job that interest you.

The letter of application is written when you get to know of a specific job opening, and you want to apply for it directly. It is usually accompanied by a resume (pronounced re-zyu-may) also known as curriculum vitae (CV) or bio-data. Résumé is a French word meaning 'summary' whereas curriculum vitae is Latin which means 'course of life.' Both are similar in structure and content.

There are two types of applications: 1. Solicited applications are written in response to the advertisements which appear in the newspapers and 2. Unsolicited applications are written not in response to the advertisements but when a candidate comes to know of a vacancy from a reliable source. Job applications are incredibly important for several reasons even in today's digital age.

DRAFTING AN APPLICATION (with a covering letter and a resume):

A letter of application is your very first communication with the prospective employer, who will form his/her first impression about you from it. That is why it is very essential that your application letter be neat, well structured, and provide all the necessary information at a glance. Your application is a form of advertising, so make the letter persuasive.

Your cover letter allows you to introduce yourself in a personal and compelling way. It is your first impression that goes beyond the bullet points of your resume. Your resume provides a factual overview of your qualifications, skills, and work experience.

The main object of an application is to get you an interview. Therefore, it is essential that your letter stimulates prospective employers' interest in your skills and accomplishments and give them a clear idea about you can satisfy the needs of their establishment. Project your skills with confidence. This is possible only when you believe in your capabilities and yourself.

In your job application, your focus must be on:

- The job requirements specified by the employer—qualifications, skills, experience, etc.
- The special qualities you possess that will make you stand out from the rest.
- Your knowledge about the organization.
- Your communication skills, problem-solving ability, soft skills, etc.
- The style and layout are also important. Avoid grammatical and spelling errors. Use good quality paper and printing. Take care not to crumple the edges or stain the paper.

- Omit personal information that is not relevant to the job.
- Edit the application carefully to make sure that there are no errors and it is effective.

An effective covering letter should have the following features:

- It should be informative and to the point.
- The tone of the letter should be friendly but formal.
- It should be a single page—three paragraphs ideal.
- Same covering letter and resume should not be used for different jobs.
- The covering letter shows that you have taken time to research the company and the specific job, indicating your genuine interest and enthusiasm.
- The covering letter is an opportunity to show how your skills and experiences match with the requirements of the job by highlighting your relevant achievements.
- While the resume is a list of your skills and accomplishment, the covering letter subtly demonstrates your soft skills of communication, critical thinking, and problem-solving through your writing style and well-structured format.
- The covering letter should make you stand out from the rest. Many applicants might have the same or higher qualifications than you. It should showcase your unique personality, passion, and suitability for the post.
- Your covering letter should not appear overloaded with information. Leave enough white space, so that it looks appealing to the eye.

Writing a Resume/CV:

After the covering letter, we come to the second part of letter of application, which is the personal data sheet, referred to as resume as well as curriculum vitae. Even in walking interviews, the candidates are expected to carry her/his resume/cv along with other related documents for the purpose of verification. Take great care while drafting your resume/cv. If required, write several rough drafts before writing the final draft. This will help you make your resume/cv attractive, comprehensive, and compact.

An effective resume/cv should have the following features:

- It should not be more than one page. But if you have a long list of qualification, skills and experiences, you may have to prepare a somewhat longer resume/cv.
- It should be in an appropriate format. It should present all the important information in a visually appealing manner. It helps the reader to easily grasp and verify the facts.
- It should not include much information.
- It should have only facts and not opinions.

- It should not mention your desired salary, work schedule, or any unnecessary information.
- The format, style, and the contents of the resume/cv should show that you are result-oriented, capable, a go-getter, adaptable, optimistic, have personal standards or excellence and strong communication skills.

Specific guidelines for writing a resume/cv:

- Your resume/cv must be neatly printed or typed and appealing to the eye. The placement and sequencing of information should be attractively designed. Subtitles should be easily visible. Do not cram too much material on a single sheet.
- Give your contact details, such as the address at which you are presently living, a telephone number that will always be answered during business hours and your email address.
- Be sure to clearly list your academic qualifications and your work experience (if any). With regard to work experience, give details of organizations where you worked earlier, with dates and responsibilities. Highlight your achievements; for example, 'headed a sales team of twelve and exceeded sales targets for three consecutive years.'

- Mention any other job-related skills (these include computer and language skills) that you think will add value to your resume/cv.
- Mention an area of expertise, for example 'budget planning,' to tell your prospective employers about your professional skills. Your resume/cv should not only say what you have done but it should indicate that you have what it takes to excel in the position concerned. However, do not exaggerate or mention things that are not true.
- Avoid giving information that is not relevant to the application. Personal information such as marital status, family and hobbies are strictly optional unless asked for.
- Do not use a single resume/cv for a variety of jobs. Your resume/cv should be shaped to the requirements of each job.

Look at the following sample applications:

1. A letter of job application for the post of junior accounts officer:

Amitha Kini H.N. No. 34, 4th Cross, 5th Main Road Vidyanagar DAVANAGERE – 577 003
Mobile: 98809 43483

12 June 2025

The Manager Oxford Publications M G Road BENGALURU – 560 005 080 24345685

Dear Sir/Madam,

Sub: Application for the Post of Junior Accounts Officer

Ref: Your advertisement in the website of your company dated 10 June 2025

I am writing to express my keen interest in the position of Junior Accounts Officer at the Oxford Publications, Bengaluru, as advertised in the website of the company on 10 June 2025. With three years of experience in accounting and financial management, coupled with a strong understanding of IFRS, GAAP, and financial analysis, I am confident that my skills and qualifications align perfectly with the requirements of this role.

In my previous role at Shabana Enterprises, Pune, I was responsible for managing general ledger operations, preparing financial statements, reconciling accounts, assisting with audits, implementing cost-saving measures, and handling multi-currency transactions. I successfully streamlined the month-end close process by identifying and reducing discrepancies leading to a 10% reduction in errors and accurately managed a budget of Rs. 15 crores. I am proficient in the accounting software/tools like Oracle, Tally, and Advanced Excel.

What particularly draws me to the Oxford Publications is its global presence, its commitment to innovation, and its reputation in the industry of printing and publication. I am eager to contribute my expertise to a dynamic and globally-oriented organization like yours and I am confident in my ability to manage complex financial operations and accounts and to adhere to international accounting standards.

I have attached my resume for your review. It provides further details on my educational qualifications and professional accomplishments. I am available for an interview at your earliest convenience and look forward to discussing how my skills can benefit your company.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

Amitha Kini H.N. (AMITHA KINI H.N.)

Encls: 1. Curriculum vitae

2. Attested copies of testimonials (08)

RESUME/CURRICULUM VITAE

Name : Amitha Kini H. N. Father’s name : Natarajan Kini N. N. Mother’s name : Nutanadevi N. N.

Address : No. 34, 4th Cross, 5th Main Road

Vidyanagar

Davanagere – 577 003

Mobile: 98809 43483 Mobile : 98809 43483 Email : amitha.kinihn@gmail.com Date of birth : 14 April 2000 Marital status : Unmarried Salary expected : Negotiable Nationality : Indian Qualifications :

Examination Board / University Year Result SSLC SSLC Board 2016 92% PUC PU Board 2018 90% B.COM. Davanagere 2021 89% MCA MICE, Mangalore 2022 ‘A’ grade

Languages known : Kannada, English, Hindi, Telugu, and Tamil. Special aptitudes : Maintenance of Accounts and Handling multi-currency transactions. Fields of interest : Sports (ball badminton), music. Hobbies : Gardening, reading, listening to classical music. Experience : Worked as a First Division Assistant with Shabana Enterprises, Pune, for three years

References : 1. Prof. Shreenivasa Murthy H. B. Head, Department of English B.V.K. First Grade College Davanagere – 577 002

2. Ms. Sharfunnisa Begum Manager, Shabana Enterprises

Chatrapati Shivaji Road Pune – 411 002 Amitha Kini H.N.

2 Look at the following letter of application for the job of a First Division Assistant: Shiva Sagar S.P. No. 54A, Soujanya Apartments Stadium Road Kelagote Layout CHITRADURGA – 577 502

22 June 2025

Vishishtha Infotech Pvt. Ltd. No. 656, Madhura Buildings G.T. Road BENGALURU – 560 024

Dear Sir,

Sub: Application for the post of a First Division Assistant Ref: Your advertisement in The Times of India dated 20 June 2025

With reference to the above, I feel that I have the right qualifications and experience for the post of a First Division Assistant for which you have advertised. I request you to please consider my application for the post.

I have enclosed my curriculum vitae and photocopies of all the testimonials for your perusal. I would welcome the opportunity to further discuss my skills and this position, and would be grateful if you could please grant me an interview to prove my eligibility and suitability for the role. I will be very happy to provide any other information you may require of me during the interview.

Thank you. Yours faithfully, Shiva S agar S.P. (Shiva Sagar S.M.)

Encl: 1. Curriculum vitae

2. Attested copies of testimonials (08)

RESUME/CURRICULUM VITAE

Name : Shiva Sagar S.P. Father’s name : Nagaraj Sagar S. P. Mother’s name : Subhashini S. P. Address : No. 54A, Soujanya Apartments Stadium Road

Kelagote Layout Chitradurga – 577 502 Mobile: 94456 34336 Email : shiva.sagarsp@rediffmail.com Date of birth : 25 May 2001 Marital status : Unmarried Salary expected : Negotiable Nationality : Indian Qualifications :

Examination Board / University Year Result SSLC SSLC Board 2017 90% PUC PU Board 2019 92% B.A. Davanagere University 2022 90% CCA MCA, Davanagere 2023 ‘A’ grade

Languages known : Kannada, English, Hindi, Telugu, and Tamil. Special aptitudes : Office Maintenance and Maintenance of Official Records. Fields of interest : Sports (cricket, football), art films Hobbies : Gardening, reading, listening to music Experience : Worked as a First Division Assistant with Sohan Private Limited, Chennai, for two years

References : 1. Prof. Shashidhar M. G. Head, Department of English J.M.M. First Grade College Chitradurga – 577 501

2. Mr. Sugunendra T. D. Manager, Sohan Private Ltd. Beach Road Chennai – 600 002

Shiva Sagar S.P.

3. Take a look at another letter of application. This one is for the role of an office assistant:

Avantika A. S. No. 82, 4 th Cross 2 nd Main, Vidyanagar HARIHAR – 577 601

15 July 2025

Mulimani Trading Company Post Box No. 582 26, Akash Heights Brigade Road BENGALURU – 560 053

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Application for the post of an office assistant Ref: Your advertisement in the Deccan Herald dated 14 July 2025

My name is Avantika. I would like to apply for the position of an office assistant at your Bengaluru regional office.

I have the necessary abilities which you may require—I possess excellent verbal and written communication and inter-personal skills; I am computer savvy; and I am a quick learner. In addition, I have worked for four years as an office assistant at Vidarbha Trading House, Bengaluru. I feel that I am qualified for the above profile.

I have attached my résumé.

I look forward to the possibility of a personal interview at your earliest convenience to further discuss my credentials with you and to learn more about Vidarbha Trading Company. Thank you. Yours faithfully,

Avantika A. S. (Avantika A. S.)

CURRICULUM VITAE Name : Avantika A. S. Father’s name : Avinash Varma M. S. Mother’s name : Madhumalini M. S. Address : No. 82, 4 th Cross 2 nd Main, Vidyanagar HARIHAR – 577 601 Contact number : 7847844123 Email : avantikaas@gmail.com Date of birth : 20 January 1995 Marital status : Married, with a child Salary expected : Negotiable Qualifications : Examination Board / University Year Result SSLC SSLC Board 2011 90% PUC PU Board 2013 91% B.B.M. Davanagere Univ. 2016 89% DCA MICE, Mangalore 2017 ‘A’ grade DOM KSOU, Mysore 2018 ‘A’ grade

Languages known : Kannada, English, and Hindi Special aptitudes : Maintenance of office and office records Fields of interest : Volleyball, chess, books, and music

Hobbies : Reading, collection of old and out-of-print books Experience : Worked as an office assistant with Vidarbha Trading House, Bengaluru, for four years.

Reference : 1. Prof. Avanidhar T. Head, Department of Commerce and Management GFG College HARIHAR – 577 601

2. Mr. G. T. Ravinarayan Manager, Vidarbha Trading House Sheshadri Complex, Dr Raj Road

BENGALURU – 560 023 Avantika A. S.

Exercise: Write job application letters in response to the following advertisements.

1. Wanted an office assistant for a reputed company based in Bengaluru. The candidate must be a graduate with an experience of at least two years. Computer knowledge and communicative English are necessary. Apply within a week to Post Box No. 458, c/o Bangalore Times, M. G. Road, Bengaluru – 560 001.

2. Wanted an office secretary for our Mumbai branch of Aditya International Real Estate Developers. The candidate must be a graduate with a thorough knowledge of correspondence and office management. Knowledge of computer and English essential. Experience preferred. Apply to the P. B. No. 848, c/o Bangalore Bulletins, Richmond Road, Bangalore – 560 012, within a week.

3. Wanted a DTP computer operator for our concern. The applicant must be a graduate with a diploma in DTP. Salary negotiable on the basis of experience. Preference will be given to experience. Apply within 10 days to P. B. No. 232, c/o The Hindu, Egmore, Chennai – 600 004.

4. A reputed MNC requires a Junior Assistant for its office. The candidate must have fluency in English. Knowledge of computer and office work essential. Preference will be given to graduates with experience. Apply stating all the necessary details within 10 days to P. B. No. 964, c/o The Times of India, M. G. Road, Bengaluru – 560 001.

5. Wanted a Technical Assistant for a reputed company based in Bangalore. The candidate must be a science graduate with chemistry as one of the optional subjects. Proficiency in the use of computer essential. Candidates with inquiring temperament and diligence preferred. Apply with all the necessary details to P. B. No. 595, c/o The Hindustan Times, M. G. Road, Bengaluru – 560 001.

2. E-MAIL LETTERS

Electronic mail, popularly known as e-mail, is electronic, global and interactive. Besides being fast, it can carry pictures, videos and audio materials, publish both text and hypertext in cyberspace and be stored on the web. E-mails are easily accessible anytime and anywhere in the world. Audio and video clips easily fit into this format and can be sent as an attachment or within the message. Technically speaking, e-mail is a method of communication whereby an individual or a company uses a computer or some other electronic device (like a cell phone) to compose and send a message to another individual or a group of individuals. Messages may be sent through computer systems linked by a network or through modems using telephone lines. E-mails may also be sent through wireless transmissions. They can be sent to one user at a time or broadcast to several users at the same time and usually take only a few minutes to arrives at their destination.

Every e-mail user has a unique address, such as john@gmail.com or disha02@rediffmail.com. Companies, institutions and governments create addresses for their employees to transact business related to their work and for easy identification.

Writing an E-mail:

Unlike a letter which is written on paper, put into an envelope and then sent through a post office or a courier, an e-mail is sent through a mail server electronically, read on the computer screen and is generally replied to immediately by clicking the reply button. Once it has been typed on screen, it is proof-read for errors or omissions and then sent as a reply to the sender of the letter. It should therefore be written like a letter and not like a telegram or an SMS (short message service), both of which have space constraints. E-mail is fast, flexible and reliable, though not always secure. Fully computerized companies use it extensively both for internal and external communication. It is used for all kinds of business communication including business enquiries, confirming orders, sending press releases, announcing sales promotions, explaining price changes and updating scripts, besides a host of other purposes. Because of their speed and convenience, e-mail messages are increasingly being used not only for personal but also in academic and business communication. Here are some important points to note about e-mail correspondence.

- Most businesses encourage their customers to write to them by providing a ‘Contact us’ button on their website. Many research departments and universities have also begun to use e-mail to send assignments to students and receive their responses.
- The tone you use should be appropriate to the relation you have with the recipient of your message. When you write to close friends, using informal or even causal language is acceptable. But when you are writing about an official or on a serious matter, use language appropriate to the topic and the person addressed.

An e-mail letter has the following components:

- From: The sender of the message will type his or her e-mail address here.
- To: This is for the e-mail address of the recipient; more than one address can be written, separated by commas.
- Date: This is automatically tagged on to the message by the service provider through which the email is sent. There is usually no need to write the date in the body of an email, unlike a formal letter.
- Cc (Carbon copy, or copy to): This is for a list of addresses to which you want to send copies of your message.
- Bcc (blind carbon copy): The recipients’ addresses typed here will not be seen by other recipients. Use this if you do not want the addressee to know the identity of those you are keeping informed.
- Subject: This is for the subject of the message. Do not leave this blank; give a specific title that will help the recipient know what the message is about.

• Attachments: These are files which go with your message. The recipient has to download them in order to read or see them.

Here is a specimen e-mail message:

To: salim.alpha@gmail.com Subject: Publication Proposal

4 April 2025: 10.30.55 NB/2456/34

Dr Salim Qureshi Alpha Technologies Vadodara 390001

Dear Dr Salim Qureshi,

Thank you for writing to us about your manuscript titled ‘Data Structures’. We are pleased to inform you that we are interested in principle in the publication proposal. Please send a summary of your work and a table of contents to edit.mumbai@hamsa.com. This will help us understand your proposal better.

Thank you again for approaching Hamsa Publishers. We look forward to hearing from you.

With regards,

Ashwin Malhotra Editors, Hamsa Publishers 245/74 Bazar Gate Mumbai – 400 001 Tel: 24567200/2456 7201, E-mail: co.mumbai@hamsa.com

When sent, the email would look like this:

To: Salim.qureshi@alphatech.com Cc: Subject: Publication Proposal: Data Structures

4 April 2025 10.30.55 Dr Salim Qureshi Alpha Technologies

Vadodara 390001

Dear Dr Salim Qureshi,

Thank you for writing to us about your manuscript titled ‘Data Structures’ – We are pleased to inform you that we are interested in principle in the publication proposal. Could you send a summary of your work and a table of contents to edit.mumbai@hamsa.com, please? This will help us understand your proposal better.

Thank you again for approaching Hamsa Publishers. We look forward to hearing from you.

With regards,

Ashwin Malhotra Editor, Hamsa Publishers 245/74, Bazar Gate Mumbai – 400 001.

Replying to a message: Replying to an e-mail is very easy. If the reader wishes to respond to an e-mail message, he/she can do so by clicking the ‘reply’ button without retyping the e-mail address of the sender. However, one should be careful in replying when a common e-mail has been sent to a list so as to reply only to the sender and not all the recipients. Junk mail or spam: These are unwanted e-mails, usually of commercial nature sent out in bulk. They come into the inbox in the form of chain letters, unsolicited advertisements, fake warnings about viruses or files, and other non-business information. Such e-mails should not be opened and read as they are likely to corrupt our files or hanging the system. Spamming is unsolicited commercial e-mail. Because of the very low cost of sending e-mail, spammers can send hundreds of millions of e-mail messages each day at very low cost. Spamming results in information overload as this uncalled-for e-mail takes a lot of time to read and discard. Though most e-mail services like Google, Yahoo, Hotmail, etc. have set filters to check spamming, spammers outsmart these filters and penetrate the system. E-mail worms are the viruses that find a way of replicating themselves into vulnerable computers. These worms travel through e-mail and corrupt your computer. They are capable of crashing the system totally. Many countries including US, Canada and Australia have passed laws to take action against those who create virus systems.

SOME FEATURES:

Netiquette: Netiquette is derived from the words 'Internet etiquette' and refers to the unsaid rules to be kept in mind when using shared services and mailing lists on the Internet. Using these rules for sending and receiving e-mails helps us to be socially responsible members of the community of Internet users or 'netizens.' Netiquette, therefore, is a set of socially acceptable rules of behaviour on the Internet. They help us to behave correctly and acceptably on the net just as rules of social etiquette do in society. For example, interrupting a speaker, and not introducing people you are with to others are examples of bad etiquette. Never think you're talking to computer: There's a real live person at the other end. Remember that when you consider the wording, style, and tone of your message. Ensure you follow the rules of good writing: Just as a business letter is an ambassador for your company, so is your e-mail. Don't allow the speed and ease of e-mail to make your messages abrupt, abbreviated and error-filled. Write your messages with care, considering all the rules of modern business writing. Take off the caps lock. DON'T SHOUT! Even though you want to get noticed, please do not use capitals in e-mail messages—this is like shouting. It is rude and will usually be counterproductive. And also …. NEVER RESORT TO EXCESSIVE PUNCTUATION @!! ?!!!! Greetings and Signing off: Replace formal salutations like 'Dear Susheel' with 'Hi Susheel' or even just 'Susheel' and sign them off with 'best regards' or 'regards' when writing informal emails. Use formal greetings such as Dear Mr. Susheel' while writing business emails. Similarly, replace 'Yours sincerely' with 'Best wishes,' or 'Thanks' while signing off an email. Question your subject heading: People are most likely to read important-looking e-mails first. Give your messages a clear and specific subject heading. Also don't 'compose' a new message every time you need to reply as it will break the thread of the subject and probably cause the recipient to misplace important information quite easily. Use short sentences and short paragraphs: The shorter your messages, the more likely it is that they will be read and understood. But do not make them so short that they are abrupt or unclear. Use full sentences and explain clearly. Remember to paragraph just the same as in other business documents. Enumerate with numbers or bullets: Present your messages attractively. Use numbers, bullets or sub-headings if possible. This will add to the clarity of your message. Tidy up long sentences: It is better to use short sentences in order to make the message compact and clear. While writing long sentence, use punctuation to make the meaning clear. Read through your message carefully and improve clarity and understanding. Take pride in your finished message: Make sure your message is accurate, brief, and clear as well as attractively presented. In this way, it will be understood and will achieve the desired results. Ensure everything is right before you hit 'send': Once sent, you cannot call an e-mail back for second thoughts! So, remember to double check and proof read your email for any grammatical or factual errors before sending it. Also remember to check the email addresses it is being sent to, to ensure that your message reaches only the people concerned and not the entire organization. Don't spam or forward chain mails: Ensure that you never forward any personal chain mails or other personal emails to business colleagues from your business account. This is considered spamming and is rude. It will also create an unprofessional impression about you in your workplace or with your clients. Protect company confidentiality: Always check what kind of information you are allowed to send over emails as you could, mistakenly, reveal confidential company information to people who might misuse it. With hacking becoming very common, it is of the utmost importance that information be protected and not just sent over common, unprotected e-mail services.

REMEMBER:

- Write a SMART subject line after you've written your message.
- Include an appropriate greeting and closing.
- Use modern business language and simple sentences.
- Never use ALL CAPITALS for any part of your message unless it is an acronym.
- Structure your messages logically.
- Write as if you are having a conversation with the recipient.
- Consider the other person's feelings and make sure you use the appropriate tone.
- Arrange messages attractively, using full words, full sentences, and with a space between each paragraph.
- Use e-mail as a tool to enhance communication and not to replace it.
- If an e-mail exchange is getting rather long or complicated, it may be more effective to pick up the phone. (Courtesy: Shirley Taylor, Pearson)

Model 1:

Incorrect or impolite expressions used in e-mails.

From jayaprakash@ redifmail.co.in Date 1 July 2025 12.1.55 To siddarth17@yahoo.co.in CC

Subject Hello!!!

hi Siddu

Hope that u r in gd mood after ur exams.

PLS MAKE URSELF FREE NXT WEEK TO JOIN us for a picnic to Nandi Hills. Hope u will join us.

tnks Jayaprakash

Model 2: Example of a correct or polite expressions used in e-mails.

From: jayaprakah@ redifmail.co.in Date: 1 July 2025 12.1.55 To: siddarth17@yahoo.co.in CC:

Subject: Picnic to Nandi Hills

Hello Siddarth,

I hope that you are in good mood after your examinations. Please make yourself free next week to join us for a picnic to Nandi Hills.

I hope you will join us.

See you soon Jayaprakash Be specific in subject Use capital letter Abbreviations like these are only suitable for mobile phone messages Using all Capitals is like shouting Avoid abbreviations Clear subject Polite and nice opening No abbreviations A nice finishing

Tone in E-mail:

Following are two models depicting two types. One is rough tone and the other is of polite one respectively.

Model 3:

From: dinmany@gmail.co.in Date: 02.7.2025 02.12.14 To: rajan3@yahoo.co.in CC: Subject: REMINDER!!

Rajan

It would be of great help if you should know that I am no longer responsible for retail orders. Jagan has taken this responsibility and it is better you can contact him in future for your purchases.

I shall be happy if you personally know this and bring the same to the notice of your staff.

Dinesh

Model 4:

From: dinmany@gmail.co.in Date: 02.7.2025 02.12.14 To: rajan3@yahoo.co.in Cc: Subject: Retail sales

Hello Rajan,

Since January 2025, our retail section is being looked after by Mr. Jagan and the same has been informed to all our retailers through circulars. I am sure you too must have received it. Please make necessary changes and approach our retail section and Mr. Jagan for your requirements from now on.

Thanks

Dinesh Manager (wholesale section)

Model 5: Enquiry for trade catalogue:

Not polite Abrupt and harsh Clear and suitable closing is required

From: sgrkswfgcsports@gmail.com Date: 06.7.2025 11.5.45 To: sportsworld@gmail.com CC: Subject: Request for a Trade Catalogue

Mr. Parantak Sports World Bengaluru – 560 003.

Dear Sir,

We want to place an order for different items for our sports room. Kindly send us the latest picture catalogue with price list. It would be of great help if you could specify the discount you can give us on the catalogue.

We look forward to a quick reply.

Thank you.

Girimala S.N. Director of Physical Education

Model 6: Reply to the above

From: sportsworld@gmail.com Date: 07.7.2025 11.3.47 To: sgrkswfgcsports@gmail.com CC: Subject: Sending catalogue with price list

Ms. Girimala S.N. Director of Physical Education SGRKSWFG College, Harihar – 577 601

Dear Madam,

We are very happy to receive your enquiry. We are sending you the picture catalogue along with the price list by courier right now. For educational institutions, we allow special discount of 15% on catalogue price. This is for your information please.

We look forward for an order from your side.

Thank you.

Parantak Sports World Bengaluru – 560 003.

Model 7: An e-mail to sunandatravels@gmail.com, with a request to book a ticket in the air-conditioned sleeper bus to travel to Mumbai on 3rd April 2025.

From: sajjadt45@gmail.com To: sunandatravels@gmail.com Date: 25.03.2025 11.00 Subject: Request for Ticket booking Dear Sir/Madam, I am Sajjad T., working as a Professor of English in GFG College, Chitradurga. I have to be in Mumbai on 4th April. I have verified in your website the availability of seats and the fare. So, I request you to book a ticket for me in your air-conditioned sleeper bus that leaves Chitradurga at 5 p.m. I have credited the money to your account online. You may find in the attachment the scanned copy of my Aadhaar card for the verification of my address and age. Please send the ticket to my email.

Thank you. Yours faithfully, Sajjad T.

Exercises:

1. You have to go to Hongkong to work on a business project for your company in Bengaluru. Send an e-mail message to Sandeep Travels (address: sandeeptours@gmail.com), asking them to make travel arrangements for you to go to Hongkong by air and return after a week.
2. An article on ‘Seat Blocking’ by private medical and engineering colleges is published in the Deccan Herald. The paper has invited remarks from the public about it. Write your remark to letters@deccanherald.co.in.
3. Sukhanukul domestic appliances have supplied you a 20-litre capacity air cooler recently. But it is not functioning properly. Write a complaint message about it to sukhanukul20@gmail.com.
4. On behalf of the Sports Department of your college and as from the principal, draft an email to with an order for different sports goods required to nutansportsworld@redifmail.com, asking them to deliver the goods within a week.

3. BANK CORRESPONDENCE

Bank is a place for money. It is an organization that provides various financial services like keeping or lending money. It is very essential for the public, business people, and for the students of commerce to know the functions of banks and understand the services they provide. Bank correspondence, broadly speaking, refers to communication between banks and their clients, between different banks, or among different branches of the same bank. It is very important for the operations of the country's economy. In fact, it acts as the lubricant oil for the wheels of the country's economy. The main functions of the banking system are accepting deposits and granting loans. There are mainly two types of accounts through which usually banking transactions are made: a) Savings Account and b) Current Account.

1) Savings account (SB A/C): This is a type of savings by the public. The interest rate is fixed and less than the rate for fixed deposits. From the savings account the customer can draw money whenever he requires, as per rules of the bank. Now a days, as per the instructions of the RBI, any student can open an SB A/C at zero balance. There is no necessity for minimum balance in it.

2) Current account (CA A/C): Through this account withdrawals may be made through cheques at any time during working days and hours without notice. The bank usually pays only nominal interest on current accounts. This is for business people. A student, an individual, a company, or a business firm may correspond with a bank for several reasons:

• To open a savings account

• To open a current account

• To request for overdraft (OD) facility

• To request for a loan

• Complain about negligence etc.

A bank has to correspond with its customers for several reasons:

• Debt collection or loan recovery

• Reminders

• Legal notices or threatening letters etc.

There are several types of bank correspondences. But this chapter will focus on the types of business letters sent by customers to banks and vice versa.

Model letter 1: Opening a saving bank account (SB A/C)

Vismaya U.V. First Year B.A. Sharada Vilasa College M.G. Road MOLAKALMURU – 577 535

10 April 2025

The Manager National Bank Pravasi Mandir Road

MOLAKALMURU – 577 535

Dear Sir/Madam,

Sub: Request for opening an S B Account.

I am happy to introduce myself as in the above address. I am writing to express my interest in opening a new Savings Bank Account in your esteemed branch. I have been looking for a reliable and convenient bank, and based on your reputation and services, I believe that your National Bank would be an excellent choice. Besides, it is mandatory for students to have a bank account number for various purposes like payment of fees, fee reimbursement, getting scholarships, etc., through online. I hope, you too may be aware of this. Therefore, I request you to help me to open a savings bank account (SB A/C) in your branch.

I am enclosing the following documents:

1) Letter of introduction from the principal of our college with A/c No. 6436486101;

2) Identity card issued by the college;

3) Specimen signature;

4) Date of birth certificate (xerox copy);

5) Aadhaar card of mine (xerox copy); and

6) Two passport size photos (recently taken).

I am ready to submit any other document if required. My mobile number is: 7857855123. I shall be grateful if you could help me in this regard. I am ready to make an initial deposit of Rs. 200.00 by cash, though it is not compulsory. Please let me know the best time to visit your bank to complete the formalities.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to a favourable response and a longterm banking relationship with your National Bank.

Yours faithfully,

Vismaya U.V. (Vismaya U.V.)

Encls: 6

Note : In letters like this from an individual, ‘from address’ is to be written at the top left side followed by date below it as shown above. No need to mention From and To in both the addresses. It is implied that the first one is From address and the second one is To address.

Model letter 2: Request for opening a current account (C/A)

Web: www.lokaranjan.co.in

E-mail: lokaranjan@gmail.com Telephone: 08195 23986 Mobile: 99080 58654

LOKARANJAN AND COMPANY 36, Market Road CHALLAKERE – 575 522

10 June 2025

The Branch Manager Indian Bank B.C. Road CHALLAKERE – 575 522

Dear Sir, Sub: Request for opening a current account.

Dear Sir/Madam, We, Lokaranjan and Company, a reputable business, are engaged in providing agricultural machinery services. We have recently opened a branch of our company in Challakere at the above address. We are pleased to express our interest in opening a current account with your esteemed bank. We believe that a current account with your/our Indian Bank will greatly facilitate our dayto-day business transactions, including payments to suppliers, collection from clients, and managing our operational expenses efficiently. We are confident that your bank's comprehensive range of services, customer-centric approach, and robust banking infrastructure will align perfectly with our business needs. We are eager to establish a long-term banking relationship with you.

We have enclosed the following documents:

1. Copy of the company registration;

2. Copy of approval from the Board of Directors for opening an account;

3. Specimen signatures of the authorized signatory; and

4. Letter of introduction from a customer of your bank, Mr. R.N. Shetty.

We are prepared to submit any other documents if required. We would be grateful if you could open a current account for us and issue us a passbook as well as pay-in slip book. We are making an initial deposit of Rs. 20,000 by cash.

Thank you for considering our request. We look forward to your prompt response and the opportunity to bank with you.

Yours faithfully, (Trilok Chandan A.V.) Sr Finance Manager

Note: 1) In letters of this type, usually the ‘from address’ is in the top middle of the page as shown above.

2) Giving telephone number, mobile number, and e-mail address is compulsory.

Model letter 3: From a customer to his/her bank seeking explanation for the dishonour of his/her cheque. Web: www.srujanbh.co.in

Telephone: 08192 224587 Email: srujanbh@gmail.com

Mobile: 7857842355

SRUJAN BOOK HOUSE Dealers in all kinds of Books and Stationery Main Road, Opp. Gramadevata Temple HARIHAR – 577 601

12 October 2025

The Manager Corporation Bank P.B. Road HARIHAR – 577 601

Dear Sir,

I have just been informed by the New Printers, Shivamogga Road, Harihar, that my cheque No. 654434 for Rs. 10000/- issued to them on 2 October has been dishonoured by you on account of ‘inadequate balance.’

When cheque No. 654433 was cleared for payment, the balance in my account stood at Rs. 7000. After that I deposited two cheques for collection, one for Rs. 2000/- and the other for Rs. 3000/-. This raised my balance to Rs. 12000/-. I had deposited these cheques on 24 September, thus giving you adequate time for collecting them, before issuing the cheque to the New Printers on 2 October.

I am sure you can realize how badly my reputation would be affected if cheques issued by me were to be dishonoured on account of ‘inadequate balance.’ Please write to me giving your explanation for the dishonour of my cheque which has caused me a great concern.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

Guruprasad J.A. (GURUPRASAD J.A.) Proprietor.

Model letter 4: Manager’s reply to the above.

Web: www.corporationbh.co.in Email: corporationbh@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 227477

Mobile: 7837832344

CORPORATION BANK P.B. Road HARIHAR – 577 601

15 October 2025

SRUJAN BOOK HOUSE Dealers in all kinds of Boks and Stationery Main Road, Opp. Gramadevata Temple HARIHAR – 577 601

Dear Sir,

We received your letter dated 12 October 2025 regarding the dishonouring of your cheque No. 654434 for Rs. 10000/- issued to New Printers, Harihar. We regret to say that it was necessary for us to refuse the payment as there was no sufficient balance in your account.

You have, perhaps, not noticed that one of the cheques deposited by you for Rs. 3000 is dated 16 October and it can be collected only on or after that date. The other cheque for Rs. 2000 was duly collected. After the collection charges, the balance in your account on 15 October, the date on which your cheque was dishonoured, was only Rs. 9000/-. We have enclosed the statement of account for your reference.

We hope you will be satisfied with our explanation. You are requested to take due care in issuing cheques to avoid unpleasant situations. We do not like our customers’ cheques to be dishonoured.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully,

Manohar Pandya P. (MANOHAR PANDYA P.) Manager.

Encl: Statement of account as on 15-10-2025

Model letter 5: Letter asking for an overdraft

Web: www.shringardress.in

E-mail: sringardress@gmail.com Telephone: 08199-23586

Mobile: 9449458058 SHRINGAR GARMENTS No. 59, Sharvani Complex B.H. Road, HOSADURGA – 577 527

15 February 2014

The Manager

Urban Cooperative Bank No. 46, Chandan Complex B.H. Road HOSADURGA – 577 527

Dear Sir,

Sub: Request for an overdraft facility.

We are writing to formally request an overdraft facility for our current account (No: 528546892), with your esteemed bank. Shringar Garments is a well-established garment retail business that has been operating successfully for 15 years. As you know that we have been one of your customers for over fifteen years. Your co-operation in the success and growth of our business is memorable indeed.

From the beginning till today we have been punctual in keeping our financial transactions up to date. Due to some technical reasons our suppliers have denied credit facility for excess purchase. In view of the line of festivals in the coming days, we have a plan to purchase more variety of goods in order to meet the demands of all kinds of customers. But we are running short of sufficient funds to meet our plan.

Therefore, we request you to extend your co-operation by providing us the overdraft facility for a sum of Rs. 5,00,000 for a period of three months on personal guarantee as a security for the said amount. The same amount along with specified interest will be repaid to your bank on or before the due date. This facility would enable us to meet our expenses without interruption and capitalize on timely business opportunities. We are confident in our ability to manage this facility responsibly and ensure timely repayments. We are prepared to provide any necessary documentation or information you may require to process our application, including our latest financial statements, business projections, and any other relevant details.

Thank you for considering our request. We look forward to your positive response and continued support.

Yours faithfully,

Shringara Vallari B.B. (SHRINGARA VALLARI B.B.) Proprietor.

Model letter 6: Reply (negative) to the above customer of the bank.

Web: www.urbancbank.co.in E-mail: urbancbank@yahoo.com Telephone: 08199-23955 Mobile: 7849258468

URBAN COOPERATIVE BANK No. 46, Chandan Complex B.H. Road HOSADURGA – 577 527

18 February 2025

The Proprietor SHRINGAR GARMENTS No. 59, Sharvani Complex B.H. Road, HOSADURGA – 577 527

Dear Madam,

Ref: Your requisition for over draft facility dated 15 February 2025.

I am very happy to know your long-standing relationship and good business record with us for over 15 years. I am very grateful to you for the same. Coming to your request, I regret to inform you that our hands are tied to help our customers like you by the instruction from the head office which clearly states that no financial favours either in the form of OD or loan to the existing customers or new customers be made as the financial year is coming to a close by 31 March 2014. Further, the order states that instead of sanctions we have to concentrate on recovery. This is for your information please.

I hope that you will understand the situation we find ourselves in. we regret not being able to be of assistance at this point in time. We hope you will continue your association with us.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely, Aparanji C.N. (APARANJI C.N.) Manager.

Model letter 7: Request for a loan

Web: www.vivasvat.in E-mail: vivasvat@gmail.com Telephone: 08197 34523

Mobile: 9445606395

VIVASVAT ENTERPRISES 34, M.G. Road HOLALKERE - 577 526

10 June 2025

The Branch Manager National Development Bank No. 96, B.H. Road HOLALKERE - 577 526

Dear Sir, Sub: Request for loan We, Vivasvat Enterprises, a well-established and reputable electrical manufacturing enterprise, are pleased to submit this application for a business loan to support our planned expansion and modernization initiatives. For the past 10 years, our company has been a leading manufacturer of electrical goods like panels, wiring harnesses, transformers, LED lighting solutions, etc., in the region. We have consistently demonstrated strong financial performance, a growing customer base, and a commitment to innovation. Our last three years' financial statements, attached for your review, reflect our robust growth and profitability. We are seeking a loan of Rs.

30,00,000/- to finance the acquisition of new, advanced machinery, which will significantly increase our production capacity and efficiency, allowing us to meet the rising demand for our products; the expansion of our research and development department to foster innovation and develop new, energy-efficient products that align with the market trends; and the working capital to support raw material procurement for the expanded operations. We are confident that these investments will lead to a substantial increase in our revenue and market share, further solidifying our position as a key player in the electrical manufacturing sector. As collateral security for this loan, we are offering our fully owned industrial property located at No, 88, 2nd Main Road, Industrial Area, Holalkere-26, which has been independently valued at 50 lakhs. We have attached the property documents, valuation report, and an encumbrance certificate for your perusal.

We have maintained a healthy banking relationship with your bank for the last 10 years and appreciate your continued support. We are confident that this loan will be a mutually beneficial endeavor. We are available at your earliest convenience to discuss our proposal in detail and provide any further information or documentation you may require. Thank you. We look forward to your positive response.

Yours sincerely, Prakash Vivasvat D. (PRAKASH VIVASVAT D.) Proprietor.

Model letter 8: Positive response to the above request for a loan.

Web: www.ndbank.co.in E-mail: ndbank@gmail.com Telephone: 08197 38934

Mobile: 9888907845 NATIONAL DEVELOPMENT BANK No. 96, B.H. Road HOLALKERE - 577 526

15 June 2025

VIVASVAT ENTERPRISES 34, M.G. Road HOLALKERE - 577 526

Dear Sirs, We are pleased to inform you that your loan application for business expansion, submitted on 10 June 2025, has been favourably reviewed and approved by our credit committee.

After a thorough assessment of your business proposal, financial statements, and the collateral offered, we are confident in your growth potential and your ability to successfully execute your expansion plans. Your consistent performance and the comprehensive nature of your application were key factors in our decision. We are delighted to sanction a loan of Rs. 30,00,000/- to your enterprises for the stated purpose of business expansion. The interest rate is 15% per annum and the repayment period is 5 years. The processing fee 1 % of the loan amount is payable upon disbursement. A detailed loan agreement outlining all terms, conditions, and repayment schedules will be prepared for your review and signature. Our loan officer, Mr. Nirantar, will contact you shortly to schedule a meeting to finalize the formalities and discuss the disbursement process. Please feel free to reach out to the loan officer for any immediate queries. We value our long-standing relationship with our bank and are excited to be a part of your growth journey. We believe this loan will significantly contribute to your continued success. Congratulations on the approval! Thank you. Yours sincerely,

Nissim M.N. (NISSIM M.N.) Manager.

Exercises:

1. You want to get your scholarship cheque enchased in a nationalized bank. But you have no account number in your name. Write a letter to the manager of a nationalized bank requesting him to open an S.B. Account in your name by stating the purpose.
2. As from Malatesh Motors, Opposite Old Bus Stand, No. 26, Daruka Complex, Davangere-1, write a letter to the Manager, Best Bank, Nutan complex, Harihar road, Davanagere, requesting them to open a current account for its firm.
3. As B.M. Payasvini, a student of business and management course from Satvik College of Management Studies, Channagiri, write a requisition letter to the manager, Vedavati Bank, Bazaar Road, Channagiri, asking for an educational loan of Rs. 5,00,000.00 by giving the details of security and mode of repayment.
4. Your cheque given to a customer has been dishonoured by your bank for want of sufficient balance. Write a letter to the bank asking reasons for dishonouring your cheque. 5.

Write a reply to the above from the Manager of the bank, giving reasons for the dishonour.

6. Your hotel establishment is to be renovated with sophisticated hygienic conditions to meet the growing rush of the customers. Write your banker to extend you an overdraft facility to meet your requirement by promising the prompt repayment details etc.
7. Draft a tactful reply to the above denying the needed facility from the bank.
8. As from the manager of a bank, draft a letter sanctioning the loan requested by a customer for the purpose of business development.

4. MARKET SURVEY REPORTS

Market survey report is a marketing and management device used by businesses to help them take crucial decisions about product, brand perception, impact on the market, etc. Today there is a stiff competition between local and multinational companies to occupy a maximum share of the market. In such situations like these, market survey reports play a vital role in the expansion of business, finding the reasons for poor performances, and to take steps for improvement, etc.

Generally, to have a report prepared, the following points have to be borne in mind:

1) Appointment of a reporter A reporter is appointed orally or by means of a letter, and he is instructed about the subject-matter, on which a survey is to be conducted and the report is to be prepared. He/she is also given a time frame within which the report must be ready for submission.

2) Fact finding

The reporter then will collect the relevant data through interviews, meetings, consultations with professionals, visiting local businesses/industries, surveys, investigation, etc. each fact must be checked and rechecked to ensure accuracy in the final report.

Once the data is collected, the reporter will prepare a number of drafts before submitting the final report. This is to ensure that the findings of the report are consistent with the data already gathered. An unchecked and unverified report is of no use to a business.

3) Suggestions or recommendations The reporter usually includes his/her own suggestions or recommendations based on his/her findings unless he/she is specifically told not to include any personal views on the subject by his/her employers.

4) Conclusion The concluding part of a report contains the merits of the fact finding or the general view of the matters concerned. If anything extra is to be mentioned along with the report, the reporter mentions it in this part of the report.

Model 1: Market Survey Report on opening a new Branch:

SAVITA SAGRI N.M. Sales Executive DAIMAKA SPORTS WORLD

(Dealers in Sports Goods) No. 354/3, M.G. Road BENGALURU – 560 003 E-mail: savitasagarinm@gmail.com

Mobile: 9448288332

10 October 2025

DAIMAKA SPORTS WORLD

(Dealers in Sports Goods) No. 354/3, M.G. Road BENGALURU – 560 003

Dear Sir,

Sub: Market Survey Report about opening a branch in Davanagere. This is with reference to your letter dated 1 October 2025 about conducting a market survey. I surveyed the market and now I am submitting before you a report upon the suitability and desirability of opening an outlet at Davanagere for our sports items. In Davanagere district alone, our goods worth Rs. 6,00,000 – 8,00,000/- are being sold annually. If we examine the sales of the last three years, we could see the gradual increase of demand for our products. It has become difficult for us to cater to the needs of the customers of Davanagere district from our head office in Bengaluru. You might be aware of the fact that we have been receiving increased orders from Davanagere and the surrounding taluks. This shows the demands for opening a separate outlet at Davanagere so as to meet the local needs and to strengthen the business network.

Work done: For data collection, I visited several schools, institutions, the university, book stalls, and other markets, and the suggestions are in favour of a permanent outlet for our products so that they can purchase goods of their choice on the spot without wasting time in correspondence. I am also in favour of their views.

Fact finding: A spacious shopping complex near central bus stand will be vacated soon and that will fulfill our requirement to open the outlet. When enquired, the owner of the complex told me that the monthly rent would be around Rs. 19000 to 20000 depending upon the demand.

Recommendation: I find that the condition is very nice to open an outlet right now. Our initial expenditure for that may go up to Rs. 5,00,000/- but it is worth if we look forward in the present situation. Moreover, I am sure, the sale of our products will increase to the maximum extent if an outlet is opened. This is for you information and needful action please. Thank you.

Yours faithfully, for DAIMAKA SPORTS WORLD Savita Sagari N.M. (SAVIITA SAGRI N.M.) Sales Executive.

Model 2: Market Survey Report regarding decline in sales with suggestions for improvement:

E-mail: hmtwatchesdvg.co.in

E-mail: hmtwatchesnn@gmail.com Telephone: 08192 24782

Mobile: 7847844333 HMT WATCHES (A branch of HMT) No. 24, B.M. Road DAVANAGER – 577 002

20 May 2025

The Sales Manager HINDUSTAN MACHINE TOOLS (Wristwatch Division) No. 45/9, Siddhaganga Towers Kyatsandra Road TUMKUR – 572 101

Dear Sir,

Ref: Market survey report about the Decline in the sales of HMT watches with suggestions. In accordance with your letter dated 10 May 2025, I have undertaken a careful study of the general trends of our business. I contacted the local dealers and collected facts about the shortcomings in respect of our own products. The following are the findings of my investigation: Fact findings during the market survey:

1. There is a huge flow of Chinese products in the market. Owing to this, a high competition is being experienced at present and there is a general depression for all the company goods.

2. It has become a fashion among the youth to use multi-purpose pedometer fitness smart bands. So, the demand for all kinds of traditional wrist watches has decreased.

3. Our advertisement policy is outdated and hence is ineffective. Other firms are coming forward with new advertisements to attract the customers.

4. Our products are at a disadvantage, because of the outmoded designs and packing. But other firms are adopting the best designs with attractive packing. Suggestions: Under these circumstances I would suggest the following remedies, which I hope, if put into practice, will give higher sales and will enable us to compete with similar products:

1) In order to overcome the present position, the prices may be reduced temporarily. A free gift of any kind may be given to those, who buy in bulk. This may be continued until the sales go up.

2) A more scientific way of advertising should be adopted. The superiority and the usefulness of our products should be reinforced in the minds of the public, through regular and more attractive advertisements. Of course, there will be a considerable expenditure, but this will, I am certain, ensure high sales.

3) We can open stalls at local exhibitions and fairs.

4) The present design and shape of watches may be changed to a better design, with attractive packing.

5) Frequent changes in the design and shape will also create a good impression in the minds of the consumers. I am sure, if these are put into effect, we can easily arrest the undesired situation that we are facing now. Thank you.

Yours faithfully, Nirajit Nandan (NIRAJIT NANDAN) Branch Sales Manager

Model 3: Market Survey Report regarding the availability of suitable premises:

Web: www.kamtaaic.co.in

Email: kamtaaic@gmail.com Telephone: 080 2256458

Mobile: 7827834123

KAMTA AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS COMPANY No. 82, I Cross, K.R. Market Road BENGALURU – 560 004

10 March 2025 The Marketing Manager KAMTA AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS COMPANY No. 82, I Cross, K.R. Market Road BENGALURU – 560 004

Dear Sir, In accordance with your instructions contained in your letter dated 25 February 2025, I have thoroughly inspected a number of suitable premises in Shivamogga for opening our Sales cum Show room. After careful consideration, I recommend a building on B.M. Road, until recently occupied by the State Bank of India, as the most suitable for our purpose. The building consists of a big hall and an excellent verandah on the ground floor, and three rooms on the first floor. The hall and the rooms are fairly big, well lighted, and airy. The hall on the ground floor can be converted into Sales cum Show room and the two rooms on the upper storey can be used as office. With some alterations, the third room can be used as the rest room for the staff. The building has good toilet facility and water supply. A spacious room at the basement of the building can be used to store our products and the open space of the basement can be utilized for parking the vehicles of the staff and the customers. The building is very ideally situated. It is quite close to both the government and private busstands. Some lorry offices also are located nearby. So, it would be very convenient for the customers to transport the products to their places. The owner of the building, Mr. Aghosh Dharma T., has consented to let the building on rent for five years and may sell it to us after the expiry of the period. I unhesitatingly recommend this offer be availed of at once. I have enclosed the estimates for the proposed structural alterations, a letter of consent from the owner offering the building on rental basis for a period of five years, and the certificate that the building is free from all other encumbrances. Thank you. Yours faithfully, Aghosh Dharma T. (AGHOSH DHARMA T.) Sales Manager.

Model 4: Market Survey Report about the reasons for the decline in the sales of Solar

Water Heaters. NESAR SOLAR WATER HEATERS No. 24, Park Road, Bandra MUMBAI – 400 028

15 March 2025 The Managing Director NESAR SOLAR WATER HEATERS No. 24, Park Road, Bandra MUMBAI – 400 028

Dear Sir,

Sub: Submission of the Market Survey Report. In accordance with your instructions, I have inquired fully into the causes of the decline in the company’s business in the last two years till February 2025, and submit my report as follows. Findings: 1. Our company has increased the price of our product ranging from 10% to 20% in the beginning of 2023. But surprisingly, our immediate competitors have reduced their prices up to 10%. It is true that the quality and durability of our product are quite good. Yet the product of our competitors is equally good. Under such circumstances, it is quite natural that high priced brand cannot expect to win the race. 2. The poor quality of after-sales service of our company has also affected the sales. In the past, our company was very popular for extending excellent after-sales service. But the same has not been the case in the last two years. This is because many service engineers and technicians have left the organization seeking better jobs in other places. 3. Our management does not adopt the policy of giving incentives to sales people for overshooting the sales target. Our close competitors motivate their sales people by offering good sales incentives in cash and kind.

The above factors have adversely affected the sales of the company and caused a decline in the sales in the last two years. Unless immediate action is taken, we cannot hope to come out of the present crisis. Recommendations: 1. Since the prices have been increased, the only way to match prices of our competitors is to alter our discount structure. An attractive discount structure can help in increasing our sales. 2. We must tune up after-sales service. The existing vacancies of technicians and engineers are to be filled up with efficient and talented persons. They must be given attractive salaries as a motivation to provide good service. 3. When annual sales target is fixed, everyone in the sales force should be motivated to cross the sales target for the year. This can be done through offering attractive incentives. With these facts and recommendations, I feel, it is desirable that the management takes suitable action immediately. Thank you. Yours sincerely, Divyatej Melinamani (DIVYATEJ S. MELINAMANI)

Marketing Manager.

Model 5: Market Survey Report about the reasons for the decline in the turnover of the company. Web: www.mssoaps.co.in

Email: mssoaps@gmail.com Telephone: 0821 56486

Mobile: 9449234432 THE MYSORE SANDAL SOAPS No. 86, Sandal Soudha Nanjanagudu Road MYSORE – 570 002

20 March 2025

The Directors THE MYSORE SANDAL SOAPS No. 86, Sandal Soudha Nanjanagudu Road MYSORE – 570 002

Dear Sirs,

Sub: Submission of the Market Survey Report about the decline in the turnover of the company. As per the instructions contained in your letter dated 10 March 2025, I would like to inform you that I have undertaken a careful study of the general market conditions with respect to our sandal soaps and have observed some of the shortcomings in respect of our Advertising and Selling policies. I wish to state the following:

Fact findings of the survey: 1. The general depression in the trade has affected not only our business, but others' too. 2. There is a tough competition to our products owing to the increasing supply of large quantities of attractive sandalwood materials manufactured by several rival concerns in the city. 3. Our advertisement and publicity policy has been so outdated that it has not been able to catch up with the latest trends and capture new markets. Effective salesmanship is missing. There is a lack of initiative and an ability to convince the customers. 4. Our products are also at a disadvantage because of the old designs and the comparatively smaller range of our creations. 5. Foreign visitors have not been effectively tapped because of the language problem that our sales people have. Recommendations based on the findings: 1. The Cost Accountant should be instructed to review all the important aspects affecting the cost and see whether reduced prices can be quoted for some time to get rid of the effects of competition. 2. Necessary agreements should be made with some of our present transporters for a cheaper conveyance of our products throughout the country.

3. Our old-fashioned methods of advertisement and publicity should be changed. A countrywide scientific advertisement and publicity policy should be launched. It should be backed up by effective and creative salesmanship, particularly in all the important tourist centers. Our products can be popularized through participation in the important exhibitions in all the parts of the country. 4. More attractive designs and varieties must be introduced and it is essential that these designs be changed at intervals to meet the constant changes in the tastes and demands of the customers. 5. Our sales people should be trained so that they can overcome the language barrier and deal with foreign customers more efficiently and effectively. I am quite confident that if these suggestions are put into effect promptly, we get back the dignity and place we have ever enjoyed. We will be able to overcome the adverse conditions and a more favourable climate would soon be created for our products, not only in the domestic market but also in the foreign markets. Thank you. Yours sincerely, Chandri Chakori A G (CHAKORI CHANDRI A.G.) Marketing Manager.

Exercises:

1) As the sales executive for ‘Apple Computers,’ draft a report regarding the possibility of opening a new outlet in Davanagere, to the sales division located in Bengaluru.

2) As the sales manager of Maruthi Cars Limited, New Delhi, write a letter to the business executive working at Chitradurga seeking explanation for the decline in the sales of Maruti Cars in his working area and ask him to suggest measures to boost the sales.

3) Draft a reply to the sales division of MTR Instant Food Products, Bengaluru about the feasibility of opening an outlet in Shivamogga by giving the concrete market survey findings, opinions, and market prospects for the company products there.

5. ESSAY WRITING

An essay is a piece of writing, often used to explore a topic, present an argument, or convey information. It is aimed at presenting a convincing thought on any chosen subject. It has come from the French word ‘essai’ meaning attempt or trial. The essay originated as a form in English during the 16th century. It has enlarged its scope, meaning, and relevance through centuries. Now we speak of the ‘Essay’ in all the branches of knowledge.

There are the different types of Essays:

(i) Descriptive Essay: As the word suggests, this essay is a clear description of a place, a person, a temple, an object, a poem, a town, etc. These essays focus on describing a specific subject in detail, allowing the reader to visualize or experience it through the author’s words. They may use vivid language and imagery to create a strong impression.

(ii) Narrative Essay: Here the essay is used to narrate some event, a journey, an accident, a story, a natural calamity, a function, and all such events. These essays tell a story, often personal, and aim to engage the reader through storytelling. They focus on the sequence of events and may explore themes or lessons learned.

(iii) Reflective Essay: This kind of essay brings out the writer’s inner thoughts, feelings, and emotions. It may also cover other areas including social, domestic, political, philosophical, and religious themes and topics. These essays encourage personal reflection on experiences and perspectives. For example: courage, patriotism, love, trust, friendship, marriage, social customs, the meaning of immortality of the soul, God, and all such others.

(iv) Expository Essay: The word expository means expound / explain / explicate / speak of a theory, an idea, a doctrine, etc. These essays explain or inform the reader about a specific topic, often in a straightforward and objective manner. They may involve research, analysis, or comparison to help the reader understand the subject matter. It includes articles on scientific research, religious themes, philosophic topics, etc.

(v) Argumentative/Persuasive/Discursive Essays: These essays aim to persuade the reader to agree with the author’s point of view or position on a topic. The writer must state his/her stand in clear terms, bring evidence to support his/her stand, and present his/her arguments in a logical manner. The supporting arguments and evidence to back up the thesis statement are very important in this kind of essays.

(vi) Imaginative Essays: These are essays written on imagined topics and situations. The writer places himself in that position and goes on ruminating his inner self and writes down. Examples: If I become a millionaire. If I go on a space tour. If I land in a desert.

How to write an Essay: Broadly speaking an essay is a statement on a topic of interest. One has to introduce the idea. So that is Beginning. The idea is to be continued citing examples. It is the Middle and what is selected is to be Concluded. That is the end. So, each essay should have a beginning, a middle and an end/Conclusion. Page limit depends on the topic and the writer. Following are a few useful points to keep in mind while writing an essay:

- An essay must have the unity of theme; it means that the writer should have his/her aim clearly set down before starting to write.
- Emphasis should be given to the main idea in the essay by placing it in a prominent position (the beginning or the end), either by giving more space to it or by directly stating it.
- The beginning of the essay introduces its topic, the middle develops it, and the conclusion sums it up.
- The introduction (beginning) sets the stage for the essay and is typically a paragraph long. It should grab the reader's attention and give a clear idea of what the essay will be about. It sets the tone and structure of the essay, forming the foundational component of the overall essay.
- The body should dive deeper into the topic and present arguments and evidence. Each paragraph should focus on a single aspect of the topic. Each paragraph should lead on the next paragraph and so on.
- The conclusion should sum up the essay. It is usually one paragraph. It should summarize the main points of the essay and leave the reader with something to think about.
- The essay should be a balanced one. The points that are included in it must be placed in the order of their importance.
- Most essays are written in a formal style. Therefore, complete sentences should be used and colloquial expressions and slang are to be avoided.
- The essay should be readable with convincing thoughts and an appealing style. The reader should not be made to go to a dictionary at the end of each sentence. The style is the dress of thought. The essay should be dressed in good style with the use of good language.
- The writer should be careful not to take diversions and deviations. They will diminish the interest of the reader. Follow the steps given below: Step 1: Specify the topic. Step 2: Jot down the available points. Step 3: Select the relevant points and delete the irrelevant ones. Step 4: Order the main points as headings. Step 5: Arrange the remaining points under the headings to get an outline. Step 6: Develop the outline into a complete draft. Step 7: Revise the draft, if necessary, and write the final complete essay.

Model Essays:

1. Global Warming. A world-wide study shows that average temperature of the earth is increasing every year. The rise in temperature is due to global warming which has now become a great threat. Far from a distant threat, its tendrils are already evident across the globe, disrupting ecosystems, threatening livelihoods, and reshaping the very fabric of our planet.

The term, ‘global warming,’ means increase in global temperature. It is the warming of the surface of the earth which may occur due to natural or manmade forces. At its core, the global warming is a consequence of the intensified ‘greenhouse effect.’ The warming of the atmosphere is called ‘greenhouse effect.’

Emissions of greenhouse gases have become a part of our daily life. They arise from our modes of transportation, production methods, and consumption patterns. Human beings are contributing a lot towards global warming. Each individual is producing a lot of greenhouse gases and thereby increasing the global warming. The direct consequence of every person’s consumption of domestic energy, non-vegetarian food, imported clothes and things, plastic things, and use of cars, planes, motorcycles, etc., is the climate change and global warming.

Global warming adversely affects food production. The biological productivity will decrease due to warming of the surface layer, which in turn reduces the transport of nutrients from deeper layers to the surface. The deforestation results in the increase in carbon dioxide content. This, in turn, affects environment. Global warming also results in the rise in the sea level, increase in floods, droughts, storms, cyclones, infectious diseases, and very hot summers.

The impacts of the rising global temperature are profound and multifaceted. We are witnessing an unprecedented increase in the frequency and intensity of extreme weather events, prolonged heatwaves, devastating droughts, torrential floods, and more powerful storms. Glaciers and polar ice caps are melting at an alarming rate, contributing to rising sea levels that threaten coastal communities and low-lying island nations with inundation. Ecosystems are under immense stress, leading to habitat loss and a frightening decline in biodiversity, with countless plant and animal species facing extinction.

To check the rate of global warming, radical change in lifestyle is required. As individuals, we have to follow the three ‘R’ method – Reduce, Recycle, Reuse. We have to reduce our contribution to global warming; we have to recycle the things without throwing them out; and we have to reuse the things. Deforestation should be stopped. We should go for organic farming. Instead of using individual vehicles, we should use public transport. Using local food and clothes also reduces the pressure on transport. All these result in the control of greenhouse gases into atmosphere and thereby control global warming.

To conclude, global warming is not just a geographical and environmental problem. It has political, social, economic, psychological, and other dimensions. However, it is to be remembered by all that the ultimate survival of man depends on the control of global warming.

2. Education for Women. Women play an important role in the development of the country. If we want to make democracy successful, women must be educated. They are the builders of happy homes. It is in their lap that the children receive their first lesson. The progress of the country depends upon female education.

But it is a paradox that, even today, we have to stand upon public platforms and pass resolutions in favour of female education. We have many brilliant examples, in our history, of women of highest genius who have contributed to the world’s progress. But no strong attempts have been made to remove the prejudices against female education. Many men, in fact, are against educating women. These men consider female education a threat to their happy domestic life.

The recognition of female education as a social issue is very recent in India. Though female literacy after independence has expanded, it is still low compared to many other third world countries. This is because of various social, economic, and cultural reasons. One of the reasons is the poor functioning of government schools in rural areas. The parents are willing to send their sons to private schools or schools in other places. But they are not ready to send their daughters out of their villages. Secondly, in rural India, a majority of girls are expected to spend most of their adult life in domestic work and child rearing. This social expectation makes female education 'pointless' to many parents. Thirdly, if the girl is educated, she wants to marry a more educated boy. In many cases, the dowry increases with the education of the boy. All these considerations prevent the parents from giving higher education to girls. In addition to this, the parents give more importance to the education of their sons. This is so because they believe that the sons give them security in their old age.

It is true that the rate of female education is higher in urban areas when compared to rural areas. Of course, of late, there seems to be an improvement in the situation because of many programmes introduced by the government to encourage female education. Slogans like 'ºÉuÉÆÚAzÀÄ PÀ°vÀgÉ ±Á¯ÉAiÉÆAzÀÄ vÉgÉzÀAvÉ,' have been issued to stress the importance of female education. Government schools and colleges have been started in rural areas. Free education is being given to girls in government education institutions. All government plans and projects become successful only when prejudices against female education are given up. All the impediments must be removed from the way of their education. It is an everlasting truth that the hand that rocks the cradle is the power that rules the world.

3. Environmental Pollution. All things that surround us on the earth are included into environment. It is also called eco-system. It depends on a whole set of balanced cycles. All living organisms survive by adjusting themselves to environment. It is, therefore, very necessary that these cycles are maintained unimpaired. Any change that interferes with the cycle and upsets the balance of eco-system is called pollution. This pollution is very dangerous to the world. The problem of pollution and its perilous consequences are matters of common concern to all.

Man has always made use of his inventive genius to exploit nature for his benefits without any foresight about the consequences of his action. He has little realized that what he considers progress is seriously disturbing the ecological balance and leading to the breakdown of the lifesupporting system on earth. He neglects the fact that all life on earth will be endangered if he does not control the contamination of the environment.

The 18th century witnessed the advent of industrialization. Though industrialization is a sign of progress, it led to urbanization. The more man is developing materially the more he is ignoring the ill effects of pollution and ecological imbalance. Technology and population growth have increased pollution throughout the world. Damage to nature and environment has exceeded the limits. Pollution can take many forms: derelict landscapes caused by quarrying or mining, destroyed forests, industrial effluent, indestructible garbage, fumes of motor vehicles, farm chemicals and artificial manures, military poisonous gases, nuclear tests, etc. These, in turn, lead to pollution of water, air, and soil.

It is true that progress in knowledge has led to the development of science and technology, which has, in turn, profoundly altered man's environment. For example, fertilizers and insecticides have increased agricultural output, which is required to feed the increasing population of the world. However, they have given rise to soil pollution and water pollution also. Fertilizers used in farmlands are washed away by rain into rivers, lakes, and reservoirs and thereby contaminate water. Massive industrialization too has been responsible for environmental pollution. Millions of tons of smoke, gases and toxic by-products are left into air, rivers and seas. The rivers and seas have become cheap dumping ground for all kinds of wastes. These wastes contaminate the drinking and bathing water of the rivers, and kill the marine life in the sea. The smoke that the factories and the vehicles emit pollutes air that we breathe and lead to problems related to breathing. Our new chemical environment is slowly poisoning us all.

Chemical and biological warfare, like nuclear warfare, could one day destroy mankind. The chemical and nuclear weapons destroy not only the enemies but also vast civilian population as well. The violation of environmental integrity by nuclear testing and the resultant fall out has increased the incidence of cancer and congenital diseases.

It would be foolish to shut our eyes to the dangers of pollution that man causes. Man has been poisoning the environment. The degradation of the environment is not merely the question of pollution, but it embraces the whole concept of the quality of human life. The destruction of forests, the erosion of soil, the neglect of lands, the loss of wild life, the accumulation of wastes, the plight of urban areas are some of the examples of degradation of environment. So are dirt, disease and malnutrition.

In recent years, there has been worldwide awakening regarding the environmental pollution. More and more people have become aware of the dangers of pollution. So, measures have been taken to control pollution. Rivers are being gradually restored to health. International organizations are trying to keep the seas clean. Campaigns are being organized against cutting down trees. Public opinion is gradually being aroused. In addition to all these, it is also necessary that anti-pollution laws have to be made more stringent (strict) in order to meet the situation in an effective manner.

If all of us become concerned about our environment, we shall be able to keep the earth habitable for future generations.

4. Advertisements and their role in business. As material civilization advances and the supply of available goods and services increases, man's needs correspondingly multiply. Advertising plays a key role in this never-ending process by stimulating the public's desire for certain products and thereby promoting the sales.

All modern business needs advertisement. Whosoever has goods to sell has to find some way to attract the notice of the would-be purchasers. Today, advertisements are done in a sophisticated manner. Colourful slides are flashed on the cinema screen and catchy dialogues are broadcast from the radio, or bold fanciful hoardings are displayed by the roadside. Newspapers are also a very important medium of advertisement. In fact, they represent the most fully exploited medium. Posters, plastered on walls, inserted in newspapers, distributed by salesmen in the market, etc., are also used for advertising. Be it a small matchbox or a small bus ticket, one invariably finds a message printed on it. Our age is characterized by two things—a wide market and cut-throat competition. The businessmen have not only got to reach the market but they must create and enlarge it also. So, they have to advertise their goods extensively. We have come to a stage where we cannot ignore the importance of advertising. An American expert in advertising says, 'The business that considers itself immune to the necessity of advertising sooner or later finds itself immune to business.'

Advertisements are not only necessary but also extremely useful. There is absolutely no justification in the belief that spending money on advertising is a wasteful practice. Advertising is now a business giving substance to a large number of people associated with it. It helps manufacturers to promote the sale of their goods, indirectly giving a fillip (encouragement) to production. It enables them to reach markets otherwise inaccessible, to maintain steady level of sales and to successfully resist seasonal fluctuations in demand. Introducing new products often involves heavy investment and if the manufacturers do not have the means of wide publicity, they would hardly dare to introduce new products. It is true that advertising is a costly process and its cost is added to the cost of production which is ultimately to be borne by the customer. But advertisements educate the customer also. They acquaint him with the various brands available in the market and enable him to decide what to buy, where to buy and how to buy. Now he is able to determine exactly which particular product would satisfy his need. Advertisements are often so persuasive that customers are prompted to buy what they do not immediately need. Besides, advertisements help the society in general. They ensure regular income to the press, encourage the artists, promote industrial research and lead to a rise in the standard of living.

Advertising is both an art and a science. Some of the advertisements are so artistically designed that it is a source of great aesthetic pleasure to see them. Advertising is also a science, for good advertisements are based on sound scientific principles. There are three important factors that all advertisers have to keep in mind: the psychology of their prospective buyers, their income charts and the changing trends in fashion. Each category of buyers has to be won in a different way.

The basic aim of every advertisement is to catch the eye of the buyer. A humorous cartoon, a catchy slogan, an attractive photograph, a persuasive quotation or a discreet combination of all these can do it. But advertisements must always be brief and catchy. Secondly, they have to be repetitive without being monotonous. If they are not repetitive, their message does not get properly registered. But if they keep on hammering the same message, soon they cease to attract notice.

However, it must be remembered that advertisement can never be a substitute for quality. Good products will sell even without publicity campaign, but no publicity campaign, howsoever effectively organized, can redeem a bad product.

6. IDIOMS AND PHRASES

Idioms and phrases are a fascinating part of a language that add richness and expressiveness to communication. They are groups of words whose meaning is not easily deduced from the literal meaning of the individual words. This makes them tricky for non-native speakers but also very rewarding to learn. An idiom is a phrase or expression whose meaning cannot be understood from the ordinary meaning of its words. It has a figurative meaning that is established through common usage within a language. In the context of idioms, 'phrases' often refer to the specific word combinations that form the idiom. More broadly, a 'phrase' is simply a group of words that functions as a single unit in a sentence, but it might not necessarily have a figurative meaning. However, when we talk about 'idioms and phrases,' the 'phrases' usually refer to idiomatic expressions. Mastering the most common English idioms and phrases is like unlocking a hidden treasure trove of language. By familiarizing yourself with these expressions, you can enhance your communication skills, better understand speeches, and even add a touch of flair to your own conversations. So, keep practicing and incorporating these idioms and phrases into your everyday speech, and soon you will find yourself effortlessly using them like a native speaker. Following is a of the idioms and phrases used in day-to-day life. The meaning of them is given in the brackets and they are used in a sentence or two each. 1. A bed of roses (an easy and comfortable position): A student's life is not a bed of roses. 2. A bird's eye view (have a large, general view): He stood up the tower to have a bird's eye view of the city. 3. A black sheep (of bad reputation or one who does something bad): He is the black sheep of the family. 4. Above all (most importantly): He is intelligent and hardworking and above all he is honest. 5. Add fuel to the fire (make a bad situation worse): She was angry and his words added fuel to the fire. 6. Add insult to injury (make a bad situation worse): They dismissed him and added insult to injury by abusing him. 7. A fish out of water (feel uncomfortable): When a student enters a new college, he feels like a fish out of water. 8. All in all (everything, influential, most important): He is all in all in his office. 9. Along with (in the company of): Please take him along with you. 10. A lost labour (labour that results in nothing): His effort to get a job was just a lost labour. 11. At fault (in the wrong): The doctor was at fault in not sending her to a specialist. 12. At home (feel free and comfortable): I feel at home in my friend's house. 13. A rainy day (a difficult or bad time): We have to save money for a rainy day. 14. A rolling stone gathers no moss (A person who changes place or job and so does not have a lot of money or friends): My brother does not have many friends and is like a rolling stone that gathers no moss.

15. At sixes and sevens (in disorder or confusion): The accounts are all at sixes and sevens. 16. A stone's throw (very near): The bus stop is just a stone's throw from the college. / The college is within a stone's throw of my house. 17. Beat about the bush (say something in a roundabout way, not to come to the point): Don't beat about the bush, get to the point. 18. Bell the cat (take the lead in a risky job): The staff wanted to humble the rough boss, but nobody was ready to bell the cat. 19. Behind the scenes (something or someone working behind without other's knowledge): Though he denies it, I know that he is behind the scenes. / He does many things behind the scenes to gain power. 20. Be sacked (dismissed): Thirty workers were sacked, as they went on a strike. 21. Between the cup and the lip (between hope and reality): There is many a slip between the cup and the lip. 22. Beyond measures (very much): He irritated me beyond measures. 23. Birds of the same feather / Birds of a feather (people with similar nature): Birds of a feather flock together. / All these politicians are birds of a feather. 24. Black art or magic (magic to do harm): He is believed to perform black art (magic). 25. Blow one's own trumpet (praise oneself): He always blows his own trumpet. 26. Body and Soul (completely, with all energy): She committed herself body and soul to the cause of women freedom. 27. Born with a silver spoon (Born in a rich family): He was born with a silver spoon and so he could spend a lot of money. 28. Bosom friend (close friend): Suman is my bosom friend. 29. Bread and butter (livelihood): He has been struggling hard to get his bread and butter. 30. Burn the candle at both ends (work excessively with very little rest): If you keep burning the candle at both ends, you will make yourself ill. 31. By hook or crook (by any means good or bad): He wants to get this job by hook or crook. 32. By leaps and bounds (very quickly, at a rapid pace): His income went up by leaps and bounds. 33. By virtue of (because of): She got the job by virtue of her vast experience. 34. Clean slate (no record of mistake or bad things): No government operates with a completely clean slate. 35. Come up to (reach): The plant has come up to my chest. 36. Cut a sorry figure (make a bad impression): The speaker cut a sorry figure before the audience. 37. Cut one's coat according to one's cloth (adjust expenditure to income): If you cut your coat according to your cloth, you will never run into difficulties. 38. Dead drunk (completely drunk): He reached home dead drunk.

39. Ear mark (to keep for a particular purpose): A fund of Rs. 5 crores is earmarked for the establishment of colleges. 40. Eat one's words (take back what one has said): Speak carefully lest you should have to eat your words. 41. Evening of life (old age): My father is enjoying the evening of his life. 42. Fair play (play according to rules, no cheating): We should insist on fair play even if we lose. 43. From hand to mouth (have or earn just enough money or food to live): Most people in India live from hand to mouth. 44. From pillar to post (going from one person or place to another without achieving anything): He had to run from pillar to post to get his money. 45. Get into a mess (get into trouble, difficulties): He will get into a mess by telling lies. 46. Get rid of (remove): We got rid of all the old furniture. 47. Half-baked (foolish, stupid, inexperienced): He has only half-baked ideas. 48. Hairbreadth's escape (narrow escape): They had a hairbreadth's escape when their car collided with a truck. 49. Have one foot in the grave (close to death): He is quite old and has one foot in the grave. 50. Have someone in one's pocket (have control): The members of the school betterment committee are in the head teacher's pockets. 51. High flown (grand and high sounding): It is very difficult to understand his high-flown language. 52. High time (ripe time, time for action): It is high time you started looking for a job. 53. Hold one's ground (stand firm): Despite pressure, he held his ground. 54. Hold one's jaw (stop talking): Hold your jaw and listen to me. 55. House of cards (a structure which easily falls down): The regime collapsed like a house of cards. / The apartment collapsed like a house of cards. 56. In accordance with (follow something): She was buried in accordance with her wishes. 57. In black and white (in writing): Let us have your statement in black and white. 58. In hot water (in trouble): You will be in hot water by complaining against him. 59. In peril (in danger): His life is in peril. 60. In pursuance of (while doing or performing something): He had to suffer a lot in pursuance of his career as a doctor. 61. In quest for (search for): Nothing will stop them in their quest for truth. 62. Ins and outs (all details): She knows the ins and outs of this business. 63. In the nick of time (just at the right time): The police went to the scene in the nick of time.

64. Iron-will (strong will or mind, determined): She is a woman of iron will. 65. Jack-of-all-trades (one who does many things, but is not expert at anything): In the modern world of specialization, it does not pay to be a jack-of-all-trades. / He is a jackof-all-trades, but master of none. 66. Kill time (do something unimportant to spend time): We killed time by window-shopping (looking at things in shop windows without intending to buy anything). 67. Lay hands on (seize, catch): Some goondas tried to lay hands on him. 68. Lay in ashes (burn to the ground): The whole building laid in ashes within an hour. 69. Leave no stone unturned (try every possible way to achieve something): The police left no stone unturned to trace the culprits. 70. Lend one's ears (listen): Lend your ear to what he says. 71. Let the cat out of the bag (reveal a secret): He knows all my secrets and I am afraid he will let the cat out of the bag. 72. Lion's share (largest part): He has a lion's share in the profits of the company. 73. Look alive (act quickly, be sharp): You have to look alive, as we do not have time. 74. Lump sum (money paid at one time, in one sum): He received a lump sum at the time of his retirement. 75. Make a note of (write down or record): Make a note of my address. 76. Make both ends meet (balance income and expenditure): He finds it very difficult to make both ends meet since the cost of living has increased. 77. Make head or tail (understand): I could not make head or tail of your speech. 78. Make up one's mind (decide, determine): He made up his mind to retire from business. 79. Naked truth (clear truth): The naked truth is before you. 80. Nightmare (unpleasant or frightening dream or experience): The trip turned into a nightmare when they were injured in an accident. 81. Odd means (wrong ways): He earns money by odd means. 82. On one's account (because of): Please do not cook on my account. 83. On paper (in writing): Any rule must be on paper. 84. On the upgrade (progress): The patient is on the upgrade. 85. Out of gear (out of control): She kept quiet with the fear that her temper would slip out of gear. 86. Out of question (impossible and not worth discussing): To accept him in our company is out of question. 87. Pale hearted (dispirited, become dull): He became pale hearted when he lost his job. 88. Pay heed to (to pay attention to): He did not pay heed to his father's advice. 89. Pick holes in (find wrong, criticize): They picked holes in his proposal. 90. Play double game (deceive, do one thing openly and the other secretly): Please stop playing double game, I know everything.

91. Pull one's legs (fool a person, play a joke): I was just trying to pull his leg. 92. Rack one's brains (think hard): I racked my brains, but could not remember her name. 93. Rain cats and dogs (rain heavily): It has been raining cats and dogs for the last four days. 94. Raise an alarm (warn about danger, alert others to a threat or emergency): People raised an alarm when the fire broke out in the market. 95. Raise the banner (take a stand, declare support or initiate an action/signal the approach of an army and their intention to fight): Who will raise the banner? 96. See one through (support and help): My friend saw me through all the hard times. 97. Sell like hot cakes (sell quickly in great number or quantity): The new book was sold like hot cakes. 98. Strike a bargain (reach an agreement): The management and the employees finally struck a bargain. 99. Strike while the iron is hot (make use of an opportunity in time): Your boss is in a good mood. Ask him for a rise in salary. Strike while the iron is hot.

100. Take to one’s heels (run away): The thief took to his heels on seeing a policeman.

101. Thorn in the side (source of problem or trouble or irritation): His son, who is irresponsible, is a thorn in his side.

102. Throw dust into the eyes of (cheat, deceive): You cannot throw dust into the eyes of custom officers.

103. Tight fisted / close fisted (stingy, unwilling to spend money): One of my friends is very tight fisted.

104. Turn a deaf ear (not to pay attention or importance): He turned a deaf ear to my advice.

105. Under a cloud (under suspicion): The minister resigned under a cloud after the fraud scandal.

106. Under arms (have weapons and be ready to fight): The rebels have thousands of people under arms.

107. Ups and downs (good and bad things): Everyone has ups and downs in life.

108. With one accord (complete agreement): With one accord the delegates walked out of the conference.

109. Worth his salt (fit): The new clerk is not worth his salt.

Question Paper Pattern

HARVEST II

IV Sem BCom/BBA (SEP 2025-26) (Internal Assessment for 20 Marks + Examination for 80 Marks) Basic English

Time: 3 Hours

Max. Mark: 80

Part I: Drama

1. Annotations: Answer any three out of five:

03 X 05 = 15

2. Short Notes: Answer any three out of five:

03 X 05 = 15

3. Descriptive: Answer any two out of four:

02 X 10 = 20

Part II: Writing Skills:

Questions on all the six chapters (no choice) 06 X 05 = 30

References for the Workbook of both the semesters:

1. Board of Editors. Practising Writing Skills (a workbook of Davanagere University). Reprint. Orient Blackswan Private Limited, Hyderabad, 2014.
2. Board of Editors. Business Communication in English (a workbook of Davanagere University). Shivagangotri, Davanagere University, Davanagere, 2014.
3. Rao Nageshwar and Das Rajendra P. Communication Skills. Himalaya Publishing House, Mumbai, 2012.
4. Kalkar Anjali, Suryawanshi R.B., and Sengupta Amlanjyothi. Textbook of Business Communication. Orient Blackswan, Hyderabad, 2010.
5. Rai Urmila and Rai S.M. Business Communication. Himalaya Publishing House, Mumbai, 2013.

Model business letters

MODEL BUSINESS COMMUNICATION LETTERS (WRITING SKILLS)

I. MODEL ENQUIRY LETTER

1. As the Proprietor of Chetan Books, Davanagere, you wish to purchase books from Subhash Publications, Bengaluru. Write a letter of enquiry asking for details such as availability of books, binding type, price list, year of publication, discount, mode of payment, delivery time, transportation charges and a catalogue.

Web: www.chetanbooks.com Telephone: 08192 29482 E-mail: chetanbooks@gmail.com Mobile: 9886310390

CHETAN BOOKS P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand DAVANAGERE-577002 Ref. No: CBD/218/2025 12 July 2025

To The Manager Subhash Publications No. 234, Avenue Road Bengaluru – 560002

Dear Sir, Sub: Enquiry about your publications.

We are interested in buying books published by you. We want to know the following details of your books: An Anthology of

1. The list of books available in your stock,

2. Binding type,

3. Price list according to the type of binding,

4. Year of publication,

5. The university syllabus for which the book is published,

6. Any discount/rebate available,

7. Mode of payment,

8. Time required for the supply of books,

9. Transportation charges/complimentary copies, etc., Please send your catalogue. We expect your catalogue with all the information mentioned above. Only after the receipt of the catalogue we will think of placing a purchase order.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, (GURUCHETAN A.M.)

II. MODEL QUOTATION LETTER

2. Write a quotation letter from Subhash Publications, Bengaluru, replying to an enquiry from Chetan Books, Davanagere, and provide full details of books, binding, price, discounts, payment mode, supply time, and transport charges.

Web: www.subhashbooks.com Telephone: 080-24567890 E-mail: subhashpublications@gmail.com Mobile: 8553656146

SUBHASH PUBLICATIONS No. 234, Avenue Road BENGALURU – 560002

Ref. No.: SP/QUO/142/2025 20 July 2025

To The Proprietor Chetan Books P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand Davanagere – 577002

Dear Sir,

Sub: Quotation for the books published

We thank you for your enquiry dated 12 July 2025 regarding our publications. We are pleased to furnish the required details as follows:

1. List of Books Available: – An Anthology of English Prose, – An Anthology of Modern Poetry – An Anthology of One-Act Plays – Communicative English Textbook – English Grammar and Usage (Revised Edition)

2. Binding Type: – Paperback – Hardbound (on request)

3. Price List: – Paperback: Rs.250 – Rs.450 – Hardbound: Rs.350 – Rs.550

4. Year of Publication: – All titles updated and reprinted in 2024–25.

5. University Syllabus: – Books prescribed for Bengaluru City University, Davanagere University, Kuvempu University, and VTU (General English).

6. Discount/Rebate: – 15% discount for orders above 50 copies., – 20% discount for institutional bulk orders.

7. Mode of Payment: – Online transfer / UPI / Demand Draft. – Payment within 15 days of invoice.

8. Time Required for Supply: – Dispatch within 7 working days from the date of order confirmation.

9. Transportation Charges / Complimentary Copies: – Free transportation within Karnataka for orders above Rs.10,000. – Two complimentary copies with every bulk order.

We hope the above details will meet your requirements. Kindly place your order at your earliest convenience.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, (Authorized Signatory) SUBHASH PUBLICATIONS

III. MODEL ORDER LETTER

3. Draft an Order Letter to Subhash Publications, Bengaluru, placing an order for English textbooks such as An Anthology of English Prose, An Anthology of Modern Poetry, An Anthology of One-Act Plays, and Communicative English Textbook. Use proper business letter format and write the letter as the Proprietor of Chetan Books, Davanagere.

Web: www.chetanbooks.com Telephone: 08192 29482 E-mail: chetanbooks@gmail.com Mobile: 9886310390 CHETAN BOOKS P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand DAVANAGERE-577002 Ref. No.: CBD/256/2025 28 July 2025

To The Manager Subhash Publications No. 234, Avenue Road Bengaluru – 560002

Dear Sir,

Sub: Order for Books Based on Your Quotation Dated 20 July 2025.

We thank you for your detailed quotation. We are pleased to place the following order for the academic year 2025–26: Books Ordered Title of the Book No. of Copies Binding Type An Anthology of English Prose 60 Paperback An Anthology of Modern Poetry 60 Paperback An Anthology of One-Act Plays 50 Paperback Communicative English Textbook 80 Paperback

Order Terms

1. Discount: We accept your offer of 15% discount for orders above 50 copies.
2. Mode of Payment: Payment will be made through online transfer within 15 days after receiving the invoice.
3. Delivery: Kindly dispatch the books within 7 working days, as mentioned in your quotation.
4. Transportation: As our order exceeds Rs.10,000, please arrange free transportation and send two complimentary copies as stated in your letter.

We request you to pack the books securely and send them through a reliable courier service to the address mentioned above. Kindly confirm the dispatch details at the earliest.

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, (GURUCHETAN A. M.)

IV. MODEL COMPLAINT LETTER

4. Write a letter of complaint to Subhash Publications, Bengaluru, informing them that several books received against your recent order arrived in a damaged condition. Request replacement of the damaged copies and better packing in future.

Web: www.chetanbooks.com Telephone: 08192 29482 E-mail: chetanbooks@gmail.com Mobile: 9886310390 CHETAN BOOKS P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand DAVANAGERE-577002 Ref. No.: CBD/256/2025 30 July 2025

To The Manager Subhash Publications No. 234, Avenue Road Bengaluru – 560002

Dear Sir, Sub: Complaint regarding damaged books received.

We regret to inform you that the consignment of books sent against our purchase order dated 24 July 2025 was received in a damaged condition. The parcel contained:

1. An Anthology of English Prose – 10 copies

2. An Anthology of Modern Poetry – 15 copies

3. Communicative English Textbook – 20 copies

Out of these, 12 copies were found damaged, with torn pages, bent covers, and moisture-affected binding. The package also appeared mishandled, indicating poor packing during dispatch.

Since these books are meant for student distribution, we cannot issue them in their current condition.

We request you too kindly:

1. Replace the damaged copies at the earliest,

2. Ensure better packaging in future dispatches, and

3. Arrange for the return pickup of the defective books, if required.

We expect the replacement stock within 7 working days, as our academic schedule is time-bound. We hope you will take prompt action to resolve this issue

Thank you.

Yours faithfully, (GURU CHETAN A. M.) Proprietor

IV. MODEL CIRCULAR LETTER

5. Draft a circular letter announcing a grand discount offer on all books by Chetan Books Publishers.

Web: www.chetanbooks.com Telephone: 08192 29482 E-mail: chetanbooks@gmail.com Mobile: 9886310390 CHETAN BOOKS P.B. Road, Near Bus Stand DAVANAGERE-57702 CIRCULAR Date: 05 August 2025 CIRCULAR NO.: CBP/CIR/22/2025 Dear Customers, Sub: Announcement of Grand Discount Sale We are happy to announce a Grand Discount Offer on all our publications for a limited period. This special discount is being provided to support students, teachers, and institutions during the Independence Day offer. The details of the discount are as follows:

1. Flat 20% discount on all textbooks

2. Up to 30% discount on bulk purchases (orders above 50 copies)

3. Special offer on English Anthologies, Grammar Books, and Communicative English Textbooks.

4. Offer valid from 10 August 2025 to 30 August 2025 Educational institutions, bookstores, and students are requested to make use of this opportunity. For orders and enquiries, please contact: Phone: 9886310390 Email: chetanbooks@gmail.com

We look forward to your continued support. Sd/- GURU CHETAN A. M. Proprietor Chetan Books Publishers